

Bank Predicts Rome Will Be Easier To Take Than Velletri

By DANIEL DE LUCE
Velletri, Italy, June 1 (Delayed AP)—Velletri, fortress city of the German line defending Rome, was entered by American infantry at 11:15 p. m. (11:15 a. m. Eastern War time) today and 19 prisoners were captured on the march into the town square.

Past the ruined bank of the Holy Spirit and the scarred cathedral of St. Mary's Capt. William Barnett of Ft. Worth, Texas, led his tired, dusty rifle company that rounded up the bedraggled Germans on the way to the municipal piazza.

Two enemy rifles and a mortar tube were left on the cathedral steps, but throughout the city, perched on a high rib of the Alban hills 18 airline miles from Rome, there was little sound of firing.

Colonel Is Killed

In the fight for Velletri a colonel at the head of an infantry column was killed by a mobile armored gun at a highway intersection on the outskirts.

Lt. James W. Long, Belzon, Miss., attempted to get his tank destroyer into action, but the German vehicle fired toward Albano in a thick haze of dust.

Velletri's fate was quickened by brilliant outflanking maneuver that sent doughboys scaling the 900-foot Artemisio hill behind the city two nights ago.

This morning they had Velletri cut off on three sides, but from lone pillboxes and roaming batteries of mortar artillery the Germans continued their fierce resistance during the day.

General On Scene

A general jeaped over the road where German mines were still hidden to view Velletri from the outskirts and to tell Lt. Col. Robert J. Johnson, Providence, R. I., to make a fast job of this, Bob."

The road led past a hurriedly vacated enemy divisional headquarters in an elegant villa and signs of a half dozen units, including an SS (Elite Corps) Brigade.

From backyards, wine cellars and the debris of bombed suburban hops doughboys routed clusters of huddering Germans.

Pfc. Robert Glover, Gastonia, N. C., nabbed 19 Germans. Pfc. Albert O. Aguilar, Brownsville, Texas, caught five. After Lt. Andrew P. Smythe, El Paso, Texas, aid down a close support fire from his 81-millimeter mortars and Lieutenant Long's tank destroyer, the layhawk, with Cpl. Donald Fullerton of Pawnee Rock, Kansas, driving, the mop-up of Velletri began.

"See You In Rome"

"See you in Rome," shouted Lt. Col. James Balluff, Chicago, Ill., as he rode off on the rear of Long's vehicle.

Eight old men and women cried out "no water, no bread, help us, help us," as the doughboys passed him in the narrow, winding, rubble-strewn alley.

Squatting beside some newly captured Germans at the entrance to the bishop's palace, some American veterans agreed "It's coming to an end—this war."

"Rome will be easier to take than Velletri," said Sgt. John Cook, Balinger, Texas.

HERSHEY FIRM PAYS $81,118 OPA OVERCHARGE

In a decree signed in U. S. Middle District Court today by Judge Albert W. Johnson, the Hershey Creamery Company is assessed $81,118.62 representing overcharges in the sale of ice cream at wholesale.

This is the largest amount ever collected by the Harrisburg District OPA office for overcharges.

The case grew out of an 18c a gallon overcharge exacted by the company from its customers, part of which was in the form of a "service charge," according to OPA.

The $81,118.62 check was delivered to the District OPA Office by Elmer E. Harter, Jr., counsel for the Hershey company. The check was made payable to the Treasury of the United States.

Court Ruling

In addition to the assessment of damages, the court enjoined the company from:

"Selling ice cream and ice cream products in excess of OPA maximum prices.

"Engaging in any evasive practices relative to maximum ceiling prices in the sale of these products."

"Buying or receiving milk from milk producers at prices above OPA ceilings."

The company was also ordered to keep for inspection complete and accurate records of the sales of ice cream, ice cream products and the purchase of milk.

Offense In 1943

Judgment and injunction proceedings were filed in federal court in January by Charles J. Ware, District Enforcement attorney of the OPA, charging the company with sales of ice cream at prices above those fixed by the OPA "price freeze" order in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Maryland and Virginia.

In the complaint the Hershey Company was specifically charged with selling quantities of ice cream at wholesale between February 1 and March 1, 1943 at 18c per gallon above the prevailing ceiling price. Between June 1 and August 15, the company was cited for charging 18c per gallon above the OPA maximum price by including a "rental and service" charge not allowable under OPA regulations.

Promoted

First Lieutenant MayBelle E. Ridinger, daughter of Mrs. Harry H. Ridinger, West Middle street, has been made assistant superintendent of the Bushnell General hospital, at Brigham City, Utah, and promoted to the rank of captain, members of her family here have learned. The promotion was effective May 25.

Miss Ridinger, who was a registered nurse in civilian life, entered service as an Army nurse with the rank of second lieutenant on March 18, 1941. She was promoted to first lieutenant September 7, 1942. She has served at Indiantown Gap, Camp Wheeler, Georgia; Camp Kilmer, New Jersey, and has been at Bushnell General hospital since January of this year.

FIELD, GARDEN INSECTS REACH NEW HIGH HERE

Adams county's insect population, assisted by the warm weather, is apparently reaching an all time high for this time of year, according to surveys made Wednesday by J. O. Pepper, extension representative from State College, and County Agent M. T. Hartman.

Corn borer moths are out in large numbers, the men report, and are depositing eggs in clusters on the undersides of the corn leaves. Corn plants about eight to ten inches in height seem to have the heaviest infestation of eggs. Under present weather conditions those eggs will be hatching by the middle of next week, Mr. Pepper added.

Growers of sweet corn who have only a small amount of the corn planted were urged today by the county agent to use a dust on the corn by the middle of next week in order to control the borers. Regular Rotenone bean beetle dust or a 4 per cent fixed nicotine dust are recommended by the county office as the best dusts to be used in the fight against the borer which has made tremendous inroads in Adams county during the last year or two.

Other Pests Plentiful

For best control, Mr. Pepper said, the dust should be thoroughly applied into the growing whorl of the corn. Three to four applications should be made at from five to seven-day intervals starting next week.

Bean beetle adults are also out in large numbers and are depositing egg masses on the undersides of the bean leaves. The eggs are expected to hatch in from three to five days. Rotenone applications for the beetle should also be started next week.

Cabbage worms are also occurring in large numbers on growing cabbage plants. The worms can be controlled with either the bean beetle rotenone dust or by a mixture of one pound of lead arsenate to five pounds of hydrated lime.

Hand picking of adult bean beetles was also recommended as a control measure in smaller plots of beans.

WIBLE'S TALENT AS CARTOONIST SERVES IN WAR

With the Fifth Bomber Command at an Advanced Base in New Guinea—Even the cartoonists whose civilian occupations were to evoke laughter have turned their talents to the serious business of waging war. Pvt. Charles L. Wible, formerly of Gettysburg, a frequent contributor of caricatures and cartoons to leading magazines, has adapted himself to his new army role, painting maps of fighting fronts.

Some of the water colors and pastels executed by Private Wible have assumed the proportions of murals, covering entire walls. They are not only colorful works of art, but have necessarily been drawn to exact scale and are of great importance in recording the course of the war. Private Wible has the added responsibility of keeping the maps in agreement with latest developments.

Wife Is Agent

Private Wible spent three years in the art department of the New York Times, where he was assigned to commercial drawings and layout work. In 1942 he submitted two oil paintings in a nation-wide war poster competition, one of which was selected for a tour of exhibitions throughout the United States. Since coming overseas to join the Fifth Air Force four months ago he has found time to sketch the lighter side of life in New Guinea, and recently completed illustrations for a magazine article soon to be released in the States.

Acting as agent for the placement of cartoons Private Wible has drawn while overseas is his wife, Mrs. Mary E. Wible, 2418 South 21st street, Philadelphia. The illustrator's mother, Mrs. Jean S. Wible, resides at 231 Baltimore street, Gettysburg. A brother, 1st Lt. E. Bradley Wible is with a chemical warfare service unit in Iran.

PLANS MADE TO CANVASS HOMES FOR SERVICE LIST

Adams county's Civilian Defense workers, augmented by extra solicitors in sections of the county where there are no Civilian Defense setups at present, will visit every county home, "ring every doorbell" and see someone in every home, to register every man and woman over 21 in the armed forces from the county.

"It is not important whether or not we think the men and women now in the armed forces will vote or not," Judge W. C. Sheely told Civilian Defense officials Thursday evening in outlining to them at a meeting at the court house plans for the forthcoming servicemen and women's registration so that military ballots may be sent them. "The important thing is that every man and woman of voting age in the services will have the opportunity to vote," he said.

"It will not be the duty of the C-D solicitors to determine the eligibility of a person to vote," Judge Sheely added. "That job will be the duty of the county commissioners—our job is to see that everyone in the armed forces has an opportunity to vote and it is our responsibility if just one person in the services from the county is unable to vote because we failed to contact the home and obtain his name, serial number and address and other information on the registration cards given us to fill out."

To Start June 14

The C-D heads were told to advise their solicitors to go to the homes assigned them, and to keep going back, if no one is there on the first trip, until someone is found at home.

The drive will begin June 14 and will conclude June 28 when the Civilian Defense authorities in various sections will turn over to the county Civilian Defense chairman the cards collected by the solicitors, and he in turn will give to the county commissioners the filled out cards.

On July 7, the election boards will sit at the various polling booths in the county to receive the names of any soldiers who may have been missed by the C-D workers during their canvass of the county. The commissioners then will process the cards to weed out ineligible voters and duplicate cards.

"Our Only Job"

The commissioners will place on file the list of names, so that the registration of any individual may be challenged, and will send the ballots to the men in service.

"Our only job is to obtain the information about who is in the services and affiliated organizations, such as the Red Cross, USO, American Friends Service, Merchant Marine, and the like who come under the Soldiers and Sailors Voting Act; we do nothing else," Judge Sheely asserted.

Men who have been in the armed forces and are now discharged, however, will vote just as any other citizen, it was stated, and the C-D solicitors will not secure their names and addresses.

No Lists Available

The two-week campaign is necessary the judge said, because "there are absolutely no lists available anywhere with the information needed. The draft boards do not have the lists of those who went into service prior to their establishment, nor do they have the (Please Turn to Page 2)

Main German Escape Route In Italy Is Cut By U. S. Fifth Army

By SID FEDER

Allied Headquarters, Naples, June 2 (AP)—Fifth Army troops have cut the Via Casilina, sealing off a main German escape route, and broken into Velletri—already left two miles behind by an American spearhead battling on the heights in sight of Rome.

Plunging across the Via Casilina—Highway Six—near Valmontone, the Allies slashed the main road for Nazis falling back from the main front to the southeast.

British forces pounding up the highway were nearing Ferentino, only 13 miles from Valmontone, and French troops swung toward the highway from the west in this sector. A few lateral roads branch off from the Via Casilina to highways farther east.

U. S. infantrymen entered Velletri late yesterday after other Americans had virtually encircled this key German fortress, on the Appian Way 18 miles from Rome.

"Very Obstinate Opposition"

Two miles to the northwest, Yankee troops fighting on Monte Artemisio, in view of Rome's historic buildings, were meeting "very obstinate opposition," a communique said.

This force had snaked beyond Velletri and seized the dominating heights of Mts. Peschio and Artemisio, catching the Germans by surprise.

(The German high command declared the dent the Allies achieved northeast of Velletri has been "sealed off" with heavy casualties inflicted. Berlin's broadcast said there was fighting of "very great fierceness" Thursday, especially in the Velletri and Valmontone areas, but that the Allies had been held.)

The smashing blows against the Nazi line guarding Rome also drove in another wedge by capture of Lariano, a village on the highway to Valmontone, four miles northeast of Velletri.

Field Marshall Albert Kesselring had flung his touted Hermann Goering armored division into the line near Valmontone in a bitter struggle to hold open the Via Casilina.

The exact point below Valmontone where the highway was slashed was not disclosed by headquarters.

WITNESSED 73 MEMORIAL DAY PROGRAMS HERE

Mrs. Robert C. Miller, Baltimore street, came to Gettysburg from Washington, D. C., this year to witness the Memorial Day exercises for the seventy-third time. Last year she was unable to make the trip because of gasoline restrictions.

In 1866 Mrs. Miller's parents, Jacob A. and Anna L. Kitzmiller bought for a residence the house now known as the "Jennie Wade house" on Baltimore street. Mrs. Miller recalls that she was taken to an upstairs window there in order that she could see the parade at the time of President Hayes visit to Gettysburg.

Mrs. Miller says that never have weather conditions prevented the strewing of the flowers on the graves of the soldiers, a ceremony in which she took part each of her school years.

When asked which of the years remains in her memory as the most thrilling she said without hesitation that it was the year of President Theodore Roosevelt's visit. She said that the crowd was so large at that time after the parade had passed, a person could have crossed Baltimore street stepping on the heads of observers.

Mrs. Miller and her son-in-law and daughter, Lieut. Col. and Mrs. William G. Weaver, of Washington, D. C., have been at their home on Baltimore street over the Memorial Day week-end.

McSherrystown Boy Hurt At Crossing

Roy Snyder, 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Snyder, South street, McSherrystown, was injured when the milk truck he was operating and a Pennsylvania Railroad work train collided at a grade crossing southwest of Hanover Wednesday morning at 8:05 o'clock.

The youth is a patient in the Hanover General hospital suffering from bruises and lacerations of the head and body, brush burns of the back and a severe laceration of the right leg. X-ray examinations revealed no fractures.

Snyder was driving a truck owned by the C. C. Robert Dairy, Midway, along the road which connects McSherrystown and Mt. Pleasant. The train was an extra work train and was traveling south. The accident occurred at what is known as McSherry's crossing

To Report On Plan For Incorporation

Report of a committee named to draw up a resolution on the proposition of forming a corporation to take over the operation of all activities of the Albert J. Lentz post of the American Legion with the exception of the Legion post, will be made Monday evening at the regular session of the post, it was announced today.

The committee was named May 15, to draw up the resolution which will be presented Monday so that the members may decide whether or not they wish a corporation formed. Adjutant Paul M. Rohrbach said. Every member is asked to be present for the meeting.

Upset Demolitions

The daily communique said Eighth Army troops, advancing astride the Via Casilina toward Valmontone, "have pressed enemy rearwards so severely" in one sector "that enemy demolitions could not be effected." Advance Eighth Army elements drove six miles beyond Frosinone to a point less than two miles from Frosinone.

Headquarters said the Americans who penetrated the German Valmontone-Velletri line to 2,600-foot Monte Artemisio have "established themselves" but are now battering against strong enemy defense points. Americans on this and other heights now are fighting in view of Rome.

Eastward other Fifth Army troops cut a two-mile section of the railway in the Ardena-Valmontone area, and threw pounding pressure on the Hermann Goering division astride the Via Casilina in that sector.

The enemy threw fierce artillery barrages against these Allied forces but some gains were made.

The Germans were said still to be throwing every available man into the defense along the 25-mile line from Valmontone to the sea. Parachute troops have been identified in the Velletri area. Elsewhere the Nazis were said to be using such non-combatant forces as company butchers and horse tenders.

West of the Eighth Army push toward Frosinone, a French advance threatened to cut in behind the fleeing Germans.

Northeast of Frosinone, above the highway, Eighth Army troops drove to the neighborhood of Verlo despite anti-tank gunfire at the Allied armor.

Allied fighter bombers destroyed more than 100 vehicles and tanks on roads north and south of Rome yesterday. Twenty-five railcars loaded with gasoline went up in flames after a Thunderbolt attack on the Montevarchi railyards on the Arezzo-Florence line.

RAF Halifaxes, Liberators and Wellingtons early today attacked railway targets at Szolnok, 30 miles east of Budapest. These railyards have been used extensively for sending supplies to the Russian front.

PROMOTED TO CORPORAL

Winfield Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Smith, York street, who is stationed in Italy, was recently promoted to corporal.

Growers of sweet corn who have only a small amount of the corn planted were urged today by the county agent to use a dust on the corn by the middle of next week in order to control the borers. Regular Rotenone bean beetle dust or a 4 per cent fixed nicotine dust are recommended by the county office as the best dusts to be used in the fight against the borer which has made tremendous inroads in Adams county during the last year or two.

Other Pests Plentiful

For best control, Mr. Pepper said, the dust should be thoroughly applied into the growing whorl of the corn. Three to four applications should be made at from five to seven-day intervals starting next week.

Bean beetle adults are also out in large numbers and are depositing egg masses on the undersides of the bean leaves. The eggs are expected to hatch in from three to five days. Rotenone applications for the beetle should also be started next week, it was said.

Cabbage worms are also occurring in large numbers on growing cabbage plants. The worms can be controlled with either the bean beetle rotenone dust or by a mixture of one pound of lead arsenate to five pounds of hydrated lime.

Hand picking of adult bean beetles was also recommended as a control measure in smaller plots of beans.

PLANS MADE TO CANVASS HOMES FOR SERVICE LIST

Adams county's Civilian Defense workers, augmented by extra solicitors in sections of the county where there are no Civilian Defense set-ups at present, will visit every county home, "ring every doorbell and see someone in every home," to register every man and woman over 21 in the armed forces from the county.

"It is not important whether or not we think the men and women now in the armed forces will vote or not," Judge W. C. Sheely told Civilian Defense officials Thursday evening in outlining to them at a meeting at the court house plans for the forthcoming servicemen and women's registration so that military ballots may be sent them. "The important thing is that every man and woman of voting age in the services will have the opportunity to vote," he said.

"It will not be the duty of the C-D solicitors to determine the eligibility of a person to vote," Judge Sheely added. "That job will be the duty of the county commissioners—our job is to see that everyone in the armed forces has an opportunity to vote and it is our responsibility if just one person in the services from the county is unable to vote because we failed to contact the home and obtain his name, serial number and address and other information on the registration cards given us to fill out."

To Start June 14

The drive will begin June 14 and will conclude June 28 when the Civilian Defense authorities in various sections will turn over to the county Civilian Defense chairman the cards collected by the solicitors, and he in turn will give to the county commissioners the filled out cards.

On July 7, the election boards will sit at the various polling booths in the county to receive the names of any soldiers who may have been missed by the C-D workers during their canvass of the county. The commissioners then will process the cards to weed out ineligible voters and duplicate cards.

"Our Only Job"
The commissioners will place on file the list of names, so that the registration of any individual may be challenged, and will send the ballots to the men in service.

"Our only job is to obtain the information about who is in the services and affiliated organizations, such as the Red Cross, USO, American Friends Service, Merchant Marine, and the like who come under the Soldiers and Sailors Voting Act; we do nothing else," Judge Sheely asserted.

Men who have been in the armed forces and are now discharged, however, will vote just as any other civilian, it was stated, and the C-D solicitors will not secure their names and addresses.

No Lists Available

The two-week campaign is necessary the judge said, because "there are absolutely no lists available anywhere with the information needed. The draft boards do not have the lists of those who went into service prior to their establishment, nor do they have the

Allied Headquarters, Naples, June 2 (AP)—Fifth Army troops have cut the Via Casilina, sealing off a main German escape route, and broken into Velletri—already left two miles behind by an American spearhead battling on the heights in sight of Rome.

Plunging across the Via Casilina—Highway Six—near Valmontone, the Allies slashed the main road for Nazis falling back from the main front to the southeast.

British forces pounding up the highway were nearing Ferentino, only 18 miles from Valmontone, and French troops swung toward the highway from the west in this sector. A few lateral roads branch off from the Via Casilina to highways farther east.

U. S. infantrymen entered Velletri late yesterday after other Americans had virtually encircled this key German fortress, on the Appian Way 18 miles from Rome.

"Very Obstinate Opposition"

Two miles to the northwest, Yankee troops fighting on Monte Artemisio, in view of Rome's historic buildings, were meeting "very obstinate opposition," a communique said.

This force had snaked beyond Velletri and seized the dominating heights of Mts. Peschio and Artemisio, catching the Germans by surprise.

(The German high command declared the dent the Allies achieved northeast of Velletri has been "sealed off" with heavy casualties inflicted. Berlin's broadcast said there was fighting of "very great fierceness" Thursday, especially in the Velletri and Valmontone areas, but that the Allies had been held.)

The smashing blows against the Nazi line guarding Rome also drove in another wedge by capture of Lariano, a village on the highway to Valmontone, four miles northeast of Velletri.

Field Marshall Albert Kesselring had flung his touted Hermann Goering armored division into the line near Valmontone in a bitter struggle to hold open the Via Casilina.

The exact point below Valmontone where the highway was slashed was not disclosed by headquarters.

WITNESSED 73 MEMORIAL DAY PROGRAMS HERE

Mrs. Robert C. Miller, Baltimore street, came to Gettysburg from Washington, D. C., this year to witness the Memorial Day exercises for the seventy-third time. Last year she was unable to make the trip because of gasoline restrictions.

In 1866 Mrs. Miller's parents, Jacob A. and Anna L. Kitzmiller bought for a residence the house now known as the "Jennie Wade house" on Baltimore street. Mrs. Miller recalls that she was taken to an upstairs window there in order that she could see the parade at the time of President Hayes visit to Gettysburg.

Mrs. Miller says that never have weather conditions prevented the strewing of the flowers on the graves of the soldiers, a ceremony in which she took part each of her school years.

When asked which of the years remains in her memory as the most thrilling she said without hesitation that it was the year of President Theodore Roosevelt's visit. She said that the crowd was so large at that time after the parade had passed, a person could have crossed Baltimore street stepping on the heads of observers.

Mrs. Miller and her son-in-law and daughter, Lieut. Col. and Mrs. William G. Weaver, of Washington, D. C., have been at their home on Baltimore street over the Memorial Day week-end.

McSherrystown Boy Hurt At Crossing

Roy Snyder, 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Snyder, South street, McSherrystown, was injured when the milk truck he was operating and a Pennsylvania Railroad work train collided at a grade crossing southwest of Hanover Wednesday morning at 8:05 o'clock.

The youth is a patient in the Hanover General hospital suffering from bruises and lacerations of the head and body, brush burns of the back and a severe laceration of the right leg. X-ray examinations revealed no fractures.

Snyder was driving a truck owned by the C. C. Rebert Dairy, Midway, along the road which connects McSherrystown and Mt. Pleasant. The train was an extra work train and was traveling south. The accident occurred at what is known as McSherry's crossing.

PROFESSOR IDLE AND GOV. DEWEY HOLD "REUNION"
Owosso, Michigan, high school held homecoming day and the Owosso band celebrated the 26th anniversary of its participation in the Memorial Day parade at Cornuna, Michigan, Tuesday afternoon in front of the New York monument in the National cemetery here.
The participants in the reunion were Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, and Prof. Dunning Idle, Jr., Baltimore street, who were neighbors years ago in Owosso, and who both attended Owosso high school and the University of Michigan at the same time.
Both were members of the Owosso band, with Dewey playing the bass horn and Idle the tenor. Dewey, in his conversation with Idle held after the New York governor had laid a wreath on his state's statue at the cemetery, recalled that the day marked the 26th anniversary of the Memorial Day on which the Owosso band, with Dewey and Idle both members, went to the county seat, Cornuna, to play for the annual Memorial exercises.

15-Minute Chat
While Dewey and Idle had been friends in Owosso and at the University of Michigan they were not close friends, with Dewey being older than Idle and two years ahead of him in school. Professor Idle explained today. Idle had thought Dewey had forgotten all about the friendship until shortly before the meeting of the governors here when the local man received a letter from Governor Dewey asking him to "look me up" when the New York governor was in Gettysburg on Memorial Day.
Still expecting that there would not be much time for more than a hurried greeting, Professor Idle waited at the National cemetery Monday and when Dewey appeared called to him. Dewey recognized Idle immediately and made arrangements for the "reunion" after the wreath laying, when Mr. Idle introduced his wife and mother and some friends to the governor and for 15 minutes recalled "old times" in Michigan with the former gang-banger.

HIGH SCHOOL'S HONOR ROLL IS DEDICATED HERE
A handsome walnut and gold service Honor Roll which already bears the names of more than 600 former students of the Gettysburg high school who are serving in the armed forces of the nation was formally dedicated and presented to the school at ceremonies conducted last Thurs. evening in the school auditorium.
Formal presentation was made by Dr. Robert A. Bream, an alumnus of the class of 1924, who delivered the dedicatory address, "in behalf of the student body, the student council and the Alumni association." A brief acceptance speech was made by Superintendent L. C. Keefeauver.
The Honor Roll, to which scores of names remain to be added, was unveiled by Miss Shirley Larkin, a member of the senior class, student council and the council's committee which helped arrange for the erection of the honor roll, and Melvin Little, alumnus of the class of 1925. Both Miss Larkin and Mr. Little have a brother in the service whose name appears on the roll.
Color Guard
The exercises opened with selections by the high school band directed by Edwin S. Longanecker of the faculty. G. W. Lefever, high school principal, served as master of ceremonies.
After the audience sang "America the Beautiful," an American Legion color guard, including Paul L. Spangler, Lawrence M. Sheads, Joseph C. Smith and C. Arthur Brane, advanced the colors to the platform. The invocation was given by the Rev. Robert M. Hunt, local Presbyterian pastor, and then the high school mixed chorus sang "If My Song Had Wings" and "Holy Art Thou" under the direction of Richard B. Shade, supervisor of music in the local schools. Miss Mary Clare Myers was the accompanist.
William Green, retiring student council president, reviewed the development of the Honor Roll project and explained that its cost is being met by the Alumni association, which has promised to pay half the entire cost; the student council, which has contributed $42; students who sponsored individual names on the list with cash donations totaling $97; the FFA chapter, $10; the Mask and Wig club, $15, and the Girls' Athletic Association, $10.
"Finest Generation"
A band selection preceded the address by Doctor Bream. Declaring that "these young men and women whose names appear on this honor roll are members of the finest generation of young people the world has ever produced," he asserted that "they are expressing in deeds their devotion to a cause that is very near all of our hearts."
"Our best dedication and the greatest honor we can pay them is our determination to devote ourselves to the unfinished tasks that remain at home. To fail in this would be to make us guilty of violating their sacred trust. We must think clearly on the facts before us today, learn the lessons of history and prepare to find a solution for the problem of employment and economic security not only for the veterans after the war but for those who will be replaced in their jobs by returning service men."
Alumna in WAVES
"We must recognize our responsibility for seeking out ways to express our rights as world citizens, to find some plan of world federation or control that will avoid a succession of wars through the centuries."
Ensign Miriam Waltemyer, alumna of the school and former member of the faculty now serving with the WAVES, occupied a place on the platform and was presented to the audience by Mr. Lefever.
The high school principal asked that names of other former students, not now appearing on the roll, should be handed to Walter Keeney, member of the student council. Persons who wish to sponsor names with cash donations may contact council members, he said.

CONCERN FELT IN U. S. FOR BRITISH STAND ON SPAIN

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press War Analyst)
British Prime Minister Churchill's unexpected pronouncement of "kindly words about Spain" is causing puzzlement, not unshared with concern, in this country.

Pro-Nazi Spain continues to give Hitler material aid with which to wage war against us. Her position is not identical with that of some pro-Nazi neutrals which have been forced to serve the German tyrant. That raises a problem which is likely to get hotter before it cools.

The average American's reaction to this issue seems to be controlled mainly by the fact that the Allies are about to undertake the greatest and most hazardous amphibious invasion of history. He is uncomfortably aware that vast numbers of the troops which will fight their way up the beaches from the sea on D-Day will be our boys.

Mr. Churchill's gesture advanced the thesis that Spain had contributed to the United Nations cause, among other ways, by resisting Nazi pressure to take over Gibraltar and close the straits, and by ignoring the huge Allied preparations close to the Spanish coast for the invasion of Africa. Thus Spain made backhanded amends for some of her irregularities towards the Allies.

Different Point of View

There are many reasons why Britain should want to win Spain over. Churchill named several, including the hope "that she will be a strong influence for the peace of the Mediterranean after the war."

At another point he said:

"I look forward to increasingly good relations with Spain and extremely fruitful trade between Spain and this country, which I trust will grow during war and expand after peace."

Well, America wants friendship with Spain, too, but our viewpoint appears to be somewhat different. Despite Mr. Churchill's speech, President Roosevelt later expressed the opinion that Spain's shipments of supplies to Germany haven't yet been reduced enough. It strikes me that our average citizen is likely to demand an answer to two questions:

Should Compel Spain

1. Does Spain's shipment of supplies to Germany mean loss of life to American soldiers?

2. Is it possible that these supplies will protract the conflict, thereby causing further death and destruction, and wastage of the resources of many nations?

The answers to these queries are so obviously in the affirmative that they need no discussion. With these before him, the average citizen is inclined not to give a tinker's darn about anything else.

He believes the Allies are powerful enough to compel Spain to recognize that it pays to be good. He thinks we have the right to do that.

An Evening Thought

Habit is a cable. We weave a thread of it every day, and at last we cannot break it.—Horace Mann

Just Folks

MIRTH

In laughter, pain can be forgot.
In laughter, vanishes despair.
The laughing lad remembers not
An hour ago he stood to care.
It shortens hours, that would be long,
When lonely men can share a song.
They're tragedy enough to face
Who look on death from day to day.
At best it is a dismal place
Where swamp and jungle bar the way.

So, when they're granted time to rest,
Give them the joy of song and jest.
They live the tales that will be told
When peace has found the world again.
But now they need the songs of old
And all the jokes of merry men.
'Tis good for every fighting man
To set him laughing if you can.

Today's Talk

THE MARGINAL LIFE

It is a sad thing to see the light of so many useful lives go out, long before their ripening experience has had its full expression. All too often the cause has been—lack of enough leisure margin in their lives.

Thoreau once said that "a broad margin of leisure is as beautiful in a man's life as in a book." When I read this it struck me as a remarkable truth. I have always rather envied the calm and leisurely attitude of the intelligent Englishmen. Those who have taken time out—to live. Thoreau died at the very dawn of middle life—yet those years in which he lived were broad in margin.

The delightful books of David Grayson have always attracted me—for they prove a life of beautiful margins. You are always impressed with his thoughtful leisure.

White space in an advertisement has sales value quite as important as the type which embellishes it. Quite so does leisure embellish a useful life, giving to it that marginal beauty and power so important.

All the hours of a day are hours of invitation—invitation to thought, to meditation and to an appreciation of the wonders of God's creation and man's possibilities. Time moves leisurely. It goes no faster today than a thousand years ago. It isn't in a hurry. It's a man who is in a hurry, who wants to get things done too quickly, who rushes when he should walk and who acts impulsively when he should think things out.

Most of the ills of mankind can be traced to faulty and careless eating—in too many cases eating with too great speed. This wonderful bodily machine of ours is the most intricate and perfectly constructed of all the creations of the Creator. He never meant that it should be abused.

The very heaven above us, spotted with its stars, is the everlasting margin to this earth of ours. What a grab thing it would be without it! There is leisure even among the stars. They carry about them the story of time and space.

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "The Art of Burying Defects."

SEEK DECEASED'S RELATIVES

ALL-OUT DRIVE ON BIAK OPENS IN SOUTH PACIFIC

By ROBERT EUNSON

Advanced Allied Headquarters, New Guinea, June 2 (AP)—Massing of American reinforcements for an all-out assault on tough Biak island in the Schoutens and pincer moves aimed at trapped Japanese on two other fronts were announced today.

Under Seventh Fleet guns and without enemy aerial or naval interference, more Yanks landed Tuesday at Biak, enemy air base in Dutch New Guinea's Geelvink bay, who was invaded Saturday. As they moved up from the Bosnek beachhead, aircraft and ground fighters hammered at Japanese sniper and mortar positions on ridges commanding the beach for several miles and the coastal road leading to the island's three air-dromes.

Allies Advance
The field commander would not order a further advance on Mokmer, the nearest airfield, until these enemy nests were eliminated. American patrols have been blocked two miles from the airfield.

On Bougainville island, in the northern Solomons, Allied units landed behind Japanese lines Tuesday at the mouth of the Tekissi river, in the southern sweep of Empress Augusta bay, on the island's west coast. Supporting naval gunboats and attack planes neutralized opposing shore batteries.

The switch-back move took the Allies seven miles southeast of the Torokina river which the Allies crossed in January in extending their original beachhead. The two forces thereby clamped between them part of thousands of Japanese still resisting on Bougainville.

A second pincer movement against entrapped Japanese was narrowed when Australian soldiers, advancing northwest along the British New Guinea coastline, occupied Guru village and Mulu harbor without contacting the enemy.

The advance closed to approximately 200 miles the stretch of by-passed coastline between this position and other Allied-held points southeast of Aitape. Within that vise are several thousand Japanese.

THINK TURKEY MAY ENTER WAR

London, June 2 (AP)—June, perhaps the most fateful month of the war—began with an air attack on the Germans' channel front defenses so terrific it shook the English coast, while at the opposite end of Hitler's uneasy European siege stand, Marshal Tito ordered his Yugoslavs into an all out attack, and Turkey was reported likely to move into war at the Allies' invasion signal.

Marshal Tito's order of the day called for a decisive assault "particularly now when the last blow of the Red Army and Anglo-American Allied troops is approaching," and his communique announced capture of an enemy base in Dalmatia and hard blows along the whole Nazi line.

Across the murky channel where thunderstorms added to the explosive fury of the Allied air onslaught on the Nazis' front line, the Germans tightened their control of all France to an active operations basis.

The latest move in breaking up all gatherings was a Vichy radio announcement that all horse racing had been cancelled "owing to the present situation."

An evening news cartoonist pictured England as so crowded with U. S. troops that several were falling off a cliff into the sea.

Praying For Victory And Data On Foe Are Eisenhower Beliefs

By WES GALLAGHER

Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Force, England, June 2 (AP)—Two books on the neatly-kept desk of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower in his office at supreme headquarters indicate a philosophy of praying for victory and know thy enemy go hand-in-hand.

The books are the soldiers' and sailors' prayer book, and one dealing with Hitler's generals.

The office of the supreme commander, which sees very little of him these days, is filled with mementos of his past campaigns, as well as countless secrets for which the Germans would sacrifice many divisions of men to gain.

It is a rectangular room, with a big fireplace, two small tables, and a large desk in a corner between two windows.

Keeps Orderly Desk

Except for a memo or two and the two books, the desk is kept as orderly as the supreme commander's mind.

Photos of Rommel

There is one from Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek. There are also copies of various important documents. The most important of these is the shortest—Roosevelt's cable to Stalin informing him of Eisenhower's appointment as commander in chief of the western front invasion force. It was sent from Cairo.

On nearby tables are pictures of the General's mother, his wife and son, and his dog, Telex, now in British quarantine.

On the mantelpiece is a series of pictures of a man Eisenhower has never met, given him by his intelligence staff in Africa. When the supreme commander sees this person in the flesh the war will probably be over.

The pictures are of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel.

There is a Telegraph Hill in Winchester, England, and another in San Francisco.

1,000 AFFECTED WHEN CHLORINE GAS "ESCAPES"

New York, June 2 (AP)—Approximately 150 of an estimated 1,000 persons felled by escaping chlorine gas in Brooklyn yesterday still were under treatment in hospitals today as authorities began an investigation to determine the cause of the accident.

No fatalities were reported from the greenish-yellow fumes which seeped from a 220-pound steel cylinder on a delivery truck and billowed out over a radius of half a dozen blocks in a busy downtown section.

More than 350 men, women and children were taken to seven hospitals. Most of them were allowed to go home after treatment.

Scores of others were treated at makeshift first aid stations set up in stores, gasoline stations and nearby homes.

Fall Like Flies

As the pungent fumes spread over the area, people toppled to the ground like flies, eyewitnesses said, while others were sent into violent spells of choking, coughing and vomiting.

The scene resembled pictures of battlefields, they said. Many of the victims were subway passengers, affected when the gas descended through ventilators into two subway stations. Hundreds of passengers were made ill and fled to the streets where they, too, were overcome.

Thirty-three doctors, 42 nurses and 16 Red Cross nurses' aides administered emergency treatment at the scene. A detachment of gas-masked soldiers also aided.

The gas came from one of 20 tanks on the truck, operated by John G. Golliver, 45, of Brooklyn.

Inspector Joseph Barbuto of the Fire Department Bureau of Combustibles said he had obtained summonses against Golliver and the truck owner, Lester J. Denner, charging them with transporting chlorine through the streets without a permit.

He said the truck did not have special safety equipment required under the law.

No Safety Equipment

Dr. Max Seide, medical superintendent of Cumberland hospital where 130 victims were under treatment, said that chlorine gas affected the entire respiratory tract from the lips to the lungs, with results ranging in seriousness from simple irritation to a breaking down of tissue.

As a result, he said, the area provided a fertile ground for pneumonia germs always present in the system. Special teams of physicians, he said, were treating the patients in Cumberland primarily with oxygen and sulfa drugs.

ONLY 5 GAMES SEPARATE ALL JR. LOOP TEAMS

By JACK HAND

Associated Press Sports Writer

It's only five games from top to bottom of the American league scale today as the St. Louis Browns celebrate their latest feat of "losing" themselves into first place.

When the Browns were slaughtered yesterday by Washington, 11-1, as the New York Yankees were squeezed out by Detroit, 4-3 in 16 innings, Luke Sewell's crew took over the lead by two slender percentage points. They have won four and lost three more than the champions.

Detroit's clean sweep of the Yankees series put them only one game and a half away with Philadelphia and Washington another length back.

Steve O'Neill repeated with Paul Trout and Hal Newhouse in relief efforts to shade the New Yorkers. Lefty Hal getting credit for his eighth win and third over the Yankees. Don Ross' double off reliever Steley Donald was the telling blow.

Six For Six

Stan Spence slammed six hits in six at bats to tie the modern record that teammate George Myatt and 23 other gents hold as Washington routed four Brownie hurlers with 20 blows.

George Metkovich banged a three-run homer in the ninth to assure Boston a 7-6 victory over Cleveland. Boston scored four in the first, but the Tribe had rallied for a two-run edge with two out in the last frame when Metkovich hit for all four.

Johnny Barrett was the whole show as Pittsburgh topped Brooklyn 2-1 for Rip Sewell's seventh triumph. Barrett's eighth-inning round tripper won the game and his catch of Luis Olmo's long drive in the ninth saved it. Babe Dahlgren also touched Curt Davis for a homer, although Davis gave but four hits.

The St. Louis Cardinals lengthened their national lead to three and a half games by downing Boston 4-2, while Cincinnati bowed to the Phillies, 8-7. George Munger joined mate Max Lanier in the six-win class but had to be relieved by Fred Schmidt after dislocating a finger trying to stop a liner. Kewpie Dick Barrett batted home four runs with a triple and double in getting credit for the Phils win over the Reds.

Giants Take Cubs

Danny Gardella authored his fourth homer in the seventh frame of a night game to score behind Pitcher Bill Voiselle with the big runs of the New York victory for the Polo Grounders who took fourth place on the day's results.

The Philadelphia-Chicago game in the American was postponed.

HARTFORD NIPS ALBANY TWICE

(By The Associated Press)

Hartford battling to retain the Eastern League lead held a full-game advantage over the pressing Albany Senators today.

Spotting the Utica Blue Sox three runs in the first inning of each, Hartford swept a doubleheader last night, 7-3 and 11-3, as Albany defeated Binghamton, 5-1.

The Senators scored all their runs in the first two innings.

Ernie Brickhaus had only one bad inning against the Wilkes-Barre Barons, but it was enough to cost the Elmira Pioneers a 3-2 defeat. The Barons got all their runs in the fifth when they reached Brickhaus for four of seven hits.

Joseph Bolla, Elmira shortstop, drew a three-day suspension and $25 fine from League President Thomas H. Richardson for disputing a decision by Umpire Hal Reason Tuesday night at Elmira.

The Scranton-Williamsport game was postponed.

Tonight's games: Scranton at Williamsport (2), Albany at Utica, Hartford at Binghamton, (only games scheduled).

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, June 2 (AP)—Lavis York, Rudy's kid brother, is copping a share of the family's baseball headlines. . . . Lavis, a sailor at the naval receiving station, pitched a no-hit game in a Newport News, Va., softball league last week. . . . And his batting in a hardball practice session made quite an impression on Branch Rickey, Jr., who dropped in to look over the Piedmont league park.

ONE-MINUTE SPORTS PAGE

Although the football coaches provided a microphone for Lou Little's oration on the rules, Lou has been in bed the past few days recuperating from the strain of the meeting. J. G. Taylor (alphabetical) Spink has hit the jackpot again with his brief biography of Rube Waddell in the new baseball register. . . . Babe Culnan, the Newark, N. J., matchmaker, boasts he has outdone Mike Jacobs and Herman Taylor by rounding up enough beef for an all-heavyweight fight show at Meadowbrook bowl Monday. . . . Fred Fitchey, Notre Dame's No. 1 golfer last spring, has won the No. 1 spot on the Illinois Tech team and his first assignment is to lead the Techs against Notre Dame tomorrow.

A BORNIE A DAY

Barney Mussill, Phillies' pitcher: Pronounces his name like Bob and Irish Meusel but that's the only resemblance. . . . So far he's worked only a few innings as relief hurler this spring. . . . A former Bowling Green, Ohio, college and Trenton, N. J., pitcher, Barney worked the past two seasons for the Fort Warren, Wyo., team. Art (The Great) Shires was his coach, so it isn't surprising to learn that Mussill was discharged from the Army after being gassed. . . . It wasn't the Shires' gas but a defective mustard gas container that did the damage and Barney spent three months in a hospital, almost totally blind, after encountering it.

ANGOTT SCOFFS IKE WILLIAMS PICKED TO WIN

By TED MEIER

Philadelphia, June 2 (AP)—Sammy Angott, a smartie who loves to be cast in the role of under dog, snorted today at the 2½ to 1 odds favoring Ike Williams to beat him in their 10-round bout that opens Philadelphia's outdoor boxing season at Shibe Park Tuesday night.

"I hear Williams has predicted he will knock me out in six or eight rounds," scoffed the former lightweight champion. "That's as silly as those odds."

"Yeah," chimed in Charley Jones, Angott's manager. "Why in any other city Angott would be favored."

Angott Past Prime

Be that as it may, Williams, regarded in some quarters as the unofficial lightweight (New York Penna. version) duration champion now that Bob Montgomery and Beau Jack are in the Army, ruled a heavy favorite with the betting fraternity at Broad and Locust streets.

Angott, they reason, is past his prime at 30 and on the way down while Williams is young and gained invaluable experience from his 12-round knockout defeat at the hands of Montgomery early this year. Then, too, it is pointed out Angott can't punch while Williams packs a Kayo wallop that makes him dangerous every second.

As rebuttal, Angott said only I'll do my fighting in the ring, but remember I beat Montgomery three times while Monty knocked Ike out."

Promoter Herman Taylor anticipates a crowd of more than 20,000 and a gross gate between $55,000 and $70,000.

Schesler Quits As Hornell Manager

Buffalo, N. Y., June 2 (AP)—The cellar-dwelling Hornell Pirates of the Pony baseball league are in the market today for a new manager, following resignation last night of Charles "Dutch" Schesler.

Schesler took the action "for the good of the club," he said.

Lockport took 19 hits from two Jamestown pitchers to regain the league's second place with a 13-4 win.

An eleventh inning three-run rally gave Wellsville a 7-4 triumph over Bradford.

First place Erie won, 10-6, to halt Batavia's upward climb.

Wet grounds forced postponement of the Hornell-Olean game.

Today's games: Lockport at Jamestown, Wellsville at Bradford, Olean at Hornell, Erie at Batavia.

Leaders Clash In Interstate Loop

(By The Associated Press)

All six teams of the Interstate league go back into action tonight with a first-place tie between Wilmington and Hagerstown adding zest to the schedule.

Wilmington's Blue Rocks joined Hagerstown at the top of the list last night when they defeated Allentown 10 to 3 in the only game scheduled. The Delaware team picked up a four run lead on losing Pitcher Frank Lugo's in the first inning and stayed ahead the rest of the game as Mitchell Chetkovich winning pitcher, scattered the Cardinals' nine hits.

Today's schedule: Hagerstown at Lancaster, York at Wilmington, Allentown at Trenton.

Pittsburgh, June 2 (AP) — Fred Ostermueller, veteran 36-year-old left-handed pitcher, was expected to report to the Pittsburgh Pirates in New York today, bringing the Buc mound staff up to ten.

Armstrong Favored For 11th Straight

Chicago, June 2 (AP)—Henry Armstrong, erstwhile "perpetual motion" of the prize ring and one-time featherweight, lightweight and welterweight champion, was favored to achieve the 11th straight win of his comeback career tonight against Willie Joyce of Gary, Ind.

The bout, scheduled for 10 rounds at Chicago stadium, marks the third meeting of the pair. Joyce, former Golden Gloves fighter, won a decision in the first match last year and Armstrong squared accounts in a return bout. The ex-triple title holder expects to weigh in at 140 pounds, Joyce 139.

NAZI WEST WALL FORTIFICATIONS HEAVILY BOMBED

By GLADWIN HILL

London, June 2 (AP)—The United States Air Force today made the heaviest single blow yet against the German west wall installations on the French coast, hurling upwards of 750 Fortresses and Liberators and several hundred fighters against the Pas-de-Calais department.

Before dawn, Allied fliers struck over 2,000 miles of airways from Scandinavia to France and from Hungary to Crete.

The Pas-de-Calais section, probably the most intensively bombed area in the world for its size, is a scant 25 miles across the channel from England where Gen. Eisenhower's invasion armies are massed and eager. The department extends 90 miles into the French interior and along 35 miles of the coast and contains such familiar points as Calais; the World War I debarkation port of Boulogne; the resort Le Touquet; and Cape Griz Nez, terminal for channel swims.

Crete Is Bombed

RAP heavy bombers concentrated on southwest French rail yards at Saumur, 150 miles from Paris, and the French coast last night. Mediterranean forces attacked Hungarian yards 30 miles east of Budapest at Szolnok. Mosquitos bombed a target in Denmark and the Germans reported an air attack which damaged a convoy off the west Norwegian coast. Middle East bombers attacked ports on the big Greek island of Crete. Enemy waters were mined.

The silvery daylight bombers left converging trails of vapor over the 20-mile channel and shortly afterwards a rumble of explosions echoed back to England. More formations went out around noon, including a big force of fighters which circled around Boulogne.

The daylight raiders carried the

Montgomery Reports At New Cumberland

(By The Associated Press)

Philadelphia, June 2 (AP)—Bob Montgomery, lightweight boxing champion (New York-Pennsylvania-New Jersey version), reports for induction into the Army at the New Cumberland, Pa., Reception Center today.

Montgomery, who regained his title from Beau Jack last March, said he was entering the service to prepare for "the biggest fight of my career." He is 26, married and the father of one child.

Allies second big pre-invasion aerial offensive since the first of April into its fifteenth day. Glittering in the sunlight the attacking force headed toward the much-battered stretch of French coast between Dieppe and Boulogne.

The attack on the Saumur rail yards was made by RAP heavy bombers. The Air Ministry said that night raiders also struck a military objective near the French coast but did not indicate its nature. Mosquitos simultaneously bombed an unspecified objective in Denmark. All the planes returned safely from the operations.

3 Nazi Planes Downed

In offensive sweeps into France and Germany yesterday evening RAP and RCAF fighters shot down three German planes while three planes in the attacking force were lost.

The latest blows against the continent were a continuation of an Allied aerial offensive which already was declared to have severely restricted certain German military movements behind the invasion front.

The Vichy radio said 30 persons were killed in Wednesday night's attack on Saumur, an important junction on the rail lines from central France to Nantes. The Vichy radio also said that 42 persons were killed in an attack last night on the northwest coast of France—possibly the unspecified military objective referred to in the British Air Ministry communique.

New Nazi Song Is "Watch On Channel"

(By The Associated Press)

London, June 1 (AP) — German radios apparently have given up as an outworn jest their old hymn of hate, "We Sail Against England." More realistically they now sing "Die Wacht Am Kanal" — "The Watch On The Channel." It goes like this:

We stand in the west; we are fully prepared;
Let the enemy come today.
We are on guard, our fists are hard,
We shall stand in the west at bay.
For we know we defend here with strongest hand
The frontier of our fatherland.

Sniper Mortally Wounded Lt. Brown

With the Fifth Army South of Rome, June 2 (AP)—A sniper who threw a hand grenade from ambush fatally wounded Lt. Allen Tupper Brown, 27, stepson of Gen. George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff, it was disclosed today.

(The death was announced in Washington May 30, without details.)

Lieutenant Brown was commanding a light tank detachment attacking with the American infantry against the German line south of Rome on May 29. He was standing up in the turret of his tank—a necessary procedure for armored commanders in rolling, tree-covered terrain—when the grenade was hurled.

COL. COCHRAN HERO OF BURMA BATTLES, HOME

Washington June 2 (AP)—The War Department announced today that Col. Philip G. Cochran, commanding officer of the first air commando force, which flew the British Chindits into Burma and then supplied them by air, has returned to Washington to report to Gen. H. H. Arnold, commanding general, Army air forces.

"We have only scratched the surface of the possibility of moving armies by air," said Cochran in an enthusiastic report on the bold airborne invasion of central Burma.

"They will be placed in strategic places by airplanes. One thing we did was to prove that. There were, of course, some things we didn't get done that we wanted to, but I guess that's the way it is in any operation."

Behind Jap Lines
Cochran, whose home is in Erie, Pa., was accompanied by Lt. Col. Arvid E. Olson, and Lt. Col. Grant Mahony, Vallejo, Calif., chief of its fighter section. All three will go on leave shortly.

Cochran's force operated from Feb. 1 to May 20, flying the late Maj. Gen. Orde C. Wingate's Chindits into Burma, where they operated behind the Japanese lines, slashing enemy communications and cutting the supply lines of the Jap forces. Cochran reported that for a month and a half before the glider invasion began, the fighters under Mahony and Bombers under Lt. Col. Robert T. Smith, Beverly Hills, Calif., gave the Jap air force in Burma a thorough going-over.

"We went up and looked every day," he said. "It was constant action. When the Japs came in with planes, we would slam him. We just found an old-fashioned war. High light of one day was when our boys caught the Japs on the ground and finished off 43 of them. We learned them not to come into our district. The Japs finally backed up to Heho with their planes."

Audacious Yanks
After the Chindits were landed, he said, they were not only supplied by air, but the planes became their artillery, and also evacuated the wounded.

In most instances, radio conversations in the clear, without code, said Cochran, and the movements were so quick they were usually completed before the Japs had translated the messages.

"We were so audacious," he said, "the Japs wouldn't believe it would do it."

More than once, Cochran related, the situation was so tangled that while the Chindits held one end of an air strip, the Japs had control of the other, and a liaison plane pilot, flying out wounded, might be warned to turn right as he took off, because the Japs were on the left.

POPE SAYS WAR MAY BE LONG BY TOTAL VICTORY

By PUGH MOORE

London, June 2 (AP)—Pope Pius XII, in a speech to the College of Cardinals, expressed the hope today that peace soon would appear on Rome's hills and over the whole world but added that a demand for total victory might prolong the war.

In an Italian language broadcast the Pontiff called on the victors to give hope and faith to the vanquished, and declared that "whoever would dare lift a hand against Rome would be guilty of matricide."

Speaking as contending armies surged within sight of Rome, Pope Pius said that anyone lifting a hand against the Eternal City would "have to bear a grave responsibility toward future generations."

Fear "Full Victory"
The Pontiff said that many persons fear the theory of "full victory or complete destruction" and that this "operates with a bad influence as a stimulus prolonging the war and also on those, who following their internal impulse or for realistic considerations, would be inclined to a reasonable peace."

A fear of the enemy's determination "to destroy national life down to the roots suffocates all other arguments and brings about a courage of desperation," he said.

"Those who feel this," the Pope continued, "advance as in a hypnotic sleep amid unspeakable sacrifices and compel all others to an exterminating and bloody struggle, the social, economic and spiritual consequences of which threaten to become the scourge of future times."

Hope For Rome
He said that Rome was receiving "more considerate treatment" from air raiders.

"We cherish the hope," the Pope continued, "that this more just and moderate tendency will prevail."

Fighters "Cover" Rescue Plane

Washington, June 2 (AP)—Four fighter pilots of the 13th Army Air force circled like ducks in a shooting gallery above Japanese gun positions to draw the fire of enemy while a Navy PBV plane was picking up survivors from another aircraft shot down off Bougainville.

The War department reported today that the diversion worked. The survivors were rescued and the four P-38 pilots got away uninjured, although one of them eventually took to his parachute after enemy fire had damaged his plane.

The four pilots were Captain H. M. Cleveland, of Haubstadt, Indiana; First Lt. J. S. Laurie, Long Beach, California; Second Lt. J. F. Adams, Hollis, Oklahoma, and Second Lt. R. H. Cartwright, Huntington, West Virginia.

and that the city will in all cases and at whatever cost be preserved from becoming a theater of war."

He warned, however, that "we do not hesitate to repeat once more with equal impartiality and dutiful firmness that whoever would dare lift a hand against Rome would be guilty of matricide before the present world and in front of the eternal judgment of God."

As of June 1 Young Men of 17 May again join the Air Corps Enlisted Reserve

ENLISTMENT in the Air Corps Enlisted Reserve is once more open to qualified young Americans . . . who want to win their wings on the "greatest team in the world"—an AAF air combat crew.

In April, thanks to the air-mindedness of America's youth, the AAF's personnel program was well ahead of schedule. More than enough men were in training, and in the Air Corps Enlisted Reserve, to meet scheduled quotas for combat crews.

At the same time, the need for men in other branches of the army was urgent. Therefore, opportunities to join the AAF—including the 17-year-old Enlisted Reserve—were suspended.

As the Commanding General pointed out, the suspension of enlistments in the Reserve was intended only as a temporary measure. Accordingly, effective June 1, enlistments have again been opened in the 17-year-old Enlisted Reserve in order to insure a sufficient number of qualified individuals for training this fall.

The AAF is a Team
Today, the AAF is the largest, most powerful air force in the world. Fighting side by side with the planes of our Navy and our Allies, it has won control of the air in every theatre—and has carried the war to the military and industrial hearts of Germany and Japan. It is daring the enemy to "come up and fight." Yet its losses have been less than anyone had anticipated or even dared to hope.

That all this has been accomplished is due, in large measure, to the fact that the

An Evening Thought

Habit is a cable. We weave a thread of it every day, and at last we cannot break it.—Horace Mann

Just Folks

MIRTH
In laughter, pain can be forgot.
In laughter, vanishes despair.
The laughing lad remembers not
An hour ago he stood to care.
It shortens hours, that would be long.
When lonely men can share a song.

They've tragedy enough to face
Who look on death from day to day.
At best it is a dismal place
Where swamp and jungle bar the way.

So when they're granted time to rest,
Give them the joy of song and jest.

They live the tales that will be told
When peace has found the world again.
But now they need the songs of old
And all the jokes of merry men.
Tis good for every fighting man
To set him laughing if you can.

Today's Talk

THE MARGINAL LIFE
It is a sad thing to see the light of so many useful lives go out, long before their ripening experience has had its full expression. All too often the cause has been—lack of enough leisure margin in their lives.

Thoreau once said that "a broad margin of leisure is as beautiful in a man's life as in a book." When I read this it struck me as a remarkable truth. I have always rather envied the calm and leisurely attitude of the intelligent Englishmen. Those who have taken time out—to live. Thoreau died at the very dawning of middle life—yet those years in which he lived were broad in margin.

The delightful books of David Grayson have always attracted me—for they prove a life of beautiful margins. You are always impressed with his thoughtful leisure.

White space in an advertisement has sales value quite as important as the type which embellishes it. Quite so does leisure embellish a useful life, giving to it that marginal beauty and power so important.

All the hours of a day are hours of invitation—invitation to thought, to meditation and to an appreciation of the wonders of God's creation and man's possibilities. Time moves leisurely. It goes no faster today than a thousand years ago. It isn't in a hurry. It's man who is in a hurry, who wants to get things done too quickly, who rushes when he should walk and who acts impulsively when he should think things out.

Most of the ills of mankind can be traced to faulty and careless eating—in too many cases eating with too great speed. This wonderful bodily machine of ours is the most intricate and perfectly constructed of all the creations of the Creator. He never meant that it should be abused.

The very heaven above us, spotted with its stars, is the everlasting margin to this earth of ours. What a drab thing it would be without it! There is leisure even among the stars. They carry about them the story of time and space.

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "The Art of Burying Defects."

ALL-OUT DRIVE ON BIAK OPENS IN SOUTH PACIFIC

By ROBERT EUNSON

Advanced Allied Headquarters, New Guinea, June 2 (AP)—Massing of American reinforcements for an all-out assault on tough Biak island in the Schoutens and pincer moves aimed at trapped Japanese on two other fronts were announced today.

Under Seventh Fleet guns and without enemy aerial or naval interference, more Yanks landed Tuesday at Biak, enemy air base in Dutch New Guinea's Geelvink bay, who was invaded Saturday. As they moved up from the Bonek beachhead, aircraft and ground fighters hammered at Japanese sniper and mortar positions on ridges commanding the beach for several miles and the coastal road leading to the island's three air-dromes.

Allies Advance

The field commander would not order a further advance on Mokmer, the nearest airfield, until these enemy nests were eliminated. American patrols have been blocked two miles from the airfield.

On Bougainville island, in the northern Solomons, Allied units landed behind Japanese lines Tuesday at the mouth of the Tekiki river, in the southern sweep of Empress Augusta bay, on the island's west coast. Supporting naval gunboats and attack planes neutralized opposing shore batteries.

The switch-back move took the Allies seven miles southeast of the Torokina river which the Allies crossed in January in extending their original beachhead. The two forces thereby clamped between them part of thousands of Japanese still resisting on Bougainville.

A second pincer movement against entrapped Japanese was narrowed when Australian soldiers, advancing northwest along the British New Guinea coastline, occupied Guru village and Mulu harbor without contacting the enemy.

The advance closed to approximately 200 miles the stretch of by-passed coastline between this position and other Allied-held points southeast of Aitape. Within that vise are several thousand Japanese.

THINK TURKEY MAY ENTER WAR

London, June 2 (AP)—June, perhaps the most fateful month of the war—began with an air attack on the Germans' channel front defenses so terrific it shook the English coast, while at the opposite end of Hitler's uneasy European siege stand, Marshal Tito ordered his Yugoslavs into an all out attack, and Turkey was reported likely to move into war at the Allies' invasion signal.

Marshal Tito's order of the day called for a decisive assault "particularly now when the last blow of the Red Army and Anglo-American Allied troops is approaching," and his communique announced capture of an enemy base in Dalmatia and hard blows along the whole Nazi line.

Across the murky channel where thunderstorms added to the explosive fury of the Allied air onslaught on the Nazis' front line, the Germans tightened their control of all France to an active operations basis.

The latest move in breaking up all gatherings was a Vichy radio announcement that all horse racing had been cancelled "owing to the present situation."

An evening news cartoonist pictured England as so crowded with U. S. troops that several were falling off a cliff into the sea.

Praying For Victory And Data On Foe Are Eisenhower Beliefs

By WES GALLAGHER

Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Force, England, June 2 (AP)—Two books on the neatly-kept desk of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower in his office at supreme headquarters indicate a philosophy of praying for victory and know thy enemy go hand-in-hand.

The books are the soldiers' and sailors' prayer book, and one dealing with Hitler's generals.

The office of the supreme commander, which sees very little of him these days, is filled with mementos of his past campaigns, as well as countless secrets for which the Germans would sacrifice many divisions of men to gain.

It is a rectangular room, with a big fireplace, two small tables, and a large desk in a corner between two windows.

Keeps Orderly Desk

Except for a memo or two and the two books, the desk is kept as orderly as the supreme commander's mind.

Lining the walls are pictures of United Nations leaders, addressed to "Ike." One of the key positions is held by Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff of the U. S. Army, and across the picture is written "with full confidence and high regard, etc."

One of the oldest pictures is from President Roosevelt, reading "for Maj. Gen. Dwight Eisenhower from his friend, Franklin D. Roosevelt." Prime Minister Winston Church-

ill's picture is merely signed "Churchill."

Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur William Tedder wrote, "To General Ike from one of his team." There are other pictures, including Lt. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., Admiral Sir Andrew Cunningham, and various military and political figures.

Photos of Rommel

There is one from Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek. There are also copies of various important documents. The most important of these is the shortest—Roosevelt's cable to Stalin informing him of Eisenhower's appointment as commander in chief of the western front invasion force. It was sent from Cairo.

On nearby tables are pictures of the General's mother, his wife and son, and his dog, Telex, now in British quarantine.

On the mantelpiece is a series of pictures of a man Eisenhower has never met, given him by his intelligence staff in Africa. When the supreme commander sees this person in the flesh the war will probably be over.

The pictures are of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel.

There is a Telegraph Hill in Winchester, England, and another in San Francisco.

1,000 AFFECTED WHEN CHLORINE GAS "ESCAPES"

New York, June 2 (AP)—Approximately 150 of an estimated 1,000 persons felled by escaping chlorine gas in Brooklyn yesterday still were under treatment in hospitals today as authorities began an investigation to determine the cause of the accident.

No fatalities were reported from the greenish-yellow fumes which seeped from a 220-pound steel cylinder on a delivery truck and billowed out over a radius of half a dozen blocks in a busy downtown section.

More than 350 men, women and children were taken to seven hospitals. Most of them were allowed to go home after treatment.

Scores of others were treated at makeshift first aid stations set up in stores, gasoline stations and nearby homes.

Fall Like Flies

As the pungent fumes spread over the area, people toppled to the ground like flies, eyewitnesses said, while others were sent into violent spells of choking, coughing and vomiting.

The scene resembled pictures of battlefields, they said.

Many of the victims were subway passengers, affected when the gas descended through ventilators into two subway stations. Hundreds of passengers were made ill and fled to the streets where they, too, were overcome.

Thirty-three doctors, 42 nurses and 16 Red Cross nurses' aides administered emergency treatment at the scene. A detachment of gas-masked soldiers also aided.

The gas came from one of 20 tanks on the truck, operated by John G. Golliver, 45, of Brooklyn.

Inspector Joseph Barbuto of the Fire Department Bureau of Combustibles said he had obtained summonses against Golliver and the truck owner, Lester J. Denner, charging them with transporting chlorine through the streets without a permit.

He said the truck did not have special safety equipment required under the law.

No Safety Equipment

Dr. Max Seide, medical superintendent of Cumberland hospital where 130 victims were under treatment, said that chlorine gas affected the entire respiratory tract from the lips to the lungs, with results ranging in seriousness from simple irritation to a breaking down of tissue.

As a result, he said, the area provided a fertile ground for pneumonia germs always present in the system. Special teams of physicians, he said, were treating the patients in Cumberland primarily with oxygen and sulfa drugs.

DRAFT BOARD VACANCIES ARE FILLED TODAY

Notice of confirmation by President Roosevelt of two recommendations by Governor Martin for appointments to fill vacancies in the Selective Service personnel in the New Oxford district has been received here.

Albert E. Weaver, former Burgess of McSherrystown, has been appointed as a member of the New Oxford draft board to fill the position resigned recently by E. L. Golden, Bonneauville. Mr. Golden resigned because of ill health after serving as board secretary since the draft board was set up more than three years ago.

Richard A. Brown, Esq., has been appointed as government appeal agent for the district to succeed District Attorney J. Francis Yake, Jr., who resigned because under present Selective Service regulations the offices of government appeal agent and district attorney have been held to be "incompatible."

New Assignment For Yake

Mr. Weaver, who was McSherrystown Burgess for 12 years, is a part owner of the Penn Box company at McSherrystown. The other members of Draft Board No. 1, are William J. Yingling and P. Lawrence Hoover. Mr. Yingling is the board chairman.

Mr. Yake's resignation as government appeal agent, a position he held since the draft board was set up, was accepted by the state Selective Service solely because it was held to be incompatible with his duties as district attorney. The state office then requested him to serve as associate adviser to registrants in the New Oxford district so that the board would continue to have the benefit of his knowledge of regulations. That new appointment has been made by Governor Martin.

COL. COCHRAN HERO OF BURMA BATTLES, HOME

Washington June 2 (AP)—The War Department announced today that Col. Philip G. Cochran, commanding officer of the first air commando force, which flew the British Chindits into Burma and then supplied them by air, has returned to Washington to report to Gen. H. H. Arnold, commanding general, Army air forces.

"We have only scratched the surface of the possibility of moving armies by air," said Cochran in an enthusiastic report on the bold airborne invasion of central Burma.

"They will be placed in strategic places by airplanes. One thing we did was to prove that there were, of course, some things we didn't get done that we wanted to, but I guess that's the way it is in any operation."

Behind Jap Lines

Cochran, whose home is in Erie, Pa., was accompanied by Lt. Col. Arvid E. Olson, and Lt. Col. Grant Mahony, Vallejo, Calif., chief of its fighter section. All three will go on leave shortly.

Cochran's force operated from Feb. 1 to May 26, flying the late Maj. Gen. Orde C. Wingate's Chindits into Burma, where they operated behind the Japanese lines, slashing enemy communications and cutting the supply lines of the Jap forces.

Cochran reported that for a month and a half before the glider invasion began, the fighters under Mahony and Bombers under Lt. Col. Robert T. Smith, Beverly Hills, Calif., gave the Jap air force in Burma a thorough going-over.

"We went up and looked every day," he said. "It was constant action. When the Japs came in with planes, we would slam him. We just found an old-fashioned war. High-light of one day was when our boys caught the Japs on the ground and finished off 43 of them. We learned that they were not coming into our district. The Japs finally backed up to Heho with their planes."

Audacious Yanks

After the Chindits were landed, he said, they were not only supplied by air, but the planes became their artillery, and also evacuated the wounded.

In most instances, radio conversations were in the clear, without code, said Cochran, and the movements were so quick they were usually completed before the Japs had translated the messages.

"We were so audacious," he said, "the Japs wouldn't believe we would do it."

More than once, Cochran related, the situation was so tangled that while the Chindits held one end of an air strip, the Japs had control of the other, and a liaison plane pilot, flying out wounded, might be warned to turn right as he took off, because the Japs were on the left.

POPE SAYS WAR MAY BE LONG BY TOTAL VICTORY

By PUGH MOORE

London, June 2 (AP)—Pope Pius XII, in a speech to the College of Cardinals, expressed the hope today that peace soon would appear on Rome's hills and over the whole world but added that a demand for total victory might prolong the war.

In an Italian language broadcast the Pontiff called on the victors to give hope and faith to the vanquished, and declared that "whoever would dare lift a hand against Rome would be guilty of matricide."

Speaking as contending armies surged within sight of Rome, Pope Pius said that anyone lifting a hand against the Eternal City would "have to bear a grave responsibility toward future generations."

Fear "Full Victory"

The Pontiff said that many persons fear the theory of "full victory or complete destruction" and that this "operates with a bad influence as a stimulus prolonging the war and also on those who follow their internal impulse or fer realistic considerations, would be inclined to a reasonable peace."

A fear of the enemy's determination "to destroy national life down to the roots suffocates all other arguments and brings about a courage of desperation," he said.

"Those who feel this," the Pope continued, "advance as in a hypnotic sleep amid unspeakable sacrifices and compel all others to an extenuating and bloody struggle, the social, economic and spiritual consequences of which threaten to become the scourge of future times."

Hope For Rome

He said that Rome was receiving "more considerate treatment" from air raiders.

Fighters "Cover" Rescue Plane

Washington, June 2 (AP)—Four fighter pilots of the 13th Army Air force circled like ducks in a shooting gallery above Japanese gun positions to draw the fire of enemy while a Navy PBV plane was picking up survivors from another aircraft shot down off Bougainville.

The War department reported today that the diversion worked. The survivors were rescued and the four P-38 pilots got away uninjured, although one of them eventually took to his parachute after enemy fire had damaged his plane.

The four pilots were Captain H. M. Cleveland, of Haubstadt, Indiana; First Lt. J. S. Laurie, Long Beach, California; Second Lt. J. F. Adams, Hollis, Oklahoma, and Second Lt. R. H. Cartwright, Huntington, West Virginia.

and that the city will in all cases and at whatever cost be preserved from becoming a theater of war."

He warned, however, that "we do not hesitate to repeat once more with equal impartiality and dutiful firmness that whoever would dare lift a hand against Rome would be guilty of matricide before the present world and in front of the eternal judgment of God."

As of June 1 Young Men of 17 May again join the Air Corps Enlisted Reserve

ENLISTMENT in the Air Corps Enlisted Reserve is once more open to qualified young Americans . . . who want to win their wings on the "greatest team in the world"—an AAF air combat crew.

In April, thanks to the air-mindedness of America's youth, the AAF's personnel program was well ahead of schedule. More than enough men were in training, and in the Air Corps Enlisted Reserve, to meet scheduled quotas for combat crews.

At the same time, the need for men in other branches of the army was urgent. Therefore, opportunities to join the AAF—including the 17-year-old Enlisted Reserve—were suspended.

As the Commanding General pointed out, the suspension of enlistments in the Reserve was intended only as a temporary measure. Accordingly, effective June 1, enlistments have again been opened in the 17-year-old Enlisted Reserve in order to insure a sufficient number of qualified individuals for training this fall.

The AAF is a Team

Today, the AAF is the largest, most powerful air force in the world. Fighting side by side with the planes of our Navy and our Allies, it has won control of the air in every theatre—and has carried the war to the military and industrial hearts of Germany and Japan. It is daring the enemy to "come up and fight." Yet its losses have been less than anyone had anticipated or even dared to hope.

That all this has been accomplished is due, in large measure, to the fact that the AAF air combat crew is more than just planes and men. The combat crew is a team . . . the greatest fighting team the world has ever seen . . . with Gunners, Bombardiers, Navigators and Pilots flying and fighting together, to win.

And any young man who wants AAF wings should keep this ideal of teamwork uppermost in his mind. It is the key to AAF successes in battle. It will be the key to his own success in the AAF.

If you want to fly with the AAF, you may apply at any AAF Examining Board for enrollment in the Air Corps Enlisted Reserve. Upon passing the preliminary qualifying physical and mental tests, you will become a member of the U. S. Army Air Forces—on inactive duty. This means that you will not be called for training until you have reached your 18th birthday. If you are at work you may remain on the job until you are 18. If you are in high school, you may elect to finish the semester you are in when you become 18. If you are a high school graduate, not over 17 years and 9 months, you may elect to take advantage of the Army Specialized Training Reserve Program, which provides free college training for men approaching military age.

When called, you will first be given "basic" training. During this period, you will take "aptitude" tests to determine whether you will be classified for training as Gunner, Bombardier, Navigator or Pilot.

Your Place on the AAF Team

If you have an outstandingly high aptitude rating for a particular position, you may be given an opportunity to compete for the classification that you prefer. But it is important to remember that all jobs on the AAF team are vitally important . . . that air combat crews not only are chosen from the very cream of the nation's young men, but that each seat in every plane must be filled by the man best qualified to fill it.

Gunners go into actual combat as non-commissioned officers. In addition to being the world's best aerial marksmen, gunners may qualify as trained technicians—in radio, armament or airplane mechanics. Pilots, Navigators, and Bombardiers are graduated from training as 2nd Lieutenants or Flight Officers.

Your job, and your rank, in the AAF will depend upon your own demonstrated abilities. For full information as to qualifying for the Air Corps Enlisted Reserve, see your nearest AAF Examining Board or local Army Recruiting Station.

121 GRADUATED AT HIGH SCHOOL ON WEDNESDAY

(The cast of characters in the "American On Wings of Song" will be found on page eight.)

The 121 members of the graduating class of the Gettysburg high school were challenged to dedicate themselves "to the service of your nation, humanity and your God" in an address Wednesday evening by Dr. William F. Quillian, Jr., head of the department of philosophy at Gettysburg college, after the presentation of a student pageant, "America on Wings of Song," at the high school.

After Doctor Quillian's address on "The Roots of Democracy" the members of the class were presented for their diplomas by G. W. Lefever, high school principal. The diplomas were awarded by Superintendent L. C. Keefe.

The pageant, written and arranged by three seniors—Mary Clare Myers, Barbara Cline and Anne Faber—traced the development of the history of United States from the landing of the Pilgrims to World War II.

Favorite Songs

Period songs were sung—sometimes by appropriately costumed characters appearing on the stage back of a transparent curtain and at others by an off-stage choir of 53 voices. The inspiration of typically American music and its reflection of the growth and development and ideals of the new nation were pointed out by student narrators in conversation with the Spirit of Music at the front of the stage as a procession of Pilgrims, Indians, veterans of four wars, negroes and other representative American groups appeared in the lightly curtained background.

Choruses and soloists presented such selections as "Indian Love Call," "Wagon Wheels," "Swanee River," "Deep River," "Dixie," "O' Black Joe," "Battle Hymn of the Republic," "Tenting Tonight," "World War I songs and the popular songs of this war including the "Air Corps Song," "Anchors Aweigh," "This Is the Army," "Mr. Jones" and the "Marine Hymn."

The accompanist was Miss Mary Clare Myers. The choral work was under the direction of Richard B. Shade. Miss Ruth McIlhenny directed the pageant.

Eternal Ideals

After the pageant, the seniors put on their gray caps and gowns and entered the auditorium to a procession by the high school orchestra under the direction of Edwin S. Longenecker.

Early in his address, Doctor Quillian referred to the current tendency to question "the ideals of personal behavior and national policy which we have long held." He declared: "When the fear of critical public opinion is all that supports our moral standards, it is only a short step to that anarchism where there is no law and everyone is a law unto himself."

"Our ideals of democracy are eternal. Liberty, freedom and equality give expression to the idea of the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man. Those ideals are firmly rooted in the teaching of the prophets, and of Jesus Christ. To discover this insight into the spiritual background will be to acquire a deeper understanding of our belief in the brotherhood of man. We will recognize the idea that all men are of equal worth in the eyes of the Heavenly Father and are entitled to equal opportunity among their fellowmen and to protection from abuses of power."

Faith in God Needed

"We will be reminded unmistakably that the ideal of the rights of men is not limited to any class or nationality and we will see that our ideals are not will-o-the-wisp, temporary things but are grounded on the structure of reality."

"Our personal and national ideals will not long survive if they are not grounded in a faith in God—if we lose the roots from which they spring," he concluded. "But your faith in God as the guarantor of the ideals of our democracy."

Names Honor Group

The exercises closed with the benediction by the Rev. Charles K. Gibson, Gettysburg Methodist pastor and the class's baccalaureate preacher.

Before the presentation of diplomas Mr. Lefever announced honors and prizes. He listed these seniors in the "Scholastic Honor Group":

Jeanne Bucher, Richard Culp, Anne Faber, Elinor Geyer, William Green, Joe Hanawalt, John Horner, Virginia Kendelehr, Ruth Anna Kime, Catherine Lewis, Eloise McCleaf, Elyse McCleaf, Treva Munshour, Mary Clare Myers, Betty Jo Naugle, Mollie Rae Rice, Dorothy Sanders, Luther Slifer, Elizabeth Small, Gladys Smith, Fred Stoner, Darlene Trostle, Emily Weigle, Charlotte Winebrenner and Lillian Yingling.

Other prizes listed by him included: The annual DAR essay prize, Jeanne Bucher and Emily Weigle; Alumni four-year prizes, Darlene Trostle and Elizabeth Small.

In Sailor Uniform

He listed these seniors as members of the National Honor society: Margaret Bable, Doris Berkheimer, Barbara Cline, Anne Faber, William Green, Fred Griffin, Eloise McCleaf, Elyse McCleaf, Mary Clare Myers, Katherine Robert,

Speaks Sunday

George E. Quillian, supreme councilman of the Loyal Order of Moose, was the speaker Sunday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock when the local lodge of the L.O.M. initiated a class of 210 candidates. The ceremonies will be held in the lodge home on York street.

Dorothy Sanders, Elizabeth Small, Gladys Smith, Darlene Trostle and Charlotte Winebrenner.

Families and friends of the seniors filled the auditorium. The new high school service Honor Roll was on the stage.

One senior, Robert Lawrence Schroyer, returned to Gettysburg from Navy duty to receive his diploma in the white summer uniform of a Second Class Seaman. Three other members of the class, Wilbur Albert Rudisill, Jr., Richard Armor Sites and Samuel Brown Weaver also are in the armed forces but could not be here for the graduation exercises.

CITES PROGRESS BY PHYSICIANS IN HEALTH CARE

Physicians, despite their conservatism, are making much progress in solving the problems caused by the high cost of medical care and the unequal manner in which it falls on the individual, L. H. Perry, Harrisburg, managing editor of the Pennsylvania Medical Journal, told nearly 100 members of the service clubs of the town and the county medical association at a joint meeting in the Hotel Gettysburg Monday evening.

Speaking on the Murray-Wagner-Dingell bill for amending social security to cover medical and hospital expenses as well as other forms of care, Mr. Perry outlined four main objections to the bill and then reported on plans of doctors to solve the "main problem which is tackled by the bill—that for most people severe sickness is not only a human, but a financial catastrophe as well. The problem is to spread the cost of medicine so that the cost will not be a burden on the individual."

Objections To Bill

His objections to the bill, he said, are that "there is no assurance that it will improve health or raise the standards of medical care and there is every reason to fear that it will lower both; it is compulsory, for the people concerned must pay their share whether they participate in the program or not, while it is not compulsory on the doctors; the bill is totalitarian in that it places three billion dollars in the hands of the surgeon-general, gives him the right to say who shall be specialists, and what doctor the individual shall go to and places no power over him to check the surgeon-general if he should decide to misuse his powers; and it makes responsibility for the care of the individual patient the collective responsibility of all doctors in the area, rather than continuing the practice of individual responsibility of the doctor to his patient."

Join In Discussion

In addition to the Blue Cross and similar insurance plans for paying hospital bills, the medical associations in 15 states have started plans for taking care of medical expenses as well as the hospitalization plans, he asserted. Such a plan, in operation in western Pennsylvania at the present time, already has 15,000 subscribers, and is rapidly expanding, he said. Such plans, because they are not compulsory, totalitarian, are individual and will raise medical standards, are the proper solution for the problem, he asserted.

In a discussion on the subject following the talk Dr. Robert A. Bream, assistant county superintendent of schools; Dr. Henry Stewart, and Dr. C. Harold Johnson and the Rev. Dr. Dwight F. Putnam were among those presenting views on the subject.

Dr. Frederick Tilberg, president of the Rotary club, presided at the session at which Mrs. Henrietta Blocher, president of the Soroptimist club; Hugh C. McIlhenny, president of the Lions club, and Dr. Raymond F. Sheely, president of the county Medical Society, were introduced.

Local Officer Is Given Promotion

Henry W. A. Hanson, Jr., eldest son of Dr. Henry W. A. Hanson, president of Gettysburg college, and Mrs. Hanson, has been promoted to the general staff at Chanute Field, Rantoul, Ill., with the rank of major, according to word received here Thursday.

His younger brother, Capt. Robert D. Hanson is attached to an anti-tank unit at Fort Dix, New Jersey.

Both Capt. Robert Hanson and Major Henry Hanson graduated from the Dickinson school of law.

HOLD REUNION

Horace E. Smiley, Baltimore St.; Edmund W. Thomas, East Middle street; and Walter D. Sterner, Baltimore, formerly of Gettysburg R. D., held a Memorial Day reunion of their own Tuesday at Mr. Smiley's home. The three left together to enlist in the Fourth U. S. Infantry June 4, 1917. Sterner is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Sterner, who lived on the former Buttonwood Stock farm.

County Youths, Topographers In Italy, Use Machine Made By Boche, Improved By Yanks

Two soldiers from Adams county are among the members of a United States Army Engineer Topographical unit in the Mediterranean theater of war (Italy) who are using tons of machinery, invented by the Germans, to turn out maps that will guide the Allies on their march to Berlin, Allied Force Headquarters in the Mediterranean theater revealed today.

Included in the unit, now working in a huge warehouse that once housed tons of supplies, are Sgt. Joseph H. Redding, Littlestown, and Pfc. Charles A. Menges, East Berlin.

Food Warehouse

When these engineers arrived in North Africa and took over the site they now occupy, the buildings were full of foodstuffs and other goods. The soldiers went to work, moved out the foodstuffs, and moved in their huge machines. But the birds that had been nesting in the rafters remain and add a very unwarlike note to the invasion blueprint that is being drawn below.

Part of this printing plant is not unlike a large lithograph reproduction plant in the United States. The majority of the maps are prepared by offset lithography and the largest camera and the largest press in North Africa speed the work.

The men who are doing this highly important duty are almost entirely veteran lithographers with many years of civilian experience behind them. The negative retouching, cutting, and wet plate work all require highly-skilled men and these soldiers meet the requirements to such a degree that supervision is kept at a minimum and a premium placed on individual responsibility.

Most difficult part of the lithography process at this plant is combating the weather. The absolute accuracy that this work demands is dependent to a degree upon an even temperature, because of the wide variations temperature can cause in chemical reactions, negative

MRS. LOEWEN SPEAKS SUNDAY AT FAIRFIELD

Mrs. Helen Loewen, recorder of deeds of Dauphin county, was the principal speaker at the Memorial Day services held at Fairfield Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Loewen used as her theme the challenge given her recently by a wounded soldier returned from the battlefield when he said: "Tell the people that their spirit must back us up." "Back of this spirit is the same challenge as was felt at Valley Forge and at Gettysburg, and more recently at Bataan," she said. Mrs. Loewen paid special tribute to those of the rural areas who "seem to have a deeper feeling about the things that are close to God and nature" and a deep consciousness of the sacrifice necessary to win the war and the peace.

Special Music Given

To the women of our land she gave a particular challenge to serve more and more in whatever capacity that they are able to serve and to do it with courage and optimism for it is that that "keeps the spirit alive." To illustrate, Mrs. Loewen used the stories of Jennie Wade and of Molly Pitcher.

In concluding her remarks, Mrs. Loewen begged for a united spirit and effort on the part of all the people. She pointed out that a nation "falls not from losing battles so much as from a disrupted and disunited spirit within. Rome, a great military power, for example, fell when her people lost courage and unity."

The program included music by the Fairfield high school band, revivified by Rodney Harbaugh; invocation by the Rev. John H. Ehrhart, pastor of the Fairfield Reformed church; reading of Lincoln's Gettysburg address by the Rev. George S. Stoneback, pastor of the Fairfield Mennonite church; solos by Arthur Roth, accompanied by Miss Helen McCleaf; reading by Miss Ethel Janet Allison; taps by Miss Janet Musselman and benediction by the Rev. John C. McCune, pastor of the Zion Lutheran church, Fairfield.

MORE THAN 200 ALUMNI ENJOY ANNUAL MEET

Re-election of most of the former officers of the Alumni association of Gettysburg high school for another year was announced Monday evening at the annual commencement get-together and dance in the high school gymnasium. The crowd was estimated at more than 200 persons.

Alumni scholarship awards were presented to the two top honor students of the graduating class, Misses Darlene Trostle and Elizabeth Small. The presentation was made by Milton R. Remmel of the class of 1894.

The recently dedicated high school service Honor Roll was on display during the evening. Melvin Little, an alumni member of the student-alumni committee that arranged for the erection of the board, presented Dr. Robert A. Bream, high school alumnus and assistant county superintendent of schools, who paid tribute to the men and women from the local high school now serving in the armed forces.

Officers Re-named

President J. Herbert Raymond was re-elected head of the association; LeRoy H. Winebrenner, re-elected first vice president; second vice president, Fred Griffin, president of the senior class; treasurer, J. Herbert Weikert, re-elected; secretary, Miss Esther Tipton, and assistant secretary, Miss Rosa Armor. The results of the election were announced by Carl S. Menchey, chairman of the nominating committee.

The program opened with piano selections by Richard B. Shade, supervisor of music in the public schools. Aviation Cadet Ross Sachs sang two solos accompanied by Mrs. Eva Sachs Orwig and Miss Shirley Ellis of Gettysburg college presented acrobatic dance numbers. Her accompanist was Mr. Shade.

President Raymond officially welcomed the more than 70 members of the graduating class to membership in the alumni organization and introduced Fred Griffin, class president. Presentation of the $15 and $10 alumni scholarship prizes followed by Mr. Remmel.

Roy Dougherty

Patricia Power, editor-in-chief of the high school year book, the "Cannon-aid," and George Fair, business manager for the annual, presented two copies of the book to the association for permanent files.

Roy Dougherty, Reading, member of the class of 1896 and one of the founders of the alumni association, reminisced on his high-school days.

Members of reunion classes were presented. Superintendent L. C. Keefe spoke briefly and after violin selections by Henry M. Scharf, accompanied by Mr. Shade, the exercises closed with the singing of one stanza of the "Star Spangled Banner."

Dancing Enjoyed

The grand march was led by Patricia Power and Aviation Cadet Ross Sachs and dancing followed to the music of Zel Smith and his seven-piece orchestra from Waynesboro. Refreshments were served in the school cafeteria.

A number of members of the Valley Forge Military Academy band, here for college commencement and the Memorial Day exercises today, were special guests at the dance.

WHITE HOUSE SENDS LETTER TO MR. MYERS

Penrose Myers, Oak Ridge, Gettysburg's oldest merchant, was honored Sunday by a letter of congratulation from President Roosevelt on the occasion of the jeweler's 86th birthday.

Mr. Myers, for 68 years owner and manager of his jewelry store on Baltimore street, was working at the store Sunday afternoon about 3 o'clock when a special delivery letter from the White House was handed to him.

The letter, sent May 27, follows: "Dear Mr. Myers: The President has heard that on next Sunday you will celebrate your 86th birthday and he asks me to extend to you his very best wishes. He hopes the anniversary will bring you many happy memories of a long life and that all your days will be filled with peace and happiness."

The letter was signed by William D. Hassett, secretary to the President.

Another birthday greeting of which Mr. Myers is proud is a hand-painted card sent him from Toronto, Canada, by A. A. Stewart, who met the local jeweler here many years ago while visiting Gettysburg and the battlefield. A letter, accompanying the painting says: "Many happy returns of May 28th to our dear friend, Penrose Myers. May his days be long in the land God has given us." The birthday card pictures Mr. Myers, senior, telling young Penrose Myers on the day after the battle of Gettysburg that all the ruin of that day would pass away and that some day the Gettysburg battlefield would look like the illustration. The picture has Mr. Myers Sr., garbed in Lincolnian hat and coat, pointing out to young Penrose a battle scene, and another view showing the battlefield laid out in park-like formation as it is today.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Shultz, Orrtanna, have received word their son, Pvt. Donald E. Shultz, has arrived safely in England. A brother, Nelson, is stationed in Italy.

Local Cadets In Legion Photograph

One of the six photographs illustrating an interesting article in the June edition of "The American Legion Magazine" shows a group of aviation cadets entering the women's division building at Gettysburg college.

The illustration appears in an article titled "Tention, Joe College!" written by Merle A. Quait.

Other illustrations in the piece show Army and Navy trainees at Notre Dame, Chicago, Harvard, Yale and College of the City of New York.

Keller, pastor of St. John's Lutheran church, Baltimore, was inducted as new president of the Evangelical Lutheran Synod of Maryland Thursday afternoon at the concluding sessions of the 125th annual convention of the synod held Wednesday and today at the Church of Abiding Presence of the Gettysburg Lutheran Theological seminary.

The new president, elected Wednesday morning, succeeds the Rev. Raymond C. Sorrick, Silver Springs, Maryland, to the presidency. Officers re-elected at Wednesday's sessions included the Rev. Frank Pife, Baltimore, secretary; Virgil Doub, Middletown, treasurer, and the Rev. William Minnick, Baltimore, statistician.

Three graduates of the Lutheran seminary here this spring and one of last year's graduates from the local seminary were ordained this afternoon at the synodical sessions.

Dr. Hanson Speaks

They were James E. Ackerman, Washington, who will be pastor of a California church; Gordon E. Folkemer, Baltimore, to be pastor at St. Matthew's church, York; W. Leigh Bell, Baltimore, to become pastor of St. John's church, Hagerstown, all of whom graduated this year, and Arthur C. Boyer, assistant pastor of the Waynesboro Lutheran church, who graduated last year.

The Rev. Mr. Folkemer is the third member of his family to be ordained by the Maryland Synod, with his twin brothers, the Rev. L. D. Folkemer, pastor of a Lutheran church at Linthicum Heights, Baltimore, and the Rev. C. W. Folkemer, pastor of a Lansdowne, Maryland, Lutheran church, both being ordained four years ago.

Dr. Knobel Speaks

Gettysburg college and similar Christian colleges throughout the United States will "come out of these times stronger than ever," Dr. Henry W. A. Hanson, president of the local college, told the synod in an address on "The Future of Christian Colleges" delivered Thursday morning. He told of "excellent spirit" shown by the air cadets during their stay at the college here and spoke of the 17-year-old Army men to be trained at the college.

Dr. Frederick R. Knobel, president of the United Lutheran Church in America, was the speaker Wednesday afternoon. He told of a new constitution being prepared to bring together the 18 Lutheran bodies in the United States and told the delegates that "great progress" is being made in the inter-Lutheran relationship program.

He also urged the pastors to plan for the return of military and industrial members who have moved out of the parishes to become members of the armed forces or to take jobs in war-industries.

Miss Francis Dystinger, Washington, chairman of the Inner-Mission committee, reported that plans are underway to hold vacation Bible schools in the colored sections of Washington, a new program for the committee.

Elected as lay delegates to the bi-annual convention of the United Lutheran church to be held at Minneapolis next October were: Carl M. Distler, Baltimore; Harry B. Fogle, Taneytown; Paul Folkemer, Baltimore; M. P. Moller, Hagerstown; Carl L. Schaeffer, Westminster; George S. Yost, Baltimore; Virgil Doub, Middletown; A. M. Cooper, Washington; Albert Hardwick, Baltimore, and William E. Zschiesche, Baltimore.

Named to fill vacancies on a number of boards were: The Rev. Dr. B. C. Ritz, Waynesboro, and M. P. Moller, Hagerstown, to the Gettysburg Lutheran Theological seminary board; the Rev. G. H. Seller, Jefferson, Maryland, and N. E. Rowe, to the board of Tressler Orphans school; the Rev. W. P. Ard, Hagerstown, and E. O. Sloop, Hagerstown; the Rev. Fred R. Seibel, Silver Run, and Dr. Margaret B. Ballard, Baltimore, committee on Christian Education; the Rev. R. C. Sorrick, committee

LEAPS SAFELY FROM BURNING SHIP IN SOUTH

Sgt. Curtis L. Deatrick, 19-year-old son of Mrs. Amy Deatrick, Breidenbaugh apartments, Carlisle street, was one of six members of the crew of a medium bomber who parachuted to safety last Saturday when their ship caught fire at 5,000 feet in a flight from Barksdale Field, Shreveport, Louisiana, and crashed in flames.

Sergeant Deatrick, known to his friends here as "Laddie," was radio-gunner on the bomber and reported the ship's plight to the ground as the "ball out" bell rang with smoke pouring around him and as other members of the crew prepared to follow orders to parachute from the doomed bomber.

In a letter to his mother, received Thursday, Sergeant Deatrick said he escaped with the loss of a tooth and some minor cuts and bruises about the face, received when he was struck by a section of his opening chute.

Told To Bail Out

A part of his official report on the crash, from which all members of the crew escaped without serious injury, follows:

"I was practicing (with the guns) in the upper turret for a while and then went back to the tail guns and proceeded to power operate them... until I was told there was engine trouble and... got orders to return to the front of the ship. I then started to the front of the ship to the radio compartment... smoke was pouring from it. The bombs were gone and the bomb-bay doors were open... The engineer in the radio compartment had his chute on and was ready to go. He told me the trouble and said I should get my chute on and bail out."

"The navigator was in the aisle with his chute on also. The smoke was still very heavy so I got into my seat and opened my air vent so I could breathe. I turned on my transmitter and got ready to radio the situation. At this time the 'ball out' bell was ringing and the navigator was urging me to bail out but I motioned for him to go on."

Engine Exploded

"I sent the ground stations call signals and the ship numbers about five times and then sent 'ship on fire' twice. I then put on my chute. 'The engineer and the navigator had already bailed out of the bomb-bay and I thought the gunner had jumped out of the waist window. I took off my earphones and cap, yelled 'Go long' to the co-pilot and started back. I could only see the sparks flying around me and had to feel my way back to the bomb-bay. I could not breath so I just stuck my left arm through the leg straps of my chute, pulled up tight and jumped. My chute was very loose."

"As the chute opened part of it hit me in the mouth and the leg straps tore off my watch. What a jolt! I saw three chutes opened on one side of me and then 'sweat it out' until the pilot and co-pilot jumped. They did. The right engine exploded right after my pilot left the ship and crashed right away."

Brother "Missing"

Deatrick landed in a small tree "with my tooth and watch gone" and soon joined the other members of the crew and spread out chutes in a clearing for a signal of their location. One member of the crew—with an ankle injury—required first aid. They made splints and a stretcher.

Deatrick volunteered for Air Corps duty early last year from Millbourne, New Jersey. He trained at Fort Dix, Atlantic City, Greensboro, North Carolina; finished radio school at Omaha and Fort Myers, Florida, gunnery school.

He is the younger brother of Ralph M. Deatrick, "missing" at sea for two years and now officially listed by the Navy department as dead. He was the first man from this county lost in this war.

Large Barn Near Hampton Destroyed

A large bank barn on the farm of Harry Starnor, about one and one-half miles northeast of Hampton, was destroyed by fire of undetermined origin on Monday shortly before noon. A portion of the roof of the dwelling was burned. The loss was partly covered by insurance.

Mr. Starnor and his family were in Maryland to decorate the graves of relatives when a neighbor child discovered the fire. The Hampton fire company was summoned but the barn was beyond saving when the firemen arrived.

Water was pumped from a nearby dam and firemen succeeded in extinguishing the burning home and in saving a nearby garage.

All of the farm implements in the barn together with hay and straw burned. Four hogs in the barn suffered burns and one of these died Tuesday. Six rabbits, a cat and four kittens perished.

OPPOSES U. S. IN INTERNATIONAL SECURITY UNIT

By JACK BELL
Washington, June 2 (AP)—Secretary of State Hull will go into forthcoming negotiations with other countries with clear notification that at least a minority of the Senate opposes any move to commit the United States to participation in an international security organization before the terms of peace have been written.

This reservation was disclosed today by Senator LaFollette (Prog-Wis) to have been made to the secretary when, as a member of the Senate Liaison Committee of eight, the Wisconsin senator approved the beginning of international discussions about the proposed organization.

LaFollette told a reporter that while he had no objections to the formal talks which Hull has said he will undertake with representatives of Great Britain, Russia, China and other United Nations, he had not committed himself to any security plan.

"I have made it clear to all concerned," LaFollette said, "that the future consideration of any plan worked out as a result of these conversations, the establishment of an organization and the participation by the United States in it must depend upon the negotiation of just terms of peace."

LaFollette's views generally coincide with those of a group of senators who have opposed international commitments in the past—a group whose numerical strength has varied but which might be sufficient to prevent the necessary two-thirds ratification of a treaty they opposed.

Believes Germans Captured Brother To Get Haircuts

Philadelphia, June 2 (AP)—The brother of Virgilio Magina, New Bedford, Mass., barber who was taken prisoner by a German submarine crew that stopped the Refugee ship Serpa Pinto, said today that Magina "could never have been a spy" and that he believes the Nazi chose him because they needed haircuts and shaves.

"My brother could never have been mixed up in International Affairs," said Aristides Magina, also of New Bedford. "He was just a barber. Other passengers tell me the Germans who came aboard had beards down to their waists and hair down to their shoulders. I think they were looking for someone to give them haircuts."

Magina and Manuel Pinto, Watertown, Conn., were taken when the Portuguese refugee vessel was halted last Friday. Other American citizens aboard were permitted to continue.

Prepare 'Blitz' For Korean Wasps

Harrisburg, June 2 (AP)—The State Department of Agriculture put the finishing touches today on a blitz campaign by Korean wasps against the Japanese beetles in Pennsylvania and hopes for total casualties of almost a million beetles—pest destroyers of plants and foliage.

Dr. Thomas L. Guyton, chief of the Bureau of Plant Industry, explained that the wasps are parasites which feed on the grub of beetles, devouring them before they are hatched.

Squadrons of 400 wasps each have been released near Camp Hill, Selinsgrove, Sunbury, Williamsport, Ligonier and Laughlontown, areas infested by the beetles. Each female wasp is expected to lay 400 to 500 eggs each beside a beetle grub.

"There are no tneer misses," said Dr. Guyton, "when she turns loose an egg, it is right smack in the middle of the grub's 'slit trench.' These eggs reach the grub stage very rapidly and the Korean grub then goes to work on the beetle grub, devouring it before it can emerge from the ground."

The U. S. Navy makes use of more than 2,000 training films.

REVISION OF SCHOOL UNITS IS CONSIDERED

Harrisburg, June 2 (AP)—Military, religious and consumer training were listed today by Dr. Francis B. Haas, state superintendent of public instruction, as "areas of education suggested for special consideration" by a post-war education committee studying possible revision of the commonwealth's public school system.

The committee, set up by the state Council of Education to study and make recommendations on post-war education problems, will hold a conference here June 20. Doctor Haas urged individuals and organizations interested in education to offer suggestions for the group's consideration.

"This study is planned to consider both present and post-war educational needs to the extent that the evidence now available," declared Doctor Haas in a statement.

Other suggestions listed for special consideration by the committee included:

Administration and organization; aviation, including navigation problems; audio-visual education; use of radio programs in schools; health education and recreation, including social health; veterans; community relations, including juvenile delinquency, and teacher education.

Doctor Haas said the committee is divided into six study groups as follows:

Instructional programs and procedures, W. Floyd Clinger, Warren, chairman; school organization and administration, Herbert J. Stockton, Johnstown, chairman; teacher and liberal arts education, G. Morris Smith, Selinsgrove, chairman; professional and professional education, Donald L. Helfferich, Collegeville, chairman; public library, museum and historical activities, Robert C. Shaw, Camp Hill, chairman, and legislation, Doctor Haas, chairman.

ALLIES BLAST JAP BASES ON BROAD SWEEP

U. S. Pacific Fleet Headquarters, Pearl Harbor, June 2 (AP)—A giant Pacific triangular area was dotted by bomb craters today—across 1,000 miles of the Carolines, north to Guam, then beyond Japan in the frigid Kuriles and back to Wake—as the consequence of coordinated blows by American bombers from three war theatres.

In operations unprecedented for their swift extent, bombers from the Southwest and Central Pacific combed the Carolines; Central Pacific planes flew the 1,200 miles to Guam; other Central Pacific bombers pounded Wake and Aleutian-based planes struck the Kuriles. All planes returned safely from these hazardous operations.

See Fires 150 Miles

These blows were massed from Sunday through Tuesday and were announced today and yesterday by Gen. Douglas MacArthur and Adm. Chester W. Nimitz.

Army Mitchells from the Nimitz theatre ripped into the defenses of Ponape in the eastern Carolines. At Truk, 440 miles beyond, Central Pacific bombers started fires which could be seen for 150 miles and bombers from the MacArthur theatre made a light stab from the Admiralty Islands.

Other Admiralty-based planes struck 190 miles west at Alet island and far into the western Carolines at Woleai.

Central Pacific Army Liberators

from Eniwetok gave Guam its third land-based pounding since Japan wrested that Marianas island from the Americans. They fought off 10 enemy fighters, probably downing one, without loss.

Pound Wake Again

Wake, the former American base which a carrier task force virtually immobilized May 23, was hit by Central Pacific Army Liberators which had to contend only with moderate anti-aircraft fire.

In a continuation of attacks on the Kuriles, guarding the north approach to Japan, Navy Ventura search planes from the Aleutians hit Shumushu at the northern tip of that chain. Within the same three-day period, but announced previously, bombers hit four islands in that chain, including one less than 500 miles from the Japanese mainland.

OPPOSES U. S. IN INTERNATIONAL SECURITY UNIT

By JACK BELL
Washington, June 2 (AP)—Secretary of State Hull will go into forthcoming negotiations with other countries with clear notification that at least a minority of the Senate opposes any move to commit the United States to participation in an international security organization before the terms of peace have been written.

This reservation was disclosed today by Senator LaFollette (Progressive) who has been made the secretary when, as a member of the Senate Liaison Committee of eight, the Wisconsin senator approved the beginning of international discussions about the proposed organization.

LaFollette told a reporter that while he had no objections to the informal talks which Hull has said he will undertake with representatives of Great Britain, Russia, China and other United Nations, he had not committed himself to any security plan.

"I have made it clear to all concerned," LaFollette said, "that the future consideration of any plan worked out as a result of these conversations, the establishment of an organization and the participation by the United States in it must depend upon the negotiation of just terms of peace."

LaFollette's views generally coincide with those of a group of senators who have opposed international commitments in the past—a group whose numerical strength has varied but which might be sufficient to prevent the necessary two-thirds ratification of a treaty they opposed.

Believes Germans Captured Brother To Get Haircuts

Philadelphia, June 2 (AP)—The brother of Virgilio Magina, New Bedford, Mass., barber who was taken prisoner by a German submarine crew that stopped the refugee ship Serra Pinto, said today that Magina "could never have been a spy" and that he believes the Nazi chose him because they needed haircuts and shaves.

"My brother could never have been mixed up in International Affairs," said Aristides Magina, also of New Bedford. "He was just a barber. Other passengers tell me the Germans who came aboard had beards down to their waists and hair down to their shoulders. I think they were looking for someone to give them haircuts."

Magina and Manuel Pinto, Waterbury, Conn., were taken when the Portuguese refugee vessel was halted last Friday. Other American citizens aboard were permitted to continue.

Prepare "Blitz" For Korean Wasps

Harrisburg, June 2 (AP)—The State Department of Agriculture put the finishing touches today on a blitz campaign by Korean wasps against the Japanese beetles in Pennsylvania and hopes for total casualties of almost a million beetles—pest destroyers of plants and foliage.

Dr. Thomas L. Guyton, chief of the Bureau of Plant Industry, explained that the wasps are parasites which feed on the grub of beetles, devouring them before they are hatched.

Squadrons of 400 wasps each have been released near Camp Hill, Selinsgrove, Sunbury, Williamsport, Ligonier and Laughlintown, areas infested by the beetles. Each female wasp is expected to lay 400 to 500 eggs each beside a beetle grub.

"There are no near misses," said Dr. Guyton, "when she turns loose an egg, it is right smack in the middle of the grub's 'slit trench.' These eggs reach the grub stage very rapidly and the Korean grub then goes to work on the beetle grub, devouring it before it can emerge from the ground."

REVISION OF SCHOOL UNITS IS CONSIDERED

Harrisburg, June 2 (AP)—Military, religious and consumer training were listed today by Dr. Francis B. Haas, state superintendent of public instruction, as "areas of education suggested for special consideration" by a post-war education committee studying possible revision of the commonwealth's public school system.

The committee, set up by the state Council of Education to study and make recommendations on post-war education problems, will hold a conference here June 30.

Dr. Haas urged individuals and organizations interested in education to offer suggestions for the group's consideration.

"This study is planned to consider both present and post-war educational needs to the extent that such can be determined by the evidence now available," declared Dr. Haas in a statement.

Other suggestions listed for special consideration by the committee included:

Administration and organization; aviation, including navigation problems; audio-visual education; use of radio programs in schools; health education and recreation, including social health; veterans; community relations, including juvenile delinquency; and teacher education.

Dr. Haas said the committee is divided into six study groups as follows:

Instructional programs and procedures, W. Floyd Clinger, Warren, chairman; school organization and administration, Herbert J. Stockton, Johnstown, chairman; teacher and liberal arts education, G. Morris Smith, Selinsgrove, chairman; professional and professional education, Donald L. Helfferich, Collegeville, chairman; public library, museum and historical activities, Robert C. Shaw, Camp Hill, chairman; and legislation, Dr. Haas, chairman.

2 Inmates Escape From White Hill

Harrisburg, June 2 (AP)—Two inmates of the Pennsylvania Industrial school at nearby White Hill escaped from the institution today by walking away from the dairy barn. Acting Superintendent E. S. Keller reported.

He identified them as William Davis, 18, of Waymart, R. D. 2, Wayne county, and Lloyd Hazlett, 16, of Erie. He said Davis was committed April 1, 1943, and Hazlett on last January 24, both as juvenile delinquents.

Both wore regulation uniforms when they left the institution. State police joined in the search for them.

New President Of Reformed Synod

Buckhill Falls, Pa., June 2 (AP)—Rev. Prof. M. Stephan James, professor of practical theology at the New Brunswick (N. J.) Theological seminary and former pastor of the First Reformed church, Albany, N. Y., will assume the presidency of the Reformed Church of America synod Tuesday when the 138th annual general session of the synod closes here.

Prof. James was elected yesterday afternoon to succeed Rev. Jacob Prins of Grand Rapids, Mich. Last night, Rev. Prins presented a report on the state of the church disclosing that 13,000 members and five congregations have been added in the past year, bringing total membership to 170,000. The year's mission and education fund was $1,340,000 air increase of $354,000 over the previous year. Funds for congregational use totaled $4,152,000, a $430,000 increase.

ALLIES BLAST JAP BASES ON BROAD SWEEP

U. S. Pacific Fleet Headquarters, Pearl Harbor, June 2 (AP)—A giant Pacific triangular area was dotted by bomb craters today across 1,900 miles of the Carolines, north to Guam, then beyond Japan in the frigid Kuriles and back to Wake—as the consequence of coordinated blows by American bombers from three war theatres.

In operations, unprecedented for their swift extent, bombers from the Southwest and Central Pacific combed the Carolines; Central Pacific planes flew the 1,200 miles to Guam; other Central Pacific bombers pounded Wake and Aleutian-based planes struck the Kuriles. All planes returned safely from these hazardous operations.

See Fires 150 Miles
These blows were massed from Sunday through Tuesday and were announced today and yesterday by Gen. Douglas MacArthur and Adm. Chester W. Nimitz.

Army Mitchells from the Nimitz theatre ripped into the defenses of Ponape in the eastern Carolines. At Truk, 440 miles beyond, Central Pacific bombers started fires which could be seen for 150 miles and bombers from the MacArthur theatre made a light stab from the Admiralty islands.

Other Admiralty-based planes struck 190 miles west of Alet island and far into the western Carolines at Woleai.

Central Pacific Army Liberators

from Eniwetok gave Guam its third land-based pounding since Japan wrested that Marianas island from the Americans. They fought off 10 enemy fighters, probably downing one without loss.

Pound Wake Again
Wake, the former American base which a carrier task force virtually immobilized May 23, was hit by Central Pacific Army Liberators which had to contend only with moderate anti-aircraft fire.

In a continuation of attacks on the Kuriles, guarding the north approach to Japan, Navy Ventura search planes from the Aleutians hit Shumushu at the northern tip of that chain. Within the same three-day period, but announced previously, bombers hit four islands in that chain, including one less than 500 miles from the Japanese mainland.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Sir:

This is a lovely training camp and I enjoy Army life very much. Right now it is very hot in Georgia but the nights are cool. Each Saturday all our companies parade and the winning company gets a blue ribbon. I hope my company will win soon. I am starting my third week of basic and hope to become a good soldier. We Wacs are doing a splendid job and I hope that our efforts are recognized.

I wish I might be in Gettysburg over the Memorial Day holiday but perhaps next year I may be. There is still no place like home.

Sincerely yours,
PVT. GLADYS BLIZZARD,
Fl. Oglethorpe, Ga.

Special Shoe Stamp Is Valid

Many persons apparently do not know that the number two airplane stamp in War Ration Book III is valid for a pair of shoes, the local ration board said today.

This stamp became valid May 1. There have been a great many applications for special shoe stamps at the local War Price and Rationing board by persons who have not yet used number two airplane stamp, but who do not know that it is valid.

Murder at CANDLEWOOD
by Gene Bunker Lumley

Chapter 1

It was raining when Spring stepped off the train at Ten Mile depot. The station was a shapeless smudge in the fog. It was like the ordeal waiting for her in Candlewood, she couldn't put out her hand and touch it concretely, but it was there, threatening her. She shivered with a deepening sense of dread. Under the circumstances, it would have been difficult enough to come to Candlewood in the sunshine.

The train whistle echoed back eerily and was swallowed up in the thundering clamor of rain. And then a shadow moved across the platform and a familiar, steadying voice said:

"Spring!"

"Dirk!" The heavy fog fell even between them, but his arms hard about her drove away some of the clammy chill around her heart. "Oh, Dirk!"

It was foolish to cry. But, somehow, the fog seemed like an omen, though the roots of her fear went far deeper. She was afraid of losing Dirk.

"This is awful, isn't it?" she whispered, still tight against his Navy greatcoat.

"A very fitting reception," Dirk said grimly.

He had come in on separate trains, Dirk on a two-week furlough from Great Lakes, and Spring from her farm fifty miles west of Chicago. This should have been their wedding day. They should have been back in the hot Illinois sunshine where the farm fields were fresh and green. Spring should be showing Dirk the cardinal swinging in the top of the tallest poplar. But all of that was just a dream, almost a memory. He was Lieutenant Derrick Lane, USNR, she was still Spring Manning, and they were here on this fog-hidden depot platform in an isolated countryside.

Candlewood—the old, gray stone house, as ponderous and grim as old Adelaide Manning herself—lay before and between them.

The station door opened and a path of silver light showed through the mist. Henry Bingham, the shrunken little station agent, clucked embarrassedly and rattled the door knob. Spring drew away from Dirk.

"Eh? That you, Spring? Pity 'bout Elvan Morrison, ain't it?" I know they told you; I sent that wire from your Uncle Gil himself. Guess he's all right, except his eyes. Elvan, that is. Right sorry 'bout the accident. Right glad, though, he's got you standin' by him. A man can stand most anything if his women folk stick."

Dirk felt Spring suddenly wilt against him. "Is there a taxi in town?" he asked savagely. "We want to get to Candlewood before dark. It's six now."

Spring stirred out of the numbness old Henry's speech had brought on. She shook her head. "No," she said. "They haven't any taxi. But surely Aunt Dru will send Josh. Or maybe Gil, who manages Candlewood, will come for us himself." She added, "I wired what train we'd be on."

Her voice shook unaccountably. Dirk squeezed her hand. Old Henry peered at them a minute through the white fog curtain, and advised stiffly:

"I got to be gettin' on, everybody in town is out snakin' sandbags to the men on the levee. They're tryin' to hold the dam up at Wood City," he said grimly. "If that crazy river ever gets through it'll wipe Ten Mile off'n the map. The key-hidin' place is under the loose board there right side o' the door. You kin keep warm inside and lock up when you go. Right glad you came, Spring."

Spring watched him disappear like a shadow melting into nothingness.

Dirk took her arm and they paced up and down the platform. They didn't talk at first, they didn't have to. Dirk knew the doubt inside her, the sense of duty that was behind this sudden trip, and she knew equally well the determination within him. The letters inside her purse were like whispered warnings.

"I'm not going to let you do it!" Dirk said, stopping abruptly. She could see the defiant, vigorous line of his jaw, the peculiar, wonderful straightening of his body when he was decided about something.

"I'm not going to let you marry Elvan Morrison," he said fiercely. "You don't love him! Your engagement before the war was just a result of habitual friendship. If you'd loved him you would have married him before he went into the Navy. Now, just because he's injured, there is no reason for you to let sympathy drive you into his arms. I don't think he'd want it that way."

"He doesn't know," she reminded him dully. "He doesn't know that I love you, or that we were to be married. He was away at sea, and then after I met you, he was on special duty for the Navy and couldn't disclose his address. I simply couldn't get the news to him. Aunt Drusilla is the only one to whom I wrote. I've told her all about you. And then Elvan wrote, saying he was back in this country. I had a letter half written to him when Gil's telegram came, telling me he'd been blinded. Oh, Dirk, I couldn't send my letter then!"

Spring's mind went to her Aunt Drusilla who lived in Candlewood House with her second husband, Gilbert Hayden, whom she had married four years ago. Candlewood was owned by old and equally strenuous Adelaide Manning, Spring's great aunt. The two women had raised Spring, their brother's child, from the age of seven until a year ago when Spring had gone west after her father's death to take over the management of the Illinois farm. Drusilla's letters had been increasingly strange during the past months of separation.

MARYLAND MAY BE UNPLEDGED AT CONVENTION

(By The Associated Press)
With House Speaker Sam Rayburn (Tex.) scheduled for a keynote address, a group of Democratic leaders sought at the Maryland convention today to name an 18-vote uninstructed delegation to give the state a hand in the selection of a vice presidential candidate at the party's national convention.

Rayburn, who has been mentioned as a second place choice if President Roosevelt seeks a fourth term, was called upon for a "harmony" talk in a meeting where all factions apparently wanted to prevent any outcropping of anti-Roosevelt sentiment.

Nevertheless, one faction of the Marylanders was represented as believing that if the state left its delegates unpledged, they would have more opportunity of sharing in the choice of the vice presidential nominee.

Indiana Session
The Maryland meeting vied for attention with a gathering of Indiana Republicans to complete that state's slate of 29 GOP delegates and to pick nominees for governor and senator. Ralph Gates, former state chairman, was unopposed for the gubernatorial nomination while Homer E. Capehart, Indianapolis manufacturer, and James M. Tucker, former secretary of state, contested for the senatorial place.

Twenty-two of the Indiana delegates were chosen yesterday, in congressional district caucuses, without instructions as to how to vote at the Chicago convention.

opened its three-day convention in Reading, Pa., with the emphasis laid on policies rather than candidates.

In Washington, John B. Quinn, who managed Lieut. Commander Harold E. Stassen's successful campaign in the Nebraska preferential primary, complained that the silence of major presidential candidates was making the political race a "hush-a-bye" contest.

His jibe, apparently aimed at the silence of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York about his potential presidential candidacy, paralleled similar proposals by Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio that other candidates come out into the open to tell where they stand on political issues.

Byrd Declines
Another attempt by John U. Barr, New Orleans manufacturer, to get Senator Harry F. Byrd (D-Va.) into the race as a presidential candidate apparently failed at Barr's conference with Byrd in Washington yesterday.

Nevertheless, Barr said that Byrd was the outstanding choice of Texas and South Carolina Democrats, who have left in doubt the question of whether those states' electors will vote for the party nominee unless certain conditions are met.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Sir

This is a lovely training camp and I enjoy Army life very much. Right now it is very hot in Georgia but the nights are cool. Each Saturday all our companies parade and the winning company gets a blue ribbon. I hope my company will win soon. I am starting my third week of basic and hope to become a good soldier. We Wacs are doing a splendid job and I hope that our efforts are recognized.

I wish I might be in Gettysburg, over the Memorial Day holiday but perhaps next year I may be. There is still no place like home.

Sincerely yours,
PVT. GLADYS BLIZZARD,
Ft. Oglethorpe, Ga.

Special Shoe Stamp Is Valid

Many persons apparently do not know that the number two airplane stamp in War Ration Book III is valid for a pair of shoes, the local ration board said today.

This stamp became valid May 1. There have been a great many applications for special shoe stamps at the local War Price and Rationing board by persons who have not yet used number two airplane stamp, but who do not know that it is valid.

It was raining when Spring stepped off the train at Ten Mile depot. The station was a shapeless smudge in the fog. It was like the ordeal waiting for her in Candlewood, she couldn't put out her hand and touch it concretely, but it was there, threatening her. She shivered with a deep sense of dread. Under the circumstances it would have been difficult enough to come to Candlewood in the sunshine.

The train whistle echoed back eerily and was swallowed up in the thundering clamor of rain. And then a shadow moved across the platform and a familiar, leading voice said:

"Spring!"

"Dirk!" The heavy fog fell even between them, but his arms held about her drove away some of the clammy chill around her heart. "Oh, Dirk!"

It was foolish to cry. But, somehow, the fog seemed like an omen, though the roof of her hair went far deeper. She was afraid of losing Dirk.

"This is awful, isn't it?" she whispered, still tight against his Navy greatcoat.

"A very fitting reception," Dirk said grimly.

They had come in on separate trains, Dirk on a two-week furlough from Great Lakes, and Spring from her farm fifty miles west of Chicago. This should have been their wedding day. They should have been back in the hot Illinois sunshine where the farm fields were fresh and green. Spring should be showing Dirk the cardinal swinging in the top of the tallest poplar. But all of that was just a dream, almost a memory. He was Lieutenant Derrick Lane, U.S.N.R., she was still Spring Manning, and they were here on this fog-hidden depot platform in an isolated countryside.

Candlewood—the old, gray stone house, as ponderous and grim as old Adelaide Manning herself—lay before and between them.

The station door opened and a path of silver light showed through the mist. Henry Bingham, the shrunken little station agent, clucked embarrassedly and rattled the door knob. Spring drew away from Dirk.

"Eh? That you, Spring? Pity 'bout Elvan Morrison, ain't it? I know they told you; I sent that wire from your Uncle Gil himself. Guess he's all right, except his eyes, Elvan, that is. Right sorry 'bout the accident. Right glad, though, he's got you standin' by him. A man kin stand most anything if his woman kin folk stick."

Dirk felt Spring suddenly wilt against him. "Is there a taxi in town?" he asked savagely. "We want to get to Candlewood before dark. It's six now."

Spring stirred out of the numbness old Henry's speech had brought on. She shook her head. "No," she said. "They haven't any taxi. But surely Aunt Dru will send Josh. Or maybe Gil, who manages Candlewood, will come for us himself." She added, "I wired what train we'd be on."

Her voice shook unaccountably. Dirk squeezed her hand. Old Henry peered at them a minute through the white fog curtain, and advised still.

"I got to be lettin' on, everybody in town is out snakin' sandbags to the men on the levee. They're tryin' to hold the dam up at Wood City," he said grimly. "If the levee ever gets through it'll wipe Ten Mile City in the map. The key-hidin' place is under the loose board there right side of the door. You kin keep warm inside and look up when you go. Right glad you came, Spring."

Spring watched him disappear like a shadow melting into nothingness.

Dirk took her arm and they paced up and down the platform. They didn't talk at first they didn't have to. Dirk knew the doubt inside her the sense of duty that was behind this sudden trip, and she knew equally well the determination within him. The letters inside her purse were like whispered warnings.

"I'm not going to let you do it!" Dirk said, stopping abruptly. She could see the defiant, vigorous line of his jaw, the peculiar, wonderful straightening of his body when he was decided about something.

"I'm not going to let you marry Elvan Morrison," he said fiercely. "You don't love him! You're engaged before the war was just a result of habitual friendship. If you loved him you would have married him before he went into the Navy. Now, just because he's injured, there is no reason for you to let sympathy drive you into his arms. I don't think he'd want it that way."

"He doesn't know," she reminded him dully. "He doesn't know that I love you, or that we were to be married. He was away at sea, and then after I met you, he was on special duty for the Navy and couldn't disclose his address. I simply couldn't get the news to him. Aunt Drusilla is the only one to whom I wrote. I've told her all about you. And then Elvan wrote, saying he was back in this country. I had a letter half written to him when Gil's telegram came, telling me he'd been blinded. Oh, Dirk, I couldn't send my letter then!"

Spring's mind went to her Aunt Drusilla who lived in Candlewood, House with her second husband, Gilbert Hayden, whom she had married four years ago. Candlewood was owned by old and equally strenuous Adelaide Manning, Spring's great aunt. The two women had raised Spring, their brother's child, from the age of seven until a year ago when Spring had gone west after her father's death to take over the management of the Illinois farm. Drusilla's letters had been increasingly strange during the past months of separation.

MARYLAND MAY BE UNPLEDGED AT CONVENTION

(By The Associated Press)

With House Speaker Sam Rayburn (Tex.) scheduled for a keynote address, a group of Democratic leaders today at the Maryland convention today to name an 18-vote uncommitted delegation to give the state a hand in the selection of a vice presidential candidate at the party's national convention.

Rayburn, who has been mentioned as a second place choice by President Roosevelt's backers, tonight was called upon for a "harmony" talk in a meeting where all factions apparently wanted to play an active role in the selection of a vice presidential nominee.

Nevertheless, one faction of the Marylanders was represented as believing that if the state left its delegates unpledged they would have more opportunity of sharing in the choice of the vice presidential nominee.

Indiana Session

The Maryland meeting was for attention with a gathering of Indiana Republicans to complete that state's slate of 29 GOP delegates and to pick nominees for governor and senator. Ralph Gates, former state chairman, was opposed for the gubernatorial nomination while Homer E. Capehart, Indianapolis manufacturer, and James M. Tucker, former secretary of state, contested for the senatorial place.

Twenty-two of the Indiana delegates were chosen yesterday in congressional district caucuses without instructions as to how to vote at the Chicago convention.

opened its three-day convention in Reading, Pa., with the emphasis laid on policies rather than candidates.

Who managed Lieut. Commander Harold E. Stassen's successful campaign in the Nebraska preferential primary complained that the silence of major presidential candidates was making the political race a "hush-a-by" contest.

His plea, apparently aimed at the silence of Gov. Thomas F. Dewey of New York about his potential presidential candidacy, paralleled similar proposals by Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio that other candidates come out into the open to tell where they stand on political issues.

Byrd Declines

Another attempt by John U. Barr, New Orleans manufacturer, to set a record for the most delegates won in the race as a presidential candidate apparently failed at Barr's conference with Byrd in Washington yesterday.

Nevertheless, Barr said that Byrd was the outstanding choice of Texas and South Carolina Democrats, who have left in doubt the question of whether those states' electors will vote for the party nominee unless certain conditions are met.

MISSING TUBE OF RADIUM IS EASILY FOUND

Pittsburgh, June 2 (AP)—A little conical tube containing $12,000 worth of radium, taken by a mill worker who thought it was a plumb bob, has been recovered through its own electronic emanations picked up by a radium detector.

In fact, it virtually "recovered itself" as it led a radium expert and a foundry's police chief to the mill worker's home last night, on into the kitchen and directly to a dresser drawer where it had been placed.

County detectives held the mill worker on a district attorney's detainer today for further investigation.

Call In Expert
The radium container, appearing somewhat like a bricklayer's or surveyor's plumb bob, held two capsules of radium. It was used by a Coropolis, Pa., foundry for x-raying newly turned castings for possible flaws.

The container first was missed the morning of May 27. It had been placed in the x-ray machine the night before.

Company police called in a New York radium expert, and after eliminating all but 21 of the plant employees as suspects, they drove around homes of the workers still on their list. They carried a delicate electroscopic radium detector with them.

Searchers Get Warrant
As they neared one home, the delicate "leaves" of the detector became activated by the radium's emanations. As they approached closer, the activation increased.

They obtained a search warrant and entered the home, taking the detector with them. It led them to the kitchen, and to a dresser, where they found the container wrapped in a handkerchief.

The radium expert, who declined use of his name, said he doubted the mill worker or his family had suffered "radium burns" from possession of the container. He added the amount in the container was approximately five times the amount normally kept on hand by hospitals.

MISSING TUBE OF RADIUM IS EASILY FOUND

Pittsburgh, June 2 (AP)—A little conical tube containing $12,000 worth of radium, taken by a mill worker who thought it was a plumb bob, has been recovered through its own electronic emanations picked up by a radium detector.

In fact, it virtually "recovered itself" as it led a radium expert and a foundry's police chief to the mill worker's home last night, on into the kitchen and directly to a dresser drawer where it had been placed.

County detectives held the mill worker on a district attorney's detainer today for further investigation.

Call In Expert
 The radium container, appearing somewhat like a bricklayer's or surveyor's plumb bob, held two capsules of radium. It was used by a Coraopolis, Pa., foundry for x-raying newly turned castings for possible flaws.

The container first was missed the morning of May 27. It had been placed in the x-ray machine the night before.

Company police called in a New York radium expert, and after eliminating all but 21 of the plant employees as suspects, they drove around homes of the workers still on their list. They carried a delicate electroscopic radium detector with them.

Searchers Get Warrant
 As they neared one home, the delicate "leaves" of the detector became activated by the radium's emanations. As they approached closer, the activation increased.

They obtained a search warrant and entered the home, taking the detector with them. It led them to the kitchen, and to a dresser, where they found the container wrapped in a handkerchief.

The radium expert, who declined use of his name, said he doubted the mill worker or his family had suffered "radium burns" from possession of the container. He added the amount in the container was approximately five times the amount normally kept on hand by hospitals.

DROWNS ON LEAVE
 McKeesport, Pa., June 2 (AP)—Thomas Barron, 20, home on Navy leave, drowned while swimming in the Youghiogheny river yesterday, apparently a victim of cramps.

GOVERNORS ARE IMPRESSED BY BEAUTY OF MAY 30TH PROGRAM

From all sides came generous words of praise and compliment on the Memorial Day program in the Gettysburg National cemetery.

Town folks praised and thanked Governor Martin and his special committee for their cooperation while Governor Martin and other notables voiced expressive appreciation in return.

Governor Martin said:

"It was the most impressive ceremony ever held since Lincoln came to Gettysburg. Never before has such an assemblage of Governors, at such a critical time, ever been gathered on such hallowed ground. It was inspiring and I was touched by the impressive exercises, especially by the school children who decorated the graves of the soldier dead."

"Privilege To Be Here"

Governor Saltonstall, of Massachusetts said:

"It was the most carefully thought out and appropriately executed program I have ever attended. Governor and Mrs. Martin have been marvelous hosts and they have been extremely courteous and kind. It was a pleasure for me to be privileged to attend the program here."

Governor Henry F. Schricker of Indiana said:

"The conference is the most significant ever held. The program here was beautiful and impressive and in a most appropriate setting. It is really fitting that with the world engulfed in this tragedy we should come to Gettysburg to learn anew the lesson of sacrifice and courage, liberty and freedom. Pennsylvania has been a great host and it will be many years before another program of this type will be held. The entire affair was most profound and beautiful."

The Governor said that Mrs. Schricker's uncle fought with the 27th Indiana regiment here.

Governor Walter W. Bacon of Delaware said:

"It was a great inspiration to me and I was impressed with the solemnity and dignity of the occasion. The arrangements were perfect and I consider myself fortunate to have been privileged to be present. Governor and Mrs. Martin have been perfect hosts."

Floyd Chalfant, secretary of the Department of Commerce said:

"I want to congratulate the Gettysburg committee for their cooperation with the Governor's committee and for the splendid and efficient manner in which they conducted the program. It was letter-perfect and everything was executed with exactness and in the true spirit of Americanism. I am proud to have been here."

Major Howard E. Bowman, military aide to Governor Martin, said:

"The arrangements were remarkable and everything went off like clockwork. It was very picturesque and beautiful. I was deeply moved by the school children strewing flowers on the graves."

John U. Shroyer, Secretary of Highways, said:

"I have never seen anything that inspired me as much. It was a program that every American should have heard and seen. The Gettysburg and State Committee deserve every compliment that can be showered upon them. I hope to return here many more times for these programs."

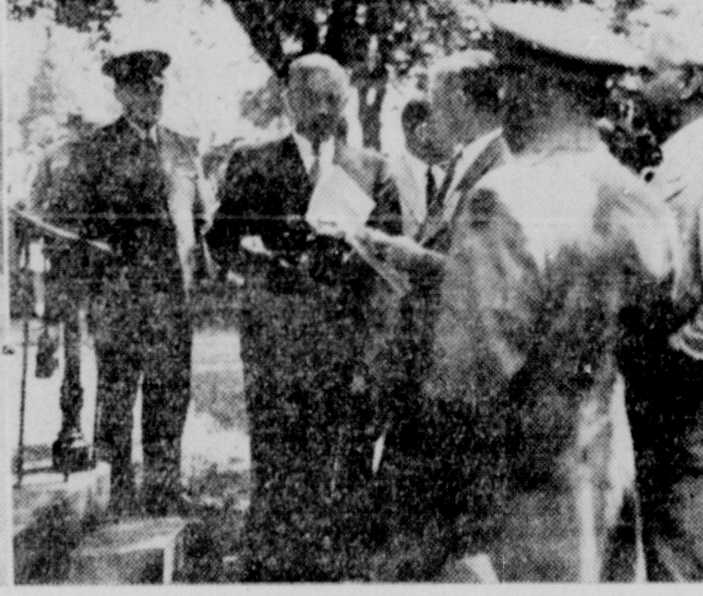

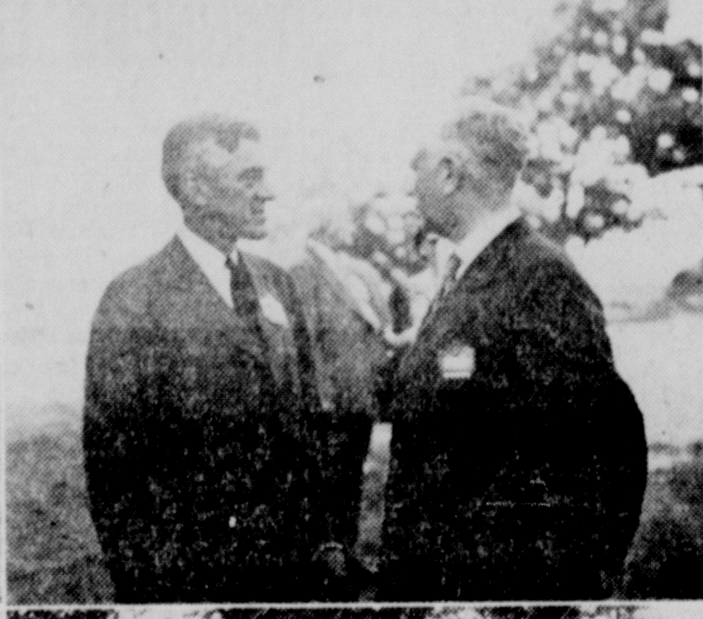

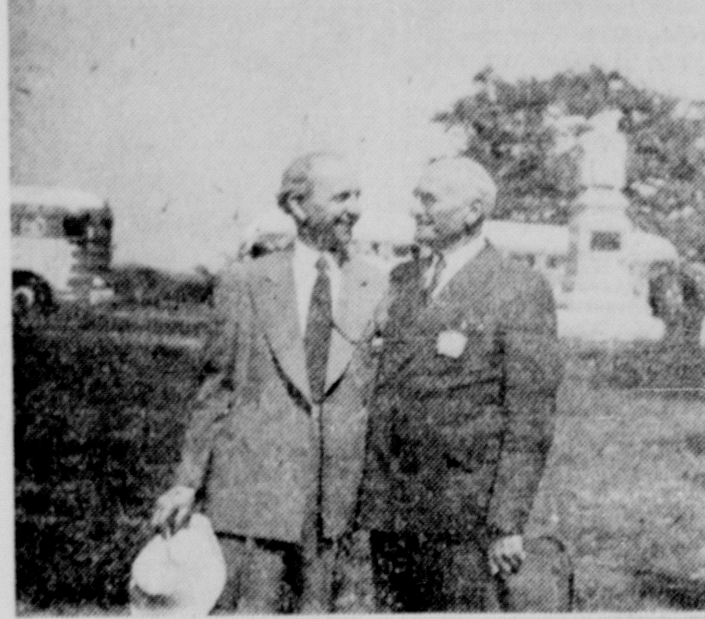

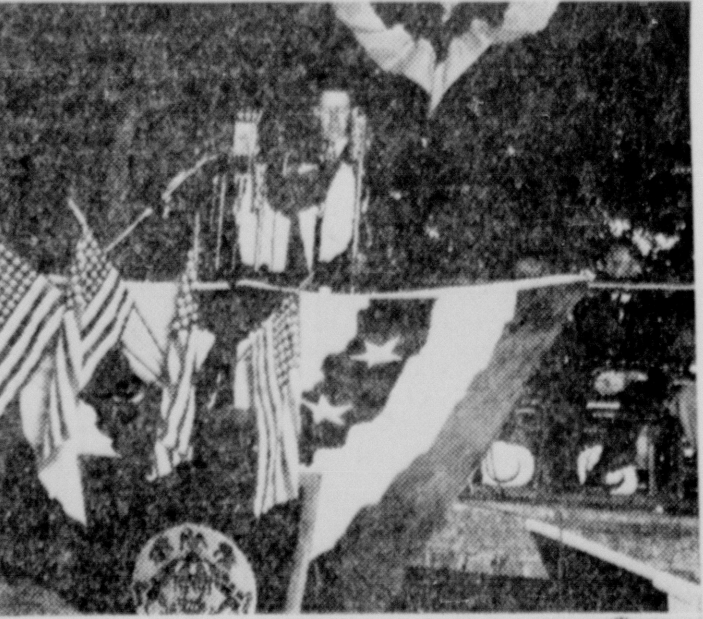

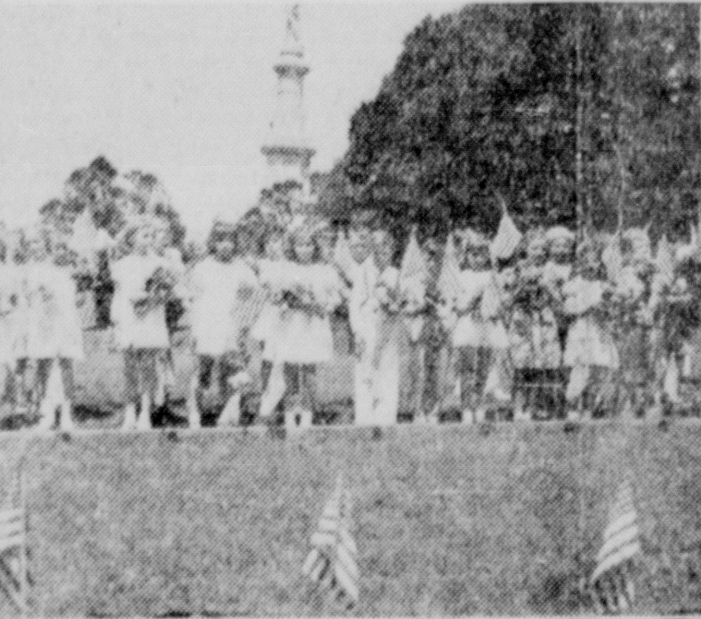

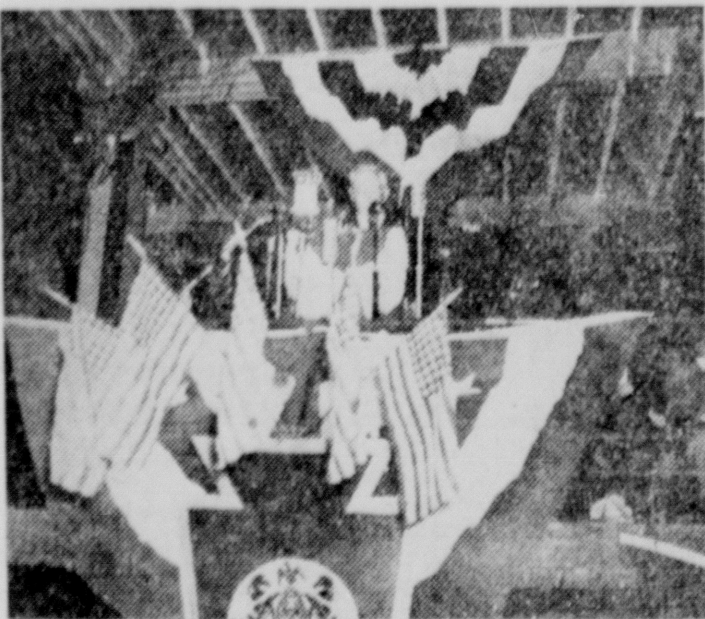

Governor Charles Harwood of the Virgin Islands said:

"It was splendid. It was fine. It was inspiring. I don't see how such an elaborate and beautiful program was conceived. It was beyond a doubt the finest I have ever seen. I was also impressed with the beauty of the state and how clean the little town of Gettysburg is. Driving from Harrisburg the countryside fairly sparkled. The main highway was so clean that it looked as though it had been swept. You folks certainly can be proud of your state."

The Gettysburg Memorial Day committee issued the following statement:

"The celebration of Memorial Day at Gettysburg this year was one of the most successful and impressive in recent years, due to the presence of so many Governors of the United States. The weather was ideal, the strewing of flowers impressive, the addresses appropriate to the occasion."

George W. Krug, 98, Kingsdale, Last Survivor Of Civil War In Adams County; Enlisted In '65

George W. Krug, Kingsdale, who celebrated his 98th birthday Sunday, is the only man living in Adams county who was among the ranks of the "Boys in Blue" who marched the long and dusty, blood-stained route that marked the advance of the Army of the Potomac as it fought back the tide of the Confederacy.

The man who was a slim 18-year-old in 1865 when he signed for service with the Union army in response to President Lincoln's last call for volunteers, now is an aged patriarch, his days filled with memories, as he sits on the front porch of his home in Kingsdale and chuckles over the antics of the youngsters as they play about the yards of the homes near him.

The only surviving veteran of the Civil war in the county has a standing invitation to attend the services held each Memorial Day at Gettysburg and all other patriotic celebrations held here. The last time he came to Gettysburg was in 1938 when he met with fellow veterans of that war to discuss the battles of the seventy-fifth anniversary of the battle here.

Health Is Slipping

Admitting that his health is failing him, the veteran states "I still like to smoke my pipe and sit on the porch to watch what goes on in the world." Mr. Krug during the last year has ceased most of his activities—cutting axe and hatchet handles and similar work—which for many years was his vocation.

He has lived with a daughter, Mrs. Hattie Coffman, at Kingsdale for the last seventeen years, ever since the death of his wife, the former Serena Chronister, of Hampton.

A native of Myers district, Maryland, he was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Krug, of Hanover. He moved to the county as a child and at 18 left his home in McSherrystown to enlist in the Pennsylvania Volunteers at Harrisburg on March 8, 1865. He served until August 29, 1865, when he was discharged at Clarksburg, West Virginia.

GEORGE W. KRUG

charged at Clarksburg, West Virginia.

Joined GAR Post

He served with Company G, of the 74th Pennsylvania Infantry.

After the war he joined the Littlestown post of the Grand Army of the Republic, which long since ceased to exist because of lack of members. For many years after the war he was a brick maker and worked also in a limestone quarry near Hanover.

Two of his sisters and a brother are living. They include Mrs. Katie Trone, Mrs. Jennie Menges and Paul Krug, all of Hanover. Five children are also living, Albert and John, Mr. Joy township; Miss Minnie Krug and Miss Dollie Krug, York, and Mrs. Coffman, with whom he lives.

PAYS $10 FINE

William Dubbs, Gettysburg, paid a fine of $10 and costs after pleading guilty to a charge of disorderly conduct brought by Borough Officer Clark W. Staley before Justice of the Peace Robert P. Snyder Saturday.

COUNTIAN ENDS HIS OWN LIFE

William Bowers, 48, 202 North Queen street, Littlestown, died Monday morning at 7:15 o'clock at Warner hospital from self-inflicted wounds.

The deceased was found Sunday afternoon at 3:45 o'clock in the kitchen of his home by his father, George Bowers. He had slashed both wrists and both sides of his throat with a razor.

Dr. A. C. Richards, Littlestown, was summoned and ordered his removal to the Warner hospital in the Littlestown ambulance.

Dr. C. G. Crist, Adams county coroner, investigated and gave the cause of death as suicide.

Chief of Police Harold S. Roberts, Littlestown, said Mr. Bowers had been mentally depressed recently.

15-ACRE FARM SOLD

Daisy D. Kessler has sold her 15-acre property along the Lincoln highway, 2 miles west of Gettysburg, along with household goods to Edwin A. Keener, Baltimore. Possession will be given June 12. The sale was made by C. A. Heiges.

Martin Pleads For Peace Based On Principles Of Justice, Freedom, Right

The following address was delivered by Major General Edward Martin, Governor of Pennsylvania, at the Memorial Day exercises in the Gettysburg National Cemetery this afternoon:

"My Fellow-Americans: "Eighty-one years ago there was fought on this field one of the decisive battles of history. The men who fought on these hills and in these little valleys were the flower of American manhood.

"They fought with the skill and courage that are the heritage only of free men. The graves of their dead of July 1863 were, when November came, forever consecrated as the last resting place of all those who here made the supreme sacrifice for the right as they saw the right.

Cause Belongs To History "The causes of that war and the strategy of its campaigns do not concern us here. They belong to history.

"We are now in a global war to determine whether free men have the right to govern themselves and whether freedom of speech, freedom of religion and freedom of action in the pursuit of human happiness must perish, perhaps forever, from the earth.

"As a people and as a Nation we stand before the Bar of History. This is our day of terror and pain, courage and wrath. It is our day of judgment.

"This Nation is a Union of States. Each state is guaranteed sovereignty by a written Federal Constitution. The Governors of these States are assembled here on this hallowed ground. More surely than any other group they know the tides of public sentiment.

A Just Peace

"They stand here pledging all the great power that is in their hands that this destructive war shall be fought to a successful conclusion and that peace shall be based upon the eternal principles of justice, freedom and right. Only in that way can we have a lasting peace.

"It is fitting and right that the Governors' Conference should observe this day dedicated to our soldier dead on this field.

"One speaker is from the Old South and the other from the Old North. Representing the Old South is the Governor of North Carolina; Scholar, Statesman and Patriot—His Excellency Honorable J. Melville Broughton.

"Representing the Old North is the Governor of Massachusetts; Soldier, Statesman and Patriot—His Excellency Honorable Leverett Saltonstall."

New Oxford Girl Graduates As Nurse

Miss Joan Helena Kaiser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Kaiser, New Oxford, was among the class graduated during the past week from the Nurses' Training School of Misericordia Hospital, Philadelphia.

Her parents and sisters, the Misses Martha and Rita, with Mrs. Bernard Baker and Miss Eleanor Miller, New Oxford, witnessed her graduation.

Miss Kaiser is a graduate of the Delone Catholic high school, McSherrystown, in 1940.

Her sister, Miss Rita Kaiser, a member of the graduating class of that high school, was among the group of students who were awarded certificates for the completion of a Red Cross home nursing course on Friday.

ADDRESSES SCOUTS

Dr. M. E. Muma, entomologist at the University of Maryland, College Park, Maryland, gave an illustrated lecture on "Caves in West Virginia and Maryland" last Friday night at a meeting of Boy Scout Troop 78 at the Knights of Columbus hall, center square. Scoutmaster Jack Cessena and members of Troop 78 were guests of Troop 78 for the talk.

Memorial Day Exercise Most Impressive Held Here Since '63

Under a cloudless sky, in a setting as beautiful and impressive as nature can fashion, and sanctified by the blood of heroic defenders of the nation, the Chief Executives of 37 states and one territory came to Gettysburg on Memorial Day and paid tribute to the soldier dead of all wars.

Not since that memorable day in November, 81 years ago, when Abraham Lincoln came to this historic community to dedicate the 15-acre Gettysburg National Cemetery "that this nation, under God, may have a new birth of Freedom," has a finer and more impressive exercise been held in the national burial plot.

Crowd Of 11,000 Is Inspired

It stilled the hearts and inspired the souls of men, women and children variously estimated at approximately 11,000, most of whom walked to the cemetery to witness and hear the exercises dignified by the presence of the Governors who were guests of Pennsylvania's war-time Governor, former Major General of the 28th Pennsylvania National Guard Division and later the "Iron Brigade" of World War II.

A warm sun beat down through the trees and open areas of the grass-carpeted cemetery enclosure and a light breeze ruffled the leaves and the tiny American flags that graced the headstones of the graves of more than 3,600 known and unknown soldier dead.

Almost a thousand school children, dressed in their finest, each carrying an armful of freshly cut flowers, walked between the burial plots and gently laid a bouquet on each headstone, their annual tribute to their soldier-ancestors.

Flower-Strewing Impresses Governors

The Governors were visibly impressed with this part of the afternoon's exercises. Some said that they had never seen such an inspiring sight. One said that he had never heard that at Gettysburg each year the school children participate in the Memorial Day exercises to this extent. All gazed solemnly as these youngsters paid homage to those warriors who have answered the last summons.

At the conclusion of the flower-strewing program the Governors walked silently to the beautifully decorated rostrum for the formal program. The crowd followed and spread out before the stand to hear and see those who had come for many miles to participate in the exercises.

Promptly at 3 o'clock Fulton Lewis, Jr., noted radio commentator, opened the program. A sealed switch in the National Museum was opened and 200 radio stations across the length and breadth of the nation were "cut in" on the day's most memorable program.

Narrator Speaks

Mr. Lewis said:

"Over these rolling fields and woodlands, in early July of 1863, one of the bloodiest and bitterest battles of all military history, was fought—the struggle of a house divided against itself. For three days the Confederate armies in gray were locked in a deathgrip with the Union armies in blue, each side believing fanatically that it was in the right; each side made up of men who were staking everything—family ties, fortunes, dreams of the future, life itself—in a determination to be true to what they considered to be sacred principles.

"It was the Union Army in blue, that left these battlefields, with victory crowning their banners—and so our great heritage of a federal union was preserved... had the fates of this battlefield turned otherwise, the United States of America, as we know it and love it today, would not exist.

Inspired Address

"There's little doubt, but that the very precariousness and intensity of the crisis, which faced the nation in that battle, was the inspiration that fired the tall, gaunt Abraham Lincoln to compose in November of that same year, on the occasion of the dedication of this battlefield as a national park, one of the immortal speeches of all English literature. That Gettysburg address, you will hear later in this program.

"Today, this great nation of ours again is fighting for survival. The wounds of eighty years ago are healed. The progeny of the valiant men of gray and of blue are proving themselves worthy and more than worthy of their sires, on the battlefields of the world.

"On this Memorial Day, the fields and woodlands of this Gettysburg National Cemetery are quiet and peaceful. Rolling lawns have the fresh green of spring and the landscape is splashed with the crimson of roses and peonies, instead of crimson of blood.

Impressive Sight

"Several hundred yards from this speaker's platform a deeply impressive sight has just occurred... several hundred boys and girls from the local school of Gettysburg, gathered at the exact spot where Lincoln made his immortal address... each child with an armful of flowers... and from there, they

George W. Krug, 98, Kingsdale, Last Survivor Of Civil War In Adams County; Enlisted In '65

George W. Krug, Kingsdale, who celebrated his 98th birthday Sunday, is the only man living in Adams county who was among the ranks of the "Boys in Blue" who marched the long and dusty, blood-stained route that marked the advance of the Army of the Potomac as it fought back the tide of the Confederacy.

The man who was a slim 18-year-old in 1865 when he signed for service with the Union army in response to President Lincoln's last call for volunteers, now is an aged patriarch, his days filled with memories, as he sits on the front porch of his home in Kingsdale and chuckles over the antics of the youngsters as they play about the yards of the homes near him.

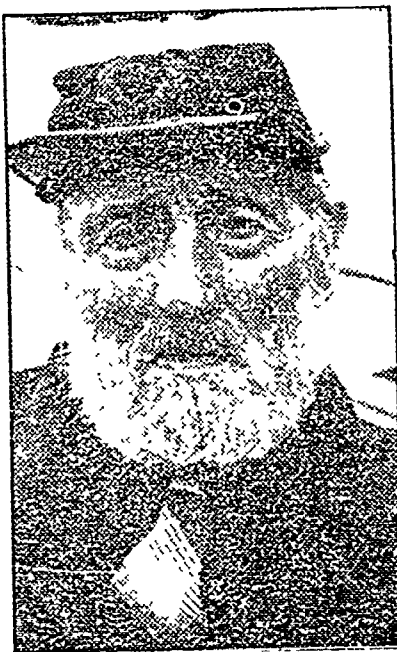

The only surviving veteran of the Civil war in the county has a standing invitation to attend the services held each Memorial Day at Gettysburg and all other patriotic celebrations held here. The last time he came to Gettysburg was in 1938 when he met with fellow veterans of the Civil war to discuss the battles of that war at the observance of the seventy-fifth anniversary of the battle here.

Health Is Slipping

Admitting that his health is failing him the veteran states "I still like to smoke my pipe and sit on the porch to watch what goes on in the world." Mr. Krug during the last year has ceased most of his activities—cutting axe and hatchet handles and similar work—which for many years was his vocation.

He has lived with a daughter, Mrs. Hattie Coffman, at Kingsdale for the last seventeen years, ever since the death of his wife, the former Serena Chomister, of Hampton.

A native of Myers district, Maryland, he was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Krug, of Hanover. He moved to the county as a child and at 18 left his home in McSherrystown to enlist in the Pennsylvania Volunteers at Harrisburg on March 8, 1865. He served until August 29, 1865, when he was discharged at Clarksburg, West Virginia.

Joined GAR Post

He served with Company G, of the 74th Pennsylvania Infantry. After the war he joined the Littlestown post of the Grand Army of the Republic, which long since ceased to exist because of lack of members. For many years after the war he was a brick maker and worked also in a limestone quarry near Hanover.

Two of his sisters and a brother are living. They include Mrs. Katie Thome, Mrs. Jennie Menges and Paul Krug, all of Hanover. Five children are also living, Albert and John, Mr. Joy township; Miss Minnie Krug and Miss Dollie Krug, York; and Mrs. Coffman, with whom he lives.

COUNTIAN ENDS HIS OWN LIFE

William Bowers, 48, 202 North Queen street Littlestown, died Monday morning at 7:15 o'clock at Warner hospital from self-inflicted wounds.

The deceased was found Sunday afternoon at 3:45 o'clock in the kitchen of his home by his father, George Bowers. He had slashed both wrists and both sides of his throat with a razor.

Dr. A. C. Richards, Littlestown, was summoned and ordered his removal to the Warner hospital in the Littlestown ambulance.

Dr. C. G. Crist, Adams county coroner, investigated and gave the cause of death as suicide.

Chief of Police Harold S. Roberts, Littlestown, said Mr. Bowers had been mentally depressed recently.

The deceased had been employed at the George A. Buddy cigar factory, Littlestown.

Martin Pleads For Peace Based On Principles Of Justice, Freedom, Right

The following address was delivered today on the day of the Memorial Day exercises in the Gettysburg National Cemetery this afternoon.

"My Fellow-Americans:

"Eighty-one years ago there was fought on this held one of the decisive battles of history. The men who fought on these hills and in these little valleys were the flower of American manhood.

"They fought with the skill and courage that are the heritage only of free men. The graves of their dead of July 1863 were, when November came, forever consecrated as the last resting place of all those who here made the supreme sacrifice for the right as they saw the light.

Cause Belongs To History

"The causes of that war and the strategy of its campaign do not concern us here. They belong to history.

"We are now in a global war to determine whether free men have the right to govern themselves and whether freedom of speech, freedom of religion and freedom of action in the pursuit of human happiness must perish, perhaps forever, from the earth.

"As a people and as a Nation we stand before the Bar of History. This is our day of terror and pain, courage and worth. It is our day of judgment.

"This Nation is a Union of States. Each state is guaranteed, over and over by a written Federal Constitution. The Governors of these States are assembled here on this hallowed ground. More surely than any other group they know the ties of public sentiment.

A Just Peace

"They stand here pledging all the great power that is in their hands that this destructive war shall be fought to a successful conclusion and that peace shall be based upon the eternal principles of justice, freedom and right. Only in that

Memorial Day Exercise Most Impressive Held Here Since '63

Under a cloudless sky, in a setting as beautiful and impressive as nature can fashion, and sanctified by the blood of heroic defenders of the nation, the Chief Executives of 37 states and one territory came to Gettysburg on Memorial Day and paid tribute to the soldier dead of all wars.

Not since that memorable day in November, 81 years ago, when Abraham Lincoln came to this historic community to dedicate the 15-acre Gettysburg National Cemetery "that this nation, under God, may have a new birth of Freedom," has a finer and more impressive exercise been held in the national burial plot.

Crowd Of 11,000 Is Inspired

It stilled the hearts and inspired the souls of men, women and children variously estimated at approximately 11,000, most of whom walked to the cemetery to witness and hear the exercises dignified by the presence of the Governors who were guests of Pennsylvania's war-time Governor, former Major General of the 28th Pennsylvania National Guard Division and later the "Iron Brigade" of World War II.

A warm sun beat down through the trees and open areas of the grass-carpeted cemetery enclosure and a light breeze ruffled the leaves and the tiny American flags that graced the headstones of the graves of more than 3,600 known and unknown soldier dead.

Almost a thousand school children, dressed in their finest, each carrying an armful of freshly cut flowers, walked between the burial plots and gently laid a bouquet on each headstone, their annual tribute to their soldier-ancestors.

Flower-Strewing Impresses Governors

The Governors were visibly impressed with this part of the afternoon's exercises. Some said that they had never seen such an inspiring sight. One said that he had never heard that at Gettysburg each year the school children participate in the Memorial Day exercises to this extent. All gazed solemnly as these youngsters paid homage to those warriors who have answered the last summons.

At the conclusion of the flower-strewing program the Governors walked silently to the beautifully decorated rostrum for the formal program. The crowd followed and spread out before the stand to hear and see those who had come for many miles to participate in the exercises.

Promptly at 3 o'clock Fulton Lewis, Jr., noted radio commentator, opened the program. A sealed switch in the National Museum was opened and 200 radio stations across the length and breadth of the nation were "cut in" on the day's most memorable program.

Narrator Speaks

Mr. Lewis said:

"Over these rolling fields and woodlands, in early July of 1863, one of the bloodiest and bitterest battles of all military history, was fought—the struggle of a house divided against itself. For three days the Confederate armies in gray were locked in a deathgrip with the Union armies in blue, each side believing fanatically that it was in the right; each side made up of men who were staking everything—family ties, fortunes, dreams of the future, life itself—in a determination to be true to what they considered to be sacred principles.

"It was the Union Army in blue, that left these battlefields, with victory crowning their banners—and so our great heritage of a federal union was preserved... had the fates of this battlefield turned otherwise, the United States of America, as we know it and love it today, would not exist.

Inspired Address

"There's little doubt, but that the very precariousness and intensity of the crisis, which faced the nation in that battle, was the inspiration that fired the tall, gaunt Abraham Lincoln to compose in November of that same year, on the occasion of the dedication of this battlefield as a national park, one of the immortal speeches of all English literature. That Gettysburg address, you will hear later in this program.

"Today, this great nation of ours again is fighting for survival. The wounds of eighty years ago are healed. The progeny of the valiant men of gray and of blue are proving themselves worthy and more than worthy of their sires, on the battlefields of the world.

"On this Memorial Day, the field: and woodlands of this Gettysburg National Cemetery are quiet and peaceful. Rolling lawns have the fresh green of spring and the landscape is spotted with the crimson of roses and peonies, instead of crimson of blood.

Impressive Sight

"Several hundred yards from this speaker's platform a deeply impressive sight has just occurred—several hundred boys and girls from the local school of Gettysburg, gathered at the exact spot where Lincoln made his immortal address... each child with an armful of flowers... and from there, they

Governor Darden Of Virginia Urges College Graduates To Work For "World Peace"

Declaring that the cause of the Allies is now past the point where it may be defeated Governor Colgate W. Darden, Jr., of Virginia, in the commencement address at Gettysburg college Monday morning charged the members of the graduating class with their responsibility in the formation of public opinion that will guide the United States into a partnership of nations working for world peace after this war.

"It will be for you to choose whether the United States shall again attempt to draw back into false security between the two great oceans or whether it will stand side by side with other great nations of the world in a united effort for the preservation of peace.

"To repeat our mistakes after the last war will mean that the children in our nurseries today will be welded into another great machine for another war abroad," Governor Darden warned.

Introduced By Martin

Introduced by Governor Edward Martin of Pennsylvania, in a 10-minute appearance on the commencement platform, Governor Darden spoke for 20 minutes at the 112th annual graduation exercises on the campus at the north portico of Old Dorm. The 64 graduates, 12 of whom finished their studies in January, received their diplomas in traditional academic gowns and in the uniforms of the United States Army and Navy. Only 53 of the seniors were in attendance, most of the absentees having already entered the armed forces making it impossible for them to attend.

A crowd of more than 500 persons gathered for the graduation exercises of the smallest class in a generation, unique in Gettysburg college history in that more than half of its members—37—were women students.

Busy At Hershey

Because Governor Martin was occupied at Hershey in extending the state's welcome to the Governors' conference this morning, the commencement program was re-arranged at the last minute so that the presentation of Governor Martin's degree and his introduction of the graduation speaker could be delayed as long as possible.

When all other degrees were conferred and the diplomas presented, Governor Martin arrived on the campus and was escorted to the platform by Dr. Frank H. Kramer, marshal for the academic procession.

Presented by Judge Hiram H. Keller, of the college board of trustees, as "Governor and first citizen of Pennsylvania, and lawyer, soldier and executive" for the degree of Doctor of Laws, Dr. Henry W. A. Hanson, president of the college, conferred the degree upon Governor Martin "as Governor of Pennsylvania and my warm personal friend."

Then expressing the college's "debt of appreciation" to Governor Martin for the inconvenience involved in his campus visit, Doctor Hanson presented the governor to make the introduction speech for Governor Darden.

Presents Darden

Governor Martin said: "I appreciate the honor just conferred upon me by this magnificent old institution more than words can express." Then turning to Governor Darden he said, "Governor Darden, 81 years ago we welcomed to Gettysburg a great soldier from your state in a very different way."

He referred to the visit here Tuesday of all of the governors attending the conference at Hershey and declared "the distinguished group is coming to Gettysburg for one great purpose—to show to the world the unity of America in our great cause."

His formal presentation of Governor Darden followed and then with apologies to Doctor Hanson for his hasty departure and a handshake with the college president, Governor Martin left the platform, circled Old Dorm and stepped into a waiting car which whisked him off to Hershey where he was due at a luncheon meeting of the governors at 12:30 o'clock. Governor Edge, of New Jersey, who also received an LL.D. degree, followed a few minutes later in another car.

Academy Band

After the academic procession from Gladfelter hall, the band from the Valley Forge Military academy played the national anthem and the invocation was given by the Rev. Howard Frank Bink, Camp Hill, who a few minutes later received the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity. Miss Marian L. Fish of the class of 1946, sang "The Lord's Prayer" and the audience joined in the college hymn.

The class roll was read by Dean W. E. Tiltberg and diplomas were conferred to them by Doctor Hanson after which he spoke briefly to the graduates and offered prayer. Presentation of honorary degrees followed.

As he conferred the degree of Doctor of Science in Education upon Dr. Clyde B. Stover, Doctor Hanson paid a special tribute to the 47 years of service rendered the college by Doctor Stover as registrar and professor of chemistry. He described the retired college official as "one

For The South For The North

Governor J. Melville Broughton was born in Raleigh, North Carolina, in 1888. He acquired his formal education at Wake Forest College and Harvard University Law School. His early occupations included positions as newspaper reporter, school teacher, and school superintendent. For the last 26 years he has devoted his time to the practice of law. He served as City Attorney of Raleigh, Judge of the Township Records' Court, member of the State Senate for two terms, and Chairman of the North Carolina Housing Board. He is a member of the Executive Committee of the Governors' Conference. One of his sons is in the U. S. Marine Corps and another is in Naval Aviation. He was inaugurated in January, 1941, and his term will expire in January, 1945.

Governor Leverett Saltonstall was born at Chestnut Hill, Massachusetts, in 1892. His college training was at Harvard, where he received A.B. and LL.B. degrees. In 1917 he went overseas as a First Lieutenant in the 301st Field Artillery. Governor Saltonstall has followed a family tradition of public service through his activities as assistant District Attorney of Middlesex county, Alderman of Newton, and member, later Speaker, of the Massachusetts House of Representatives. At present he is Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Governors' Conference and President of the Council of State Governments. He has one son in the Army, one in the Marines, and a daughter in the WAVES. He was inaugurated in January, 1939, and re-elected in November, 1940-1942, and his term will expire in January, 1945.

of the finest men it is my privilege to know."

Tribute To Martin

As Governor Martin mounted the platform, the Valley Forge band played "Old No. 9" and won special praise from the Governor for the selection. "It meant a great deal to me," he said.

In the introduction to his address, Governor Darden praised the important role played in our national life by the liberal arts colleges. "If the liberal arts school were to decline and fall, their decline would be followed within a generation by the fall of democratic government," he declared.

He launched his estimation of world affairs with the observation that the League of Nations plan, "although an imperfect instrument offered the best opportunity for preserving peace that then was available—an opportunity that we lost and never again were offered."

Signs of War

He named the Japanese invasion of China in 1931 as the beginning of World War II and cited the later invasions in Africa by the Italians as growing signs of the holocaust that was to come. At Munich, he said, the French and English sought to purchase peace at the cost of the life of weaker nations. He said he did not believe fear of German might caused Chamberlain and Daladier to act—for "I believe they did not know then how strong Germany was." The lesson to learn from Munich, he declared, is that the peace of the world cannot be purchased at the cost of weak nations.

"Only courage and Divine providence saved the English speaking nations after Dunkerque," he asserted. "Hitler lost this war on June 22, 1941, when he invaded Russia on a 2,000-mile front. We are now beyond the point where we may be defeated but how great the cost and how long the battle until victory, no one knows."

Frame Public Opinion

"After this war it will be for you young people to help frame public opinion in your communities against our nation repeating the mistakes it made after the World War by seeking false security in isolation.

"We must accept our responsibility as a world power and must stand in a partnership with other nations of the world seeking peace. No political party, but rather a philosophy, is to blame for the mistakes after the last war. Our hope in the future lies in an international policy supported by a majority of our people without regard to political parties."

After the singing of the "Alma Mater" the benediction was pronounced by Doctor Hanson. Music followed by the military academy band.

Not Legendary Heroes

The exercises there also will be preceded by a parade and the decoration of graves.

During the program at Bendersville, Harvey W. Knouse will present Lincoln's Gettysburg address. Prayer will be offered by the Rev. Harry Fehl, Jr., pastor of the Mt. Taber United Brethren church.

In his address at Wrenksville, Mr. Taylor said in part:

"Our nation's heroes whom we honor today, and whose graves we strew with flowers, are not merely legends. It was they who made America great, and who established and maintained our freedom. They were counterparts of the millions of brave young men and women—the flower of our young manhood and womanhood—who are now giving their all to maintain that priceless heritage.

"The Principles of Liberty"

"At Valley Forge Washington looked beyond the bleak hills and the bloody footprints in the snow, past the horizon, into a vision of the future—a great future for a free people. That vision survived the dark days of Valley Forge, and the anxious hours of the Civil War and World War I, and we must see to it that it survives the present global struggle.

"To our forefathers the scheme of liberty was simple and straightforward; intellectual liberty rested upon free speech, a free press, and free schools; political freedom, upon the right to vote, trial by jury, and an impartial administration of justice; religious freedom, upon liberty of conscience, and a free church in a free state; economic freedom, upon integrity of contract, free competition, and free enterprise. These are the basic principles of liberty, and we should never permit ourselves to be robbed of them.

"Let us never forget the admonition of the great Webster: 'God grants liberty only to those who love it, and are ever ready to guard and defend it.'"

HOME QUARANTINED

The home of Ivan Breighner, Gettysburg, has been placed under scarlet fever quarantine by Borough Health Officer Erle R. Deardorff, because of the illness of a daughter, Patsy Breighner, aged eight years. She is a pupil at High Street school.

Find Governors' Wives 'Representative Americans'

By MRS. R. C. WALTON

As a representative group of American women, the wives of the governors of our states can be viewed with pride by all of us. They typify the highest ideals of womanhood, they lead busy useful lives and many of them have children in the service of their country. As wives and mothers they are interested in the things which interest all of us. They are attractive and smart looking too.

Most of them wore print gowns of various colors and designs at the Memorial Day exercises. A few were in tailored suits. A striking note of color was added by the many corsages of orchids.

All of the wives in talking with Gettysburg Times reporters said they were impressed with the picture of the school children strewing flowers over the graves of the soldiers. For some of them it was a new experience, others had attended the exercises here a number of times.

Mrs. Martin, wife of Pennsylvania's governor, wore a suit of slate blue gabardine with a small navy blue hat and shoes of navy blue.

Annual Visit

Mrs. Martin makes the trip here annually and between times brings parties of friends who are interested. She was accompanied Tuesday by her two children, Captain Edward S. Martin, Jr., A. U. S., and her daughter, Mrs. James Murphy.

Mrs. Bricker, of Ohio, who was with Mrs. Martin, was paying her first visit to Gettysburg. She said that the Memorial Day exercises of which she had heard so much, more than came up to her expectations. Until recently Mrs. Bricker has been in charge of the Red Cross Nurses' work in Franklin county, Ohio.

Mrs. Warren, of California, who was also in Gettysburg for the first time, said that she could not find words to express her delight at being at the exercises. Governor and Mrs. Warren have six children, one of whom, James C., is a lieutenant in the United States Marine corps.

Speakers' Wives Together

Mrs. Broughton, of North Carolina and Mrs. Saltonstall of Massachusetts, were together not only because their husbands were speakers for the afternoon but also because of their long standing friendship.

Governor and Mrs. Broughton have one daughter and three sons, one of whom, J. Melvin, Jr., is a private in the Marine corps, and another, Robert, an air cadet.

Two of the three sons of Governor Saltonstall are in the service. Lt. Leverett, Jr., is with the airborne engineers, and Platoon Sergeant Robert Saltonstall with the Marines, both serving in the Pacific War area. They have two daughters, one of whom, Emily, R.M. 2-c is with the Waves.

Here Fifth Time

Mrs. O'Connor, of Maryland was attending the exercises here for the fifth time. Governor and Mrs. O'Connor have four sons and a daughter, one son, Herbert, Jr., is a lieutenant with the armed forces.

Mrs. Dewey, of New York, was not present because of the death of the mother of a close friend.

All of the wives, when asked about their hobbies, expressed their particular interest in their children and their gardens.

Mrs. Johnson, of South Carolina, represented her husband placing flowers at monuments. He had been called away by urgent business.

Relief Payments Higher This Week

Direct relief payments made to residents of Adams county during the week ending Friday totaled $360.30, an increase of $33.80 over the previous week and $47.40 more than for the comparable week of last year, the state treasurer's office announced today.

Unemployment compensation checks totalling $111 were mailed at the same time to residents of the Gettysburg area, the state treasurer's office said.

"The Sunrise of a New Day"

The following invocation was delivered at the exercises in the Gettysburg National Cemetery this afternoon by Dr. Abel Ross Wentz, President of the Gettysburg Lutheran Theological Seminary:

"O Lord, our God, the Father of all mankind, who wouldst have us dwell in peace with all our fellow men and pursue the arts of good will and right living, we pray Thee to give victory to the forces of righteousness now locked in desperate struggle with the forces of evil, and bring forth the sunrise of a new day in which men may dwell together in the security of their lives, in the joy of liberty, and in the salvation of their souls.

"Gracious Sovereign of the world, who has made us in thine own image and who knowest and lovest us every one, whatever our place or circumstance, we implore Thee to keep in the hollow of Thy hand safe from all harm and evil our loved ones who are now absent from us because of war; protect them wherever they are, in camp, in battle, or in prison, whether travelling or training, whether planning or doing, in health, in sickness, in wounds, or in death; give wisdom to those who lead us, whether at home or abroad, those who direct our own and our allies, that Thy righteous will may be done now and forever.

"Almighty God, the Lord of hosts, who dost guide the lives of men, dost appoint the destinies of nations, and dost direct the course of all human history, we beseech Thee to look in mercy upon our nation, make us worthy of Thy favor and help us always to know Thy will for us; restrain the brutality of slaughter, give us a quick victory over our foes on land, on sea, and in the air, and grant the whole world a just and lasting peace. Through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen."

Jumping at the Parachute school has been steadily developed to a recognized far science. There is less than one per cent chance of injury while jumping at the school.

In addition to producing jumpers, parachute specialist training is given to qualified men in communication, demolition, riggers and sewing machine maintenance, vital skills for airborne troops.

"MINUTE MEN" PARTICIPATE IN THREE PARADES

Captain C. Arthur Brame, of the Gettysburg unit of the Pennsylvania Minute Men, his staff and 57 members of the uniformed outfit, marched in three Memorial Day parades on Sunday.

The unit paraded at Arentsville early Sunday afternoon. Then the marchers participated in the parade at Biglerville after which they motored to Littlestown where they participated in the Memorial Day exercises there.

On Tuesday the Minute Men will march in the Memorial Day parade here at 1:45 o'clock and later in the afternoon will march in the parade at New Oxford.

"The Work of the United States as a Christian Nation in the Post-War World," was the title of the address given by the Rev. George W. Harrison, Bendersville, at the annual Memorial exercises held Sunday afternoon at Arentsville under the sponsorship of the Ira E. Lady post of the American Legion.

Outlines 4 Duties

Four duties were outlined for the United States by the Rev. Mr. Harrison. They included: "Introduction into the world of the principles of Jesus; overcoming bitterness and hatred by preaching good will; launching a program of help for those who have suffered from the war and showing the world that peace is possible and war can be avoided."

"This is our work as a Christian nation," he declared. "It will not be done in a year or two, for we must take the world as we find it and remake it."

"Christ was far ahead of the people of his own day and our day. Jesus visualized a world in which all men were brothers and in which love and mercy could and must prevail," he added. "The principles of Christianity have not failed—they have never been tried."

"We must not only overcome the burden of hate to make the Poles tolerate the Germans, and the people of India realize the British want to help them, we also have the problem of our own attitude toward the Negro, the Chinese and Japanese, and the Jews."

"Our task for tomorrow is the opposite of today. Today we destroy, tomorrow we must build, we must send food and medicines and builders instead of bombers, doctors instead of destroyers, nurses and nurses aides instead of Wacs and Waves. Such a program will be the proof of our Christianity."

"To show the world that peace is possible, we must end our isolationism, we must educate instead of exploit backward peoples, we must allow self-government wherever possible."

The committee of the Ira E. Lady post in charge of the affair and also at Biglerville, included: Robert Eicholtz, Clarence Deardorff and Stanton D. House.

At Biglerville

C. O. Meckley, Manover postmaster, spoke on "Our Destiny" at the exercises held at Biglerville Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Meckley pointed out that this country has been in seven wars and in each instance the basic causes for the wars have been the same.

He paid tribute to both the living and dead and paid special tribute to mothers.

The Rev. Earl Ensminger, pastor of the Heidlersburg United Brethren charge, gave the invocation, and the Rev. H. W. Sternat, pastor of the Biglerville Lutheran church, pronounced the benediction.

Music was furnished by the Biglerville high school band.

In the parade preceding the service Biglerville school children, the Pennsylvania Minutemen, the Biglerville high school band and members of patriotic organizations participated.

Pocket-Size Books Sought By Red Cross

With 144 kit bags to be packed for the Army and Navy next week, the Adams County Red Cross again today appealed for pocketbooks, the little 25-cent paper covered detective, fiction and non-fiction books that hundreds of people purchase monthly from the town's stores and throw away after reading.

"Every kit bag contains a pocket-size book," Miss Margaret McMillan, executive secretary of the county Red Cross said today, "and there are hundreds of the books available in homes in good shape and can be placed in the kitbags. If we can save the amount needed to purchase new books, then that many more kit bags can be filled from the donations we have. It costs approximately $1 to fill a kitbag and if 25 cents of that cost is borne by people turning in books, one-fourth more kit bags can be filled."

Governor Darden Of Virginia Urges College Graduates To Work For "World Peace"

Declaring that the cause of the Allies is now past the point where it may be defeated Governor Colgate W. Darden, Jr. of Virginia, in the commencement address at Gettysburg college Monday morning charged the members of the graduating class with their responsibility in the formation of public opinion that will make the United States into a partnership of nations working for world peace after this war.

"It will be for you to choose whether the United States shall again attempt to draw back into false security between the two great oceans or whether it will stand side by side with other great nations of the world in a united effort for the preservation of peace."

"To repeat our mistakes after the last war will mean that the children in our nurseries today will be welded into another great machine for another war abroad," Governor Darden warned.

Introduced by Martin

Introduced by Governor Edward Martin of Pennsylvania, in a 10-minute appearance on the commencement platform, Governor Darden spoke for 20 minutes at the 112th annual graduation exercises on the campus at the north portico of Old Dorm. The 64 graduates, 12 of whom finished their studies in January, received their diplomas in traditional academic gowns and in the uniforms of the United States Army and Navy. Only 53 of the seniors were in attendance, most of the absentees having already entered the armed forces making it impossible for them to attend.

A crowd of more than 500 persons gathered for the graduation exercises of the smallest class in a generation, unique in Gettysburg college history in that more than half of its members—37—were women students.

Busy At Hershey

Because Governor Martin was occupied at Hershey in extending the state's welcome to the Governors' conference this morning, the commencement program was re-arranged at the last minute so that the presentation of Governor Martin's degree and his introduction of the graduation speaker could be delayed as long as possible.

When all other degrees were conferred and the diplomas presented, Governor Martin arrived on the campus and was escorted to the platform by Dr. Frank H. Kramer, marshal for the academic procession.

Presented by Judge Hiram H. Keller, of the college board of trustees, as "Governor and first citizen of Pennsylvania, and lawyer, soldier and executive" for the degree of Doctor of Laws, Dr. Henry W. A. Hanson, president of the college, conferred the degree upon Governor Martin "as Governor of Pennsylvania and my warm personal friend."

Then expressing the college's "debt of appreciation" to Governor Martin for his convenience involved in his campus visit, Doctor Hanson presented the governor to make the introduction speech for Governor Darden.

Presents Darden

Governor Martin said, "I appreciate the honor just conferred upon me by this magnificent old institution more than words can express." Then turning to Governor Darden he said, "Governor Darden, 51 years ago we welcomed to Gettysburg a great soldier from your state in a very different way."

He referred to the visit here Tuesday of all of the governors attending the conference at Hershey and declared "the distinguished group is coming to Gettysburg for one great purpose—to show to the world the unity of America in our great cause."

His formal presentation of Governor Darden followed and then with apologies to Doctor Hanson for his hasty departure and a handshake with the college president, Governor Martin left the platform, and O'Donnell and stepped into a waiting car which whisked him off to Hershey where he was due at a luncheon meeting of the governors at 12:30 o'clock. Governor Darden of New Jersey, who also presented an LL.D. degree, followed a few minutes later in another car.

Academy Band

After the ceremony, the band from Gettysburg college, led by Dr. W. E. Tibbitts, played the national anthem, and the invocation was given by the Rev. Howard Frank Brock, pastor of the First Methodist church. A few minutes later, the band played the alma mater, and the college hymn.

The class of 1944 was then introduced by Dr. W. E. Tibbitts and diplomas were conferred to them by Doctor Hanson after which he spoke briefly to the graduates and offered prayer. Presentation of honorary degrees followed.

As he conferred the degree of Doctor of Science in Education upon Dr. Clyde B. Stover, Doctor Hanson paid a special tribute to the 47 years of service rendered the college by Doctor Stover as registrar and professor of chemistry. He described the retired college official as "one of the great men of the college."

For The South For The North

Governor J. Melville Broughton was born in Raleigh, North Carolina, in 1888. He acquired his formal education at Wake Forest College and Harvard University Law School. His early occupations included positions as newspaper reporter, school teacher, and school superintendent. For the last 26 years he has devoted his time to the practice of law. He served as City Attorney of Raleigh, Judge of the Township Recorder's Court, member of the State Senate for two terms, and Chairman of the North Carolina Housing Board. He is a member of the Executive Committee of the Governors' Conference. One of his sons is in the U. S. Marine Corps and another is in Naval Aviation. He was inaugurated in January, 1941, and his term will expire in January, 1945.

Governor Leverett Saltonstall was born at Chestnut Hill, Massachusetts, in 1892. His college training was at Harvard, where he received A.B. and LL.B. degrees. In 1917 he went overseas as a First Lieutenant in the 301st Field Artillery. Governor Saltonstall has followed a family tradition of public service through his activities as assistant District Attorney of Middlesex county, Alderman of Newton, and member, later Speaker, of the Massachusetts House of Representatives. At present he is Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Governors' Conference and President of the Council of State Governments. He has one son in the Army, one in the Marines, and a daughter in the WAVES. He was inaugurated in January, 1939, and re-elected in November, 1940-1942, and his term will expire in January, 1945.

of the finest men it is my privilege to know."

Tribute To Martin

As Governor Martin mounted the platform, the Valley Forge band played "Old No. 9" and won special praise from the Governor for the selection. "It meant a great deal to me," he said.

In the introduction to his address, Governor Darden praised the important role played in our national life by the liberal arts colleges. "If the liberal arts school were to decline and fall, their decline would be followed within a generation by the fall of democratic government," he declared.

He launched his estimation of world affairs with the observation that the League of Nations plan, "although an imperfect instrument offered the best opportunity for preserving peace that then was available—an opportunity that we lost and never again were offered."

Signs of War

He named the Japanese invasion of China in 1931 as the beginning of World War II and cited the later invasions in Africa by the Italians as growing signs of the holocaust that was to come. At Munich, he said, the French and English sought to purchase peace at the cost of the life of weaker nations. He said he did not believe fear of German might caused Chamberlain and Daladier to act—for "I believe they did not know then how strong Germany was." The lesson to learn from Munich, he declared, is that the peace of the world cannot be purchased at the cost of weak nations.

"Only courage and Divine providence saved the English speaking nations after Dunkerque," he asserted. "Hitler lost this war on June 22, 1941, when he invaded Russia on a 2,000-mile front. We are now beyond the point where we may be defeated but how great the cost and how long the battle until victory, no one knows."

Frame Public Opinion

After this war it will be for you young people to help frame public opinion in your communities against our nation repeating the mistakes it made after the World War by seeking false security in isolation.

We must accept our responsibility as a world power and must stand in a partnership with other nations of the world seeking peace. No political party, but rather a philosophy, is to blame for the mistakes after the last war. Our hope is to create a new international policy supported by a majority of our people without regard to political parties."

After the signing of the "Alma Mater" the benediction was pronounced by Doctor Hanson. Music followed by the military academy band.

Donald McPherson

Reports For Duty

Donald P. McPherson, Jr., attorney of Science in Education upon Dr. Clyde B. Stover, Doctor Hanson paid a special tribute to the 47 years of service rendered the college by Doctor Stover as registrar and professor of chemistry. He described the retired college official as "one of the great men of the college."

HOLD MEMORIAL RITES IN UPPER COUNTY TOWNS

Leighton C. Taylor, Esq., Bendersville, was the speaker at annual Memorial services conducted at Wrensville this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. The exercises were held in the Lutheran church after graves in the Wrensville cemetery had been decorated by a procession of citizens.

Members of the Ira E. Lady post of the American Legion conducted the Legion ritual. Music for the parade and exercises in the cemetery was provided by the Biglerville high school band.

At the conclusion of the exercises at Wrensville the Legionnaires and band members went to Bendersville where Memorial services are to be held in the Bendersville cemetery at 3:30 o'clock with the Rev. Ralph R. Gresh, pastor of St. James Lutheran church of Gettysburg as the guest speaker.

Not Legendary Heroes

The exercises there also will be preceded by a parade and the decoration of graves.

During the program at Bendersville, Harvey W. Knouse will present Lincoln's Gettysburg address. Prayer will be offered by the Rev. Harry Fehl, Jr., pastor of the Mt. Taber United Brethren church.

In his address at Wrensville Mr. Taylor said in part:

"Our nation's heroes whom we honor today, and whose graves we strew with flowers, are not merely legends. It was they who made America great, and who established and maintained our freedom. They were counterparts of the millions of brave young men and women—the flower of our young manhood and womanhood—who are now giving their all to maintain that priceless heritage."

"The Principles of Liberty"

"At Valley Forge Washington looked beyond the bleak hills and the bloody footprints in the snow, past the horizon, into a vision of the future—a great future for a free people. That vision survives the dark days of Valley Forge, and the anxious hours of the Civil War and World War I, and we must see to it that it survives the present global struggle."

"To our forefathers the scheme of liberty was simple and straightforward, intellectual liberty rested upon free speech, a free press, and free schools; political freedom, upon the right to vote, trial by jury, and an impartial administration of justice; religious freedom, upon liberty of conscience, and a free church in a free state; economic freedom, upon integrity of contract, free competition and free enterprise. These are the basic principles of liberty, and we should never permit ourselves to be robbed of them."

Find Governors' Wives 'Representative Americans'

By MRS. R. C. WALTON
As a representative group of American women, the wives of the governors of our states can be viewed with pride by all of us. They typify the highest ideals of womanhood, they lead busy useful lives and many of them have children in the service of their country. As wives and mothers they are interested in the things which interest all of us. They are attractive and smart looking too.

Most of them wore print gowns of various colors and designs at the Memorial Day exercises. A few were in tailored suits. A striking note of color was added by the many corsages of orchids.

All of the wives in talking with Gettysburg Times reporters said they were impressed with the picture of the school children strewing flowers over the graves of the soldiers. For some of them it was a new experience, others had attended the exercises here a number of times.

Mrs. Martin, wife of Pennsylvania's governor, wore a suit of slate blue gabardine with a small navy blue hat and shoes of navy blue.

Annual Visit
Mrs. Martin makes the trip here annually and between times brings parties of friends who are interested. She was accompanied Tuesday by her two children, Captain Edward S. Martin, Jr., a U. S. A., and her daughter, Mrs. James Murphy.

Mrs. Bricker, of Ohio, who was with Mrs. Martin, was paying her first visit to Gettysburg. She said that the Memorial Day exercises of which she had heard so much, more than came up to her expectations. Until recently Mrs. Bricker has been in charge of the Red Cross Nurses' Aide work in Franklin county, Ohio.

Mrs. Warren, of California, who was also in Gettysburg for the first time, said that she could not find words to express her delight at being at the exercises. Governor and Mrs. Warren have six children, one of whom, James C., is a lieutenant in the United States Marine corps.

Speakers' Wives Together
Mrs. Broughton, of North Carolina and Mrs. Saltonstall of Massachusetts, were together not only because their husbands were speakers for the afternoon but also because of their long standing friendship.

Governor and Mrs. Broughton have one daughter and three sons, one of whom, J. Melvin, Jr., is a private in the Marine corps, and another, Robert, an air cadet.

Two of the three sons of Governor Saltonstall are in the service, Lt. Leverett, Jr., is with the airborne engineers and Platoon Sergeant Robert Saltonstall with the Marines, both serving in the Pacific War area. They have two daughters, one of whom, Emily, R.M. 2-c is with the Waves.

Here Fifth Time
Mrs. O'Connor, of Maryland was attending the exercises here for the fifth time. Governor and Mrs. O'Connor have four sons and a daughter, one son, Herbert, Jr., is a lieutenant with the armed forces.

Mrs. Dewey, of New York, was not present because of the death of the mother of a close friend.

All of the wives, when asked about their hobbies, expressed their particular interest in their children and their gardens.

Mrs. Johnson, of South Carolina, represented her husband placing flowers at monuments. He had been called away by urgent business.

Direct relief payments made to residents of Adams county during the week ending Friday totaled $360.30, an increase of $33.80 over the previous week and $47.40 more than for the comparable week of last year, the state treasurer's office announced today.

Unemployment compensation checks totaling $111 were mailed at the same time to residents of the Gettysburg area, the state treasurer's office said.

"The Sunrise of a New Day"

The following invocation was delivered at the exercises in the Gettysburg National Cemetery this afternoon by Dr. Abdel Ross Wentz, President of the Gettysburg Lutheran Theological Seminary:

"O Lord, our God, the Father of all mankind, who wouldst have us dwell in peace with all our fellow men and pursue the arts of good will and right living, we pray Thee to give victory to the forces of righteousness now locked in desperate struggle with the forces of evil, and bring forth the sunrise of a new day in which men may dwell together in the security of their lives, in the joy of liberty, and in the salvation of their souls."

"Gracious Sovereign of the world, who has made us in thine own image and who knowest and lovest us every one, whatever our place or circumstance, we implore Thee to keep in the hollow of Thy hand safe from all harm and evil our loved ones who are now absent from us because of war; protect them wherever they are, in camp, in battle, or in prison, whether travelling or training, whether planning or doing, in health, in sickness, in wounds, or in death; give wisdom to those who lead us, whether at home or abroad; those who direct our own and our allies, that Thy righteous will may be done now and forever."

"Almighty God, the Lord of hosts, who dost guide the lives of men, dost appoint the destinies of nations, and dost direct the course of all human history, we beseech Thee to look in mercy upon our nation, make us worthy of Thy favor and help us always to know Thy will for us; restrain the brutality of slaughter, give us a quick victory over our foes on land, on sea, and in the air, and grant the whole world a just and lasting peace. Through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen."

Wings And Boots Won By Lt. Bucher

Second Lt. Wayne A. Bucher, son of Mr. and Mrs. I. C. Bucher, Gettysburg, has won the right to wear Wings and Boots of the U. S. Army Paratroops after completion of a four weeks of jump training at Ft. Benning, Georgia, during which he made five jumps from a plane in flight.

Jumping at the Parachute school has been steadily developed to a recognized far science. There is less than one per cent chance of injury while jumping at the school.

In addition to producing jumpers, parachute specialist training is given to qualified men in communication, demolition, riggers and sewing machine maintenance, vital skills for airborne troops.

NEARBY SCENIC AREA CLEARED OF ADVERTISING

One of the most beautiful scenic areas in Pennsylvania, one that will attract even the most casual visitor because it is devoid of any commercial displays, is the eight mile stretch of Lincoln highway, from a point just west of Cash-town and extending to a designated marker a mile or so west of Caledonia Park.

Along this stretch of rolling concrete highway the Scenic Area Improvement Committee of Pennsylvania, Inc., has demonstrated that "Pennsylvania Beautiful" is not a by-word or a product of the vivid imagination of the sales promotion group of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Remove 105 Signs

Four years ago 105 outdoor, commercial displays were strung along this eight-mile route. Today the route is barren of any and all billboards. And it all came about through the cooperative efforts of seven agencies working in harmonious cooperation with the Scenic Area Improvement Committee of Pennsylvania.

Kipling once wrote that "If You Off to Pennsylvania in the Morning," the glory and grandeur of nature at its peak awaits the traveler. Sensing the value and import of this expression and appreciating the scenic wonders of the Keystone state, the Scenic Area Improvement Committee of Pennsylvania was organized.

Soon there was embraced in this organization the General Outdoor Advertising Company, the Outdoor Advertising Association of Pennsylvania, the National Advertising Company, The Pennsylvania Hotel Association, The Pennsylvania Department of Commerce, The Associated Petroleum Industry comprising fourteen of the major oil companies of the nation, and the Highway Property Owners Association.

25 Scenic Areas

This group, under Field Secretary Howard C. Mittinger, of Gettysburg, selected the eight mile scenic area, mentioned above, as an experimental area to demonstrate that outdoor advertisers are not prone to mar the scenic beauty of the more than 25 picturesque areas in Pennsylvania.

With their full cooperation and the cooperation of every type of business which normally uses the medium of roadside advertising the Committee set about clearing the area of outdoor advertising and other objectionable items. In less than four years the 8-mile scenic area has been entirely cleared of every form of outdoor signs, and leads the state in the clearing of designated scenic area.

Association posters, painted bulletins, non-association signs, painted barns (with one or two exceptions which will soon be eliminated), small signs, commercial type and snipe signs have been removed from this scenic area.

Picturesque Areas

The vista for all motorists today is picturesque and colorful. There are mountains and valleys, winding turns and straightaways. But throughout the ribbon of concrete not a commercial sign mars the vision of the visitor.

It is proof beyond contradiction that Pennsylvania's outdoor advertisers are intensely interested in preserving the scenic grandeur of "Pennsylvania Beautiful" for every visitor who comes to Pennsylvania in the morning.

"MISSING" BOY WAR PRISONER; IS IN HOSPITAL

Pvt. Charles Howard Gardner, 19 son of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Gardner, York Springs R. 1, who had been "missing in action" in Italy since January 22, now is officially reported as a prisoner of the Germans. The youth's parents have a card from their son written from a German prison hospital.

Early in March the family was notified by telegram from the War Department that their son had been reported missing January 22 following heavy action "near Rome." It was assumed that young Gardner took part in heroic fighting at that time on the Anzio beachhead.

After receiving that word the family asked the county Red Cross chapter office and the local prison-offer-of-war consultant, Dr. Earl J. Bowen for information that may be available about their son.

This week a letter was received from the War Department telling the parents their son is now known officially to be a prisoner of the Germans.

Mr. and Mrs. Gardner also have received a card from their son, dated May 3, stating that he is in a hospital in the hands of Germans and that he expects soon to be able to be removed from the hospital to a prisoner-of-war camp.

Gardner entered the service last year. He attended York Springs high school for a year.

Mrs. Dale C. Pottorff, Gettysburg R. 4, has received word her husband, Pfc. Pottorff, has arrived safely in England.

Memorial Day

stroled through the long lines of military graves, strewing the flowers over the grass as they went.

"In the nearby city of Harrisburg, the Governors of several states . . . Northern and Southern alike . . . have convened to discuss common problems of the nation as a whole. This afternoon they have come here with respect and reverence to take part in special memorial exercises which you will hear in the minutes to follow. Thousands upon thousands of citizens have gathered around the speaker's platform . . . and to open these ceremonies, I present the Rev. Dr. Abdel Ross Wentz, President of the Lutheran Theological Seminary."

Dr. Wentz then delivered the invocation and the uniformed cadet band from the Valley Forge Military Academy, softly played "My Country 'Tis of Thee."

Distinguished Speakers

Mr. Lewis followed with: "Among the speakers you will hear at these ceremonies today, will be appropriately, the Governor of a great Commonwealth which was on the Union side in the War Between the States, and the Governor of an equally great state that was on the Confederate side. It is fitting that they be presented to you by the host-Governor, and to that end, it is my great pleasure and privilege to present to you, a man who himself is a veteran of three wars, His Excellency, Edward Martin, Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania."

Governor Martin then delivered his address.

During the course of his talk he presented William S. Livengood, Jr., Secretary of Internal Affairs, who gave a splendid rendition of Lincoln's Gettysburg Address. The Valley Forge Academy band softly played "The Battle Hymn of the Republic."

Governor Martin then introduced Governor J. Melville Broughton, of North Carolina, who spoke "For the Old South." As he rose to speak the band played "Dixie" and the throng applauded. There were a few Rebel yell.

Yankee Doodle

Governor Martin then introduced Governor Leverett Saltonstall, of Massachusetts, who spoke "For the Old North." As the crowd applauded his appearance before the microphones the band played "Yankee Doodle."

After Governor Saltonstall spoke the band played "Abide With Me." and Governor Martin presented the Rev. Ralph R. Gresh, pastor of St. James Lutheran church, who delivered the benediction. Just before concluding his benediction the band played "Taps," a soldier's requiem, a trumpet sound-ed the call and a second trumpet sounded the echo.

A surprise guest at the exercises was presented by Governor Martin. He was Frank Forrest, noted radio star, who led the audience in sing-

18 PAROCHIAL SCHOOL PUPILS ARE GRADUATED

Outstanding achievement awards were presented to Donald Weaver, Helen Eberhart and Mary Louise Cole, of the eighth grade of St. Francis Xavier Catholic school Sunday evening at the annual eighth grade graduation exercises held at St. Francis Xavier Catholic church.

Eighteen eighth-graders, ten girls and eight boys, made up the graduating class which was presented with diplomas by the Rev. Mark E. Stock, pastor of the church. The prizes awarded to the outstanding students were given by the Mothers' Club of St. Francis Xavier school.

The graduation exercises were conducted in connection with the annual May procession held from the school through the church with 200 students taking part. Nearly 1,000 persons jammed the church to witness the services.

Church Procession

Led by altar boys carrying a crucifix, the students marched through the aisles of the church with the members of the eighth grade and their attendants kneeling at the altar rail while the crowning of the statue of the Blessed Virgin took place. Barbara Welshaugh, seven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Welshaugh, was crown bearer with Sonia Neary and Barbara Kerrigan as attendants.

A prayer dedicating the men in the armed forces to the Blessed Virgin was read by Patricia Bushey, daughter of Petty Officer and Mrs. Joseph F. Bushey, Fairfield road.

List Attendees

He urged fidelity to the sacraments upon the graduating class, urging the boys to join the Holy Name Society and the girls to join the Sodality of the Blessed Virgin Mary, both of which organizations monthly attend Holy Communion in a body. He urged the students "and their mothers and fathers here tonight to give battle against the world's mistakes."

The youngsters who were attendants for the eighth graders were dressed in white, with the girls wearing floral wreaths in their hair. All carried flowers. They included:

ing "The Star Spangled Banner." Mr. Lewis concluded the broadcast and program with these words: "So end these Memorial Day ceremonies, in the peace of the Gettysburg National cemetery, where 80 years ago this great American Republic survived its most dangerous and challenging crisis. The fields are green, and the skies are blue, which will be true also in the years to come, of other battlefields all over the world, which today are shattered with explosions and bathed in heroic blood."

Dedications

"To those, then and now, who have given their lives that we may be free, and to those on whom the finger of fate will fall before peace comes again, these ceremonies and this broadcast has been dedicated."

"They have committed themselves gloriously then as now, in carrying out that simple but devout vow of the immortal Lincoln: 'The Federal Union. It must be preserved.'"

Most of the large crowd waited until the governors and their party had entered cars and drove off to various sites on the battlefield where they laid wreaths at the foot of their state's memorial.

In the absence of the governors of Texas, Georgia and Mississippi, Governor Martin laid wreaths at memorials erected by those states. He also laid a wreath at the Pennsylvania memorial.

The distinguished party then re-assembled at Bloody Angle where Dr. J. Walter Coleman, superintendent of the Gettysburg National park, gave a brief resume of Pickett's Charge.

70 Reporters Here

Then the guests entered state cars, each chauffeured by a uniformed state trooper, each flying an American flag and the state flag of the governor who was riding therein and each displaying a special license tag inscribed with the name of the state he represents.

The governors were dinner guests at the Carlisle barracks and the wives were dinner guests in Harrisburg.

Seventy reporters and a host of cameramen, including newswreel men and women reporters covered the program for the news services, daily newspapers and magazines.

War Prevents Attendance

"Pressing business in this part of the world prevents me from attending the thirtieth anniversary reunion of the class of 1914," Brig. Gen. Charles A. Willoughby, member of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's staff, explained in a letter read at his class dinner Saturday evening at the Hotel Gettysburg.

General Willoughby expressed the hope that he will be able to be present for a post-war anniversary meeting of his classmates. Another distinguished member of the class of 1914, Spurgeon M. Keeney, New York city, one of Gettysburg college's two Rhodes scholars, also sent greetings. At the last minute he had to abandon plans to come here for the reunion.

Allison Mentioned For Taute Position

Mrs. Anna Taute, widow of Captain Carl M. Taute, superintendent of the Gettysburg National cemetery from April, 1942, until his recent death, and her family today moved to their home at Sharpsburg, Maryland, where Captain Taute was superintendent of a National cemetery prior to his appointment here. The Tautes had previously planned to move prior to Memorial Day but their new home was not ready for occupancy until today.

No appointment has been made of a successor to Captain Taute so far as could be learned Wednesday.

William A. Allison, former historian at the local National Park office and now a member of the park staff at Fort McHenry, has been prominently mentioned as being considered for the post. Dr. J. Walter Coleman, superintendent of the park, today said that he had no information whatsoever about any appointment although he expected National Park officials would take some action in filling the post shortly.

CHURCH FILLED FOR HIGH SCHOOL BACCALAUREATE

Members of the graduating class of the Gettysburg high school, the faculty and board of education, parents of the seniors and their relations and friends filled St. James Lutheran church Sunday evening for the annual baccalaureate service. The sermon was delivered by the Rev. Charles K. Gibson, pastor of the Gettysburg Methodist church, on the theme, "The Compelling Light."

The Rev. Ralph R. Gresh, St. James pastor, conducted the service after the gownned seniors took their places in a reserved section at the front of the church.

A junior choir, including a number of members of the graduating class presented two anthems under the direction of Richard B. Shade, supervisor of music and organist at the church. In the first anthem, "Fear Not, I Am with Thee," a solo was presented by Miss Treva Munshour. The second anthem, sung after the baccalaureate sermon, was "Send Forth Thy Light," by Balakirev.

Fear No Defeats

After the benediction by the Rev. Mr. Gibson, the congregation remained in their places as the class members marched from the church as the organist played "Marche Heroique" by Saint-Saens.

The Rev. Mr. Gibson pointed the graduates toward "a God of infinite love who stands beside every one of us." Urging the seniors to keep their lives "free from bigotry, hypocrisy and deceit," he assured them that defeats in their lives are not as important "as what you do with those defeats and how you react in the midst of them."

"Never give way to the spirit of defeat. Never lose faith in your fellowmen and above all don't lose faith in yourself," he continued. Pointing to Jesus Christ as "the light of the world that can control, compel and complete our lives," he urged the graduates to find "glimpses of that light throughout your life to inspire you and to enable you to live lives that are upright and worth while."

GENERAL WILLOUGHBY

LITTLESTOWN MARINE GETS SILVER STAR

U. S. Naval Hospital, Shoemaker, Calif., May 31—Marine Cpl. James Richard Stonesifer, 23, of 417 South Queen street, Littlestown, was awarded the Silver Star Medal for gallantry at Cape Torokina on Bougainville, in a recent decoration ceremony here.

The citation, extended in the name of the President of the United States and signed by Admiral William F. Halsey, USN, reads:

"For conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity in action against the enemy in the Cape Torokina area on Bougainville, British Solomon Islands, during the period from December 20 to 24, 1943. Corporal Stonesifer was a member of a six-man reconnaissance patrol which advanced several thousand yards into enemy held territory. The patrol made contact with the enemy and after a brief fire fight, proceeded around the opposing force and into a Japanese bivouac area, where they remained during the night obtaining valuable military information."

Three Killed

"Upon leaving the area the patrol was discovered and subjected to intense and accurate enemy machine gun fire which killed three members of the patrol and wounded Corporal Stonesifer in the left arm and leg. Regarding the pain from his wounds, he continued with the patrol and engaged in fierce combat with the enemy on two occasions, during which time he personally destroyed a machine gun nest with hand grenades and killed two Japanese attempting to emplace another gun."

"Thereafter, he advanced further into enemy territory with his comrades, where he remained at an observation post for 23 hours within a few feet of enemy positions."

"His outstanding courage, aggressive determination, and devotion to duty inspired the members of the patrol and were in keeping with the highest traditions of the United States Naval Service."

A grandson of Mrs. Lucy Millhimes, Littlestown, Corporal Stonesifer worked for C. W. Crouse, Gettysburg, before his enlistment in the Marine Corps on August 18, 1942.

39 GRADUATES AT BIGLERVILLE HEAR ADDRESS

The Rev. Nevin R. Frantz, who delivered the baccalaureate sermon to the 39 members of the graduating class of Biglerville high school Sunday evening at St. Pauls Lutheran church, had as his subject "Builders of a Better Tomorrow," from Corinthians, using the verse "For other foundation can no man lay than that which is laid, which is Jesus Christ," as a text.

The Rev. Mr. Frantz stressed the importance of "religious beliefs and practices which will be vital in the future instead of depending entirely upon the older ones which were sufficient to their day but inadequate for the tomorrow." He charged the class members to go forth into the world and become better men and women because of the tasks which they will have to face.

Following an organ prelude and processionary played by Miss Dorothy Sternat, the Rev. Henry W. Sternat gave the call to worship and the audience joined in pronouncing the invocation.

Several selections by the high school glee club, under the direction of Prof. Charles L. Yost, were included on the program and the benediction was pronounced by the Rev. Mr. Frantz.

Firemen Scrub Borough Streets

Working for nearly five hours Monday night and early Tuesday morning, Gettysburg fire company "spring housecleaned" the streets radiating from center square in preparation for visit here Tuesday of the governors of the various states for Memorial Day exercises.

Starting at 8:30 o'clock Monday evening the 25 firemen who answered the call by Fire Chief James A. Aumen for men to do the street washing job worked until nearly 1:30 o'clock this morning in order to do what was described by a number of residents today as "the finest job of street cleaning ever seen in Gettysburg."

The firemen, using full pressure, held the hose down nearly against the street pavement in order to force out accumulation of dirt that ordinary sweeping could not remove.

CAR MEMORIAL SERVICES HELD FRIDAY EVENING

Our men in the armed forces are "a wall unto us both by night and by day" and they fight, "not against the soldiers of the opposite side, as such, not against any nation as such, but against all who, uncaring the sacrifice, the blood, tears and treasure poured forth, heap up armaments and sow seeds of bitterness and strife," the Rev. Robert M. Hunt, pastor of the Gettysburg Presbyterian church, declared Friday evening at the annual GAR Memorial services held by the local Sons of Union Veterans in the post rooms on East Middle street.

He asserted that the "pages of history are here and there stained by the black deeds of tyrants. From Cain to Hitler there is a long procession of despotic characters, who in order to feed their insatiable desire for power and prestige have trampled over the lives of all who were luckless enough to be in the way."

Opportunity for Us

Against this "procession of tyrants 60 centuries long" have stood the "men who rally at the call of duty to fight for the honor of the plighted word, for freedom from militaristic aggression and for right," as have the men in the armed forces at the present time, he said. "The hour called for resistance. It meant erecting a barrier of human bodies and a stalwart souls to form a wall against the forces of evil."

"The young men of our country went out to hold back the forces of evil until we who are at home should have opportunity to do something about building a better world, a world strong enough to hold its own, a world with a better plan of living wherein men would be ashamed to align themselves with the forces of darkness in a world of light. These honored dead have done just that. They have gone forth to hold back the tempests of evil, the sandstorms of oppression and subjection. Each has gone in answer to the call of his own times, each to face with stalwart devotion to his country, the cruel blasts of the winds of adversity."

"Such service is effectual only when it awakens an adequate response in others. The pen of the poet, the brush of the painter, the tongue of the orator are inadequate to express the glory of our immortal dead."

Conduct GAR Ritual

"We must see to it that a higher value is put upon the sacrifice of those who endured so much, who achieved so much, who served the cause of our race so nobly."

"How shall this be done? Let us carry on where they were forced to lay down their great obligation. After all what all of our brave dead fought against was war—that they and their loved ones might have opportunity to live in peace. War is a pestilence. It can be banished when mankind wills it wholeheartedly. If the nations would join hands in this God-entrusted work, it could be done. But the obligation rests upon us as Christian men and women to hold high the torch of freedom, kindled by the resolute courage of our kinsmen and fed by the oil of their devotion. We must not, we dare not break faith with those who die in freedom's cause."

The memorial service opened with the singing of "My Country 'Tis of Thee," followed by invocation by the Rev. Mr. Hunt and the singing of "Faith of Our Fathers." George Black, post chaplain, led the singing and took part in the memorial ritual in the part of post commander. William Meals was adjutant for the GAR ritual and David Tawney chaplain. "Our Native Land" was sung following the Rev. Mr. Hunt's address and the Rev. Charles K. Gibson, pastor of the local Methodist church, pronounced the benediction.

"MISSING" MAN NOW REPORTED NAZI PRISONER

First Lieutenant John M. Hock, Jr., 22, husband of Mrs. Irene Hock, 229 North Stratton street, who was reported missing in action over enemy occupied Europe on April 18, Tuesday, was said by the War Department to have been taken prisoner by the Germans.

A telegram received by Mrs. Hock on Memorial Day stated: "Report just received through International Red Cross states that your husband, Lt. John M. Hock, Jr., is prisoner of war of the German government. Letter of information will follow from the Provost Marshall General." The telegram was signed, "Dunklop, acting Adjutant General."

A telegram received May 5 from the War Department announced that he was missing. On May 1, Mrs. Hock had received word from Lt. Perry Futrell, a bombardier on the Flying Fortress of which Lieutenant Hock was navigator, that the plane was missing. The bombardier had been ill and was hospitalized, hence was unable to make the last trip of the Fortress crew, wrote Mrs. Hock.

In England Since October

Lieutenant Hock, a son of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Hock, Chambersburg, has been in England since last October and enlisted in the Army Air Forces in April 1942. He was appointed an aviation cadet on October 21, 1942, and was sent to Nashville, Tennessee. He graduated from Seaman Field, Monroe, Louisiana, July 24, 1943, receiving his wings and commission as a second lieutenant at that time.

CONCERN FELT IN U. S. FOR BRITISH STAND ON SPAIN

(Associated Press War Analyst)
British Prime Minister Churchill's unexpected pronouncement of "kind words about Spain" is causing puzzlement, not unmixed with concern, in this country.

Pro-Nazi Spain continues to give Hitler material aid with which to wage war against us. Her position is not identical with that of some pro-Allied neutrals which have been forced to serve the German tyrant. That raises a problem which is likely to get hotter before it cools.

The average American's reaction to this issue seems to be concerned mainly by the fact that the Allies are about to undertake the greatest and most hazardous amphibious invasion of history. He is uncomfortably aware that vast numbers of the troops which will fight their way up the beaches from the sea on D-Day will be our boys.

Mr. Churchill's gesture advanced the thesis that Spain had contributed to the United Nations cause, among other ways, by resisting Nazi pressure to take over Gibraltar and close the straits, and by ignoring the huge Allied operations close to the Spanish coast for the invasion of Africa. Thus Spain made backhanded amends for some of her irregularities towards the Allies.

Different Point Of View
There are many reasons why Britain should wish to win Spain over. Churchill named several, including the hope "that she will be a strong influence for the peace of the Mediterranean after the war."

At another point he said:
"I look forward to increasingly good relations with Spain and extremely fruitful trade between Spain and this country, which I trust will grow during war and expand after peace."

Well, America wants friendship with Spain, too, but our viewpoint appears to be somewhat different. Despite Mr. Churchill's speech, President Roosevelt later expressed the opinion that Spain's shipments of supplies to Germany haven't yet been reduced enough. It strikes me that our average citizen is likely to demand an answer to two questions:

Should Compel Spain
1. Does Spain's shipment of supplies to Germany mean loss of life to American soldiers?
2. Is it possible that these supplies will protract the conflict, thereby causing further death and destruction, and wastage of the resources of many nations?

The answers to these queries are so obviously in the affirmative that they need no discussion. With these before him, the average citizen is inclined not to give a tanker's darn about anything else.

He believes the Allies are powerful enough to compel Spain to recognize that it pays to be good. He thinks we have the right to do that.

MANY COLLEGE CLASSES HOLD REUNIONS HERE

With alumni of Gettysburg college coming back to their Alma Mater Saturday in larger numbers than had been at first indicated, a half dozen class dinners were conducted Saturday evening in Gettysburg by anniversary classes. Informal gatherings were held by other classes at the annual alumni collation and meeting Saturday afternoon.

One of the largest gatherings was staged by the fiftieth anniversary group, the class of 1894, while the largest group reporting was the class of 1924 which had 33 members and guests at their dinner.

21 At Dinner
There were 21 persons at the 1894 class dinner at the Hotel Gettysburg Saturday evening, including 13 members of the class and guests. Elmer Stahl, professor of mathematics at Midland college, Fremont, Nebraska, traveled the greatest distance to attend the affair which was conducted without a formal program permitting the old grads to devote their time to a discussion of "by-gone days."

Roses for all of the members of the class were distributed by Mrs. Cora Hartman Berkey, West Broadway.

Those present included: The Rev. Dr. C. P. Bastian, Altoona; the Rev. Dr. L. A. Bush, Bowling Springs; the Rev. John S. English, Saxton, Pa.; Calvin K. Gilbert, Hanover street; Mrs. Berkey, Mrs. Margaret Himes Seebach, Litt D., Merion, Pa.; the Rev. Dr. Julius F. Seebach, Merion; the Rev. Dr. M. S. Kemp, Hazleton; T. Z. Minehart, Esq., St. Thomas, R. D. Professor Stahl, Col. Edgar S. Strayer, Rehoboth Beach, Del., U. S. Army retired; Dr. C. B. Stover, Gettysburg, and E. E. Rippman, Millerstown, Pa.

4 From 1899 Class
Four members of the class of 1899 gathered for an informal dinner Saturday evening at the Hotel Gettysburg. The class members present included Dr. Harvey D. Hoover of the Seminary faculty; Charles H. Smith, West Broadway; J. Frank Staley, Washington, D. C., and Charles H. Spayd, York.

The class of 1904 held its 40th anniversary reunion at the Battle-field hotel, enjoying a chicken dinner. Members of the class and their families totaling 30 persons were present. Arrangements had been made by a committee, of which Dr. A. R. Wentz was the chairman and Norton Miller a member.

Dr. William W. Barkley, of Shipensburg, president of the class, acted as toastmaster, and called for remarks from each one present. The singing of "Alma Mater" and the 1904 class song were included in the program. A period of silent prayer was observed in memory of the 19 members who have died since this class of 68 members entered college in 1900. President H. W. A. Hanson visited the reunion and made appropriate remarks.

Class officers elected for the next five years are: President, Mrs. Roy C. Dougherty, of Reading (the former Carrie Inglebert, of Gettysburg); vice presidents, Dr. A. R. Wentz, of the Gettysburg Seminary; Samuel A. Conway, Harrisburg, and William C. Lott, of Palatine Bridge, New York; secretary treasurer, Paul Froehlich, of Washington, D. C.; representative for the second generation, Frederick K. Wentz, and representative for the loyalty fund, Prof. Fred G. Masters, of Pittsburgh.

The class voted to continue indefinitely the publication of the annual "1904 Bulletin," which has been issued for 40 years. Mr. Froehlich, who has served as editor during 30 years, was reelected to that position. During the other 10 years of its history, C. B. Gladfelter, of New York city, was editor.

Among members present at this reunion was Dr. Paul B. Dunbar, of Washington, D. C., who is now the commissioner of food and drugs, Federal Security Agency. He was accompanied by his daughter, Jane Dunbar, class of 1940, who recently completed her training and received silver wings of the WASP at Sweet-

Moose Official Is Speaker Here

George E. Gwilliam, supreme councilman of the Loyal Order of Moose, was the speaker Sunday afternoon at the local Moose lodge when a class of more than 200 candidates was admitted to the lodge. The York degree team was in charge of the initiation.

Governor Paul Miller, of the local lodge, presided at the installation of the new class which brings membership in the order here to 655.

PROFESSOR IDLE AND GOV. DEWEY HOLD "REUNION"

Owosso, Michigan, high school held homecoming day and the Owosso band celebrated the 26th anniversary of its participation in the Memorial Day parade at Corunna, Michigan, Tuesday afternoon in front of the New York monument in the National cemetery here.

The participants in the reunion were Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, and Prof. Dunning Idle, Jr., Baltimore street, who were neighbors years ago in Owosso, and who both attended Owosso high school and the University of Michigan at the same time.

Both were members of the Owosso band, with Dewey playing the bass horn and Idle the tenor. Dewey, in his conversation with Idle held after the New York governor had laid a wreath on his state's statue at the cemetery, recalled that the day marked the 26th anniversary of the Memorial Day on which the Owosso band, with Dewey and Idle both members, went to the county seat, Corunna, to play for the annual Memorial exercises.

15-Minute Chat
While Dewey and Idle had been friends in Owosso and at the University of Michigan they were not close friends, with Dewey being older than Idle and two years ahead of him in school. Professor Idle explained today. Idle had thought Dewey had forgotten all about the friendship until shortly before the meeting of the governors here when the local man received a letter from Governor Dewey asking him to "look me up" when the New York governor was in Gettysburg on Memorial Day.

Still expecting that there would not be much time for more than a hurried greeting, Professor Idle waited at the National cemetery Monday and when Dewey appeared called to him. Dewey recognized Idle immediately and made arrangements for the "reunion" after the wreath laying, when Mr. Idle introduced his wife and mother and some friends to the governor and for 15 minutes recalled "old times" in Michigan with the former gang-buster.

Class of 1909
Six members of the class of 1909 dined together Saturday evening at the SAE house on West Lincoln avenue and discussed a class project that they said is not yet ready for public announcement.

The local members are Dr. John B. Zinn and S. F. Snyder and the others present for the dinner were Lloyd Van Doren, New York; Victor Hausknecht, Harrisburg; Clarence L. Kopp, Cumberland Maryland, and Clarence L. S. Raby of Philadelphia.

The class of 1914 at their dinner at the Hotel Gettysburg re-elected officers for the next five years. The Rev. Robert J. Wolf, Harrisburg, was chosen president again and Dr. Samuel E. Wicker, Wilmington, Del., was re-elected class agent.

Letters of greetings were read from many members of the class who were unable to attend. The list included Brigadier General Willoughby and Spurgeon M. Keeney, formerly of Shrewsbury, York county, but now of New York city.

Twenty-five persons attended including members of the class and guests. Plans were made for a larger class gathering after the war.

Largest Gathering
The largest gathering for any class reunion was that held at the Hotel Gettysburg by the members of the class of 1924, marking their twentieth anniversary. Thirty-three members and guests attended.

E. Grothe, Philadelphia, was re-elected president; Leon A. Phillips, Hazleton, secretary-treasurer, and the Rev. Hugh E. Yost, Philadelphia, class agent.

The local members of the class in attendance were Miss Beatrice Pfeiffer, Robert Deardorff, Mrs. Treva Weikert Ziegler and Carl A. Baum.

There were eight persons at the first quinquennial reunion of the class of 1939 held at the Hotel Gettysburg. The group included these members of the class: Major Eric Duckstad, Fort Knox; Pvt. Clifton White, Miss Betty Damm, Baltimore; the Rev. Cedric Tilberg, Washington, D. C., and George Daugherty, Reading.

HIGH SCHOOL'S HONOR ROLL IS DEDICATED HERE

A handsome walnut and gold service Honor Roll which already bears the names of more than 600 former students of the Gettysburg high school who are serving in the armed forces of the nation was formally dedicated and presented to the school at ceremonies conducted last Thurs. evening in the school auditorium.

Formal presentation was made by Dr. Robert A. Bream, an alumnus of the class of 1924, who delivered the dedicatory address, "in behalf of the student body, the student council and the Alumni association." A brief acceptance speech was made by Superintendent L. C. Keefeauver.

The Honor Roll, to which scores of names remain to be added, was unveiled by Miss Shirley Larkin, a member of the senior class, student council and the council's committee which helped arrange for the erection of the honor roll, and Melvin Little, alumnus of the class of 1925. Both Miss Larkin and Mr. Little have a brother in the service whose name appears on the roll.

Color Guard
The exercises opened with selections by the high school band directed by Edwin S. Longanecker of the faculty. G. W. Lefever, high school principal, served as master of ceremonies.

After the audience sang "America the Beautiful," an American Legion color guard, including Paul L. Spangler, Lawrence M. Sheads, Joseph C. Smith and C. Arthur Brame, advanced the colors to the platform. The invocation was given by the Rev. Robert M. Hunt, local Presbyterian pastor, and then the high school mixed chorus sang "If My Song Had Wings" and "Holy Art Thou" under the direction of Richard B. Shade, supervisor of music in the local schools. Miss Mary Clare Myers was the accompanist.

William Green, retiring student council president, reviewed the development of the Honor Roll project and explained that its cost is being met by the Alumni association, which has promised to pay half the entire cost; the student council, which has contributed $42; students who sponsored individual names on the list with cash donations totaling $97; the PFA chapter, $10; the Mask and Wig club, $15, and the Girls' Athletic Association, $10.

"Finest Generation"
A band selection preceded the address by Doctor Bream. Declaring that "these young men and women whose names appear on this honor roll are members of the finest generation of young people the world has ever produced," he asserted that "they are expressing in deeds their devotion to a cause that is very near all of our hearts."

"Our best dedication and the greatest honor we can pay them is our determination to devote ourselves to the unfinished tasks that remain at home. To fail in this would be to make us guilty of violating their sacred trust. We must think clearly on the facts before us today, learn the lessons of history and prepare to find a solution for the problem of employment and economic security not only for the veterans after the war but for those who will be replaced in their jobs by returning service men."

Alumna In WAVES
"We must recognize our responsibility for seeking out ways to express our rights as world citizens, to find some plan of world federation or control that will avoid a succession of wars through the centuries."

Ensign Miriam Waltemyer, alumna of the school and former member of the faculty now serving with the WAVES, occupied a place on the platform and was presented to the audience by Mr. Lefever.

The high school principal asked that names of other former students, not now appearing on the roll, should be handed to Walter Keeney, member of the student council. Persons who wish to sponsor names with cash donations may contact council members, he said.

Soldier's Painting On Display Here

One of the latest paintings by Cpl. Clifford Allen Johnson, son of Mrs. Ruth Davis, South Washington street, is on display at the present time in a window at Lippy's store.

Well executed, the painting is among the first to be shown in Gettysburg by Corporal Johnson, but in previous years, he was a frequent exhibitor at the Cumberland Valley Art show at the museum in Hagerstown.

R. C. VOLUNTEER WORKERS HAVE SET HIGH RECORD

Volunteer Adams county women have made 11,983 articles for the armed forces and civilian refugees under the direction of the county Red Cross since 1929, a recapitulation of the work completed Monday disclosed.

The list of articles made for the Army includes 432 sweaters, 257 mufflers, 109 pairs of socks and 225 helmets. For the Navy they made 335 sweaters, 230 helmets, 169 watch caps and 22 scarfs. Kit bags made for the Army and Navy total 1,065.

Army and Navy articles have been made only since 1942, when the first shipment of 40 Army sweaters and 40 Navy sweaters were made on January 29, 1942. Since then the production has been steady, with the women turning out several hundred sweaters and similar articles per year for the armed forces.

Folded 254,850 Dressings

The production of 254,850 in 1939 marked the beginning of an increasingly large production of all types of articles for civilians as the war has progressed. Starting long before Pearl Harbor, the women have worked steadily, taking on quota after quota and finishing the work required within the time limits set. Mrs. LeRoy H. Winebrenner, production chairman of the Red Cross, was in full charge at first and later Mrs. C. B. Stover took over active direction of the sewing when Mrs. Winebrenner's time was completely taken up by the establishment of surgical dressings centers in Gettysburg, Ardentville, McSherrystown and Cashtown.

Since the establishment of the first surgical dressing room in Gettysburg in 1942, a total of 254,850 surgical dressings have been shipped and about 250 women are engaged at present in folding the bandages. The first surgical dressing room was established at the Red Cross building on High street and the sewing group moved to quarters on East Middle street.

Use Larger Quarters

When increasing quotas for dressings were sent the local chapter the Gettysburg surgical dressings group moved to its present location in the Legion building and the sewing center was returned to High street about a year ago. Since then the dressings centers in other communities have opened. About 85 women take part in making surgical dressings at Ardentville, about 30 at Cashtown, approximately 60 at McSherrystown and the remainder at Gettysburg.

In addition to the dressings shipped about 18,000 have been completed and are awaiting shipment at the present time.

Red Cross officials, pointing out that quotas for surgical dressings are increasing every month, today urged all mothers and wives of service men to take part in the making of dressings. Asserting that "It may be your boy or your husband who will need the bandages we are making," Mrs. Winebrenner said today that in comparison with the work done by the Ardentville, Cashtown and McSherrystown groups, and the number of women who take part there, Gettysburg has fallen far behind in meeting the needs of the armed forces for bandages. Only a small group, who have worked faithfully for some time, have volunteered here and they need assistance if the quotas are to be reached.

Get Biggest Quota

The quota for July is 48,000 dressings, the largest ever given to the county for one month, it was said. Up to January 17, the women who sew and knit have produced 271 women's dresses, 364 women's skirts, 532 women's sweaters, 160 women's nightgowns, 63 women's bed jackets, 270 women's blouses, 330 women's slips, 200 women's petticoats, 93 women's shawls, 1712 children's sweaters, 291 children's suits, 656 girls' dresses, 642 girls' skirts, 250 girls' blouses, 360 girls' slips, 180 girls' nightgowns, 280 boys' shirts, 100 boys' nightshirts, seven boys' sweaters, 279 men's sweaters, 190 operating gowns, 140 hospital bed sheets, 389 layettes, 468 men's hospital pajamas, 49 afghans and lap robes, 274 convalescent robes, 139 boys' overalls, 183 girls' caps and hoods, 121 toddler packs, nine baby crib comforts, 15 baby sacks, 46 bedside bags, five card table covers, 25 bedpan covers, 11 utility bags and 25 "housewives."

Types of clothing and other articles made by the volunteers sewing or knitting either in their own homes or at centers in Gettysburg, Cashtown, Littlestown, New Oxford, Biglerville and Ardentville, have varied as demands for different types of articles were made on the Red Cross.

Women's skirts, much in demand in 1941 and the early part of 1942, have not been made since that time. The demand for women's dresses disappeared in January, 1943, while the demand for women's sweaters has continued steadily since 1940. Women's nightgowns, bed jackets, slips and petticoats were not needed apparently until 1943, with most of the articles made since the middle of 1943. Shawls however have remained in constant demand, as have children's sweaters, although the quotas for the youngsters' sweaters have dropped off in recent months.

Child's Leg Mangled In Fall From Tractor

Norman Shriver, Jr., three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Shriver, Emmitsburg, was reported doing satisfactorily at the Warner hospital Tuesday where he is a patient following an operation Monday afternoon.

The youngster was riding on the rear of a tractor while his father was cultivating corn when he slipped off and became entangled in a wheel. He was drawn upward and became wedged between the wheel and the fender. Mr. Shriver backed the tractor to release his son and summoned Dr. W. R. Cadle, Emmitsburg, who rendered medical aid and ordered his removal to the hospital.

Young Shriver suffered a severely mangled right foot and broken bones in his right leg. A portion of the leg in the region of the knee was amputated.

SEVEN INJURED WHEN MACHINES CRASH HEAD-ON

Seven persons were injured, four of them seriously, in an automobile accident Sunday at 7:15 p. m. one mile west of Bonneauville on the Gettysburg-Hanover road.

The injured include: George A. Flenner, 19, Fairfield R. 2, driver of one of the cars, who is a patient at the Warner hospital suffering from shock, dislocated left hip, fractured pelvis, contusion of the chest and multiple lacerations of the face. He was described by hospital authorities as being in "as good a condition as can be expected."

Others Injured

Franklin Emig Shaffer, 22, Pascoag, Rhode Island, a jockey, driver of the car which was struck by the Flenner vehicle, and his wife, Mrs. Mildred C. Shaffer, 21, were both injured and treated at the Hanover hospital. Shaffer suffered bruised ankles and left shoulder. His wife had a bruised chest, knees and head. They were taken to the hospital by a passing motorist.

Pvt. George Evanko, of the local state police, who investigated the accident today said he would lay a charge of making a bad pass against Flenner before Justice of the Peace Leo Storm as a result of the accident.

Crash On Hill

The accident occurred as Flenner, enroute to Hanover, passed a car driven by Jess C. Record, 40, Littlestown R. 2, on the crest of a hill, Evanko said. Both cars were headed east.

Shaffer was driving west and came over the crest of the hill as Flenner attempted the pass. The Flenner and Shaffer cars collided head on.

Record, attempting to pull off to the side of the road when he saw that the accident was about to happen in order to allow Flenner to regain his side of the road, crashed into a telephone pole. Damage to his car was only $25 with no one injured in his vehicle, police said.

Damage to the Flenner and Shaffer cars was estimated at $1,100.

Services Today For S. Allen Schwartz

Funeral services were held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the Bender funeral home for S. Allen Schwartz, 58, Gettysburg R. 1, who died Saturday morning at the Warner hospital. The Rev. Dr. J. M. Myers officiated. Interment in Evergreen cemetery.

Dr. C. G. Crist, Adams county coroner, who investigated, attributed death to cerebral hemorrhage.

The pallbearers were L. O. Collins, Harry Wolfe, Cecil Gulden, Cyrus Miller, C. T. Hawbaker and Floyd Snyder.

Lewis I. Rice, who recently completed the surgical technicians course at O'Reilly General hospital, Springfield, Missouri, was recently promoted to corporal. He has joined his outfit at Camp Edwards, Massachusetts.

Most of the demands were made for special types of articles when an emergency arose demanding the article while it was not available. Later when more of the goods such as baby crib comforts, bedside bags and the like were available commercially, production ceased in the neighborhood centers of the Red Cross.

since the beginning of 1943 while girls' slips, blouses and nightgowns have all been made since the latter half of last year. Men's sweaters are another standby with the group knitting the sweaters since early in 1940.

SAYS PATTON IS FINEST OFFICER "IN ANY ARMY"

Lt. General George S. Patton, Jr., is the finest officer in any army, according to First Sergeant William J. Yohe, now on convalescent leave at his home at Grandview Terrace.

Sergeant Yohe, who is in his ninth year as a soldier, served under General Patton in the old 66th Armored regiment when Patton was a colonel and also in the African and Sicilian campaigns.

The general, who led the first tank battle in the World War, is still the leader in tank combat, leading his troops into action, Sergeant Yohe asserts. Asked about Patton's alleged bad temper by a reporter for The Gettysburg Times, the local sergeant answered that Patton is "not bad tempered, nor mild tempered—he is just a man."

A veteran of 17 months overseas, Yohe served in Africa, Sicily, England, Iceland and Newfoundland with his armored company. In England, "while getting ready for the big show," he became ill and was sent back to the Newton D. Baker hospital, Martinsburg, West Virginia. He underwent an operation and is now recuperating from it.

Battles "Exciting"

Prior to his transfer to England, he was "too busy to get sick," Sergeant Yohe declares. Landing in North Africa with the invasion forces a few days before Christmas in 1942, Sgt. Yohe found his work increasingly difficult with the rainy season, setting in shortly after the arrival, causing great difficulties for the troops.

When the rainy season ended in March, the troops began to move up through "constant dust and sand, and the hot winds that blow off the desert." Riding in a tank under those conditions was like "sitting in front of a blast furnace," he added, with the heat "terrific" inside the metal machines.

All battles were "exciting" with the men keyed up as they moved into battle and "too busy to be scared." After the battles "one gets scared to death," he added. Cause for fear too, was moving ahead in darkness, not knowing what might be ahead.

"Germans Are Clean Fighters"

In the daytime, he explains, battles are not so bad, as at night, "because you can see what is coming."

He took part in the invasion of Sicily and the fighting in that island until Palermo, when his outfit was sent back to a rest camp. Later they moved to England to prepare for the invasion. England, he says presents an awe-inspiring sight with "troops, ammunition, armor, all equipment of war, everywhere you look." Planes are there by the thousands "more planes than anyone ever saw before."

SPORTS ROUNDUP

New York, June 2 (AP)—Lavis York, Rudy's kid brother, is copping a share of the family's baseball headlines. . . . Lavis, a sailor at the naval receiving station, pitched a no-hit game in a Newport News, Va., softball league last week. . . . And his batting in a hardball practice session made quite an impression on Branch Rickey, Jr., who dropped in to look over the Piedmont league park.

Fred Fitcher, Notre Dame's No. 1 golfer last spring, has won the No. 1 spot on the Illinois Tech team and his first assignment is to lead the Techs against Notre Dame tomorrow.

ANGOTT SCOFFS IKE WILLIAMS PICKED TO WIN

By TED MEIER

Philadelphia, June 2 (AP)—Sammy Angott, a smartie who loves to be cast in the role of under dog, snorted today at the 2½ to 1 odds favoring Ike Williams to beat him in their 10-round bout that opens Philadelphia's outdoor boxing season at Shibe Park Tuesday night.

"I hear Williams has predicted he will knock me out in six or eight rounds," scoffed the former lightweight champion. "That's as silly as those odds."

"Yeah," chimed in Charley Jones, Angott's manager. "Why in any other city Angott would be favored."

Angott Past Prime

Be that as it may, Williams, regarded in some quarters as the unofficial lightweight (New York-Pennsylvania version) duration champion now that Bob Montgomery and Beau Jack are in the Army, ruled a heavy favorite with the betting fraternity at Broad and Locust streets.

Angott, they reason, is past his prime at 30 and on the way down while Williams is young and gained invaluable experience from his 12-round knockout defeat at the hands of Montgomery early this year. Then, too, it is pointed out, Angott can't punch while Williams packs a Kayo wallop that makes him dangerous every second.

As rebuttal, Angott said only I'll do my fighting in the ring, but remember I beat Montgomery three times while Monty knocked Ike out."

Schesler Quits As Hornell Manager

Buffalo, N. Y., June 2 (AP)—The cellar-dwelling Hornell Pirates of the Pony baseball league are in the market today for a new manager, following resignation last night of Charles "Dutch" Schesler.

Schesler took the action "for the good of the club," he said. Lockport took 19 hits from two Jamestown pitchers to regain the league's second place with a 13-4 win.

An eleventh inning three-run rally gave Wellsville a 7-4 triumph over Bradford.

First place Erie won, 10-6, to halt Batavia's upward climb. Wet grounds forced postponement of the Hornell-Olean game.

Today's games: Lockport at Jamestown, Wellsville at Bradford, Olean at Hornell, Erie at Batavia.

NAZI WEST WALL FORTIFICATIONS HEAVILY BOMBED

By GLADWIN HILL

London, June 2 (AP)—The United States Air Force today made the heaviest single blow yet against the German west wall fortifications on the French coast, hurling upwards of 750 Fortresses and Liberators and several hundred fighters against the Pas-de-Calais department.

Before dawn, Allied fliers struck over 2,000 miles of airways from Scandinavia to France and from Hungary to Crete.

The Pas-de-Calais section, probably the most intensively bombed area of the west wall, was hit by a scant 25 miles across the channel from England where Gen. Eisenhower's invasion armies are massed and eager. The department extends 90 miles into the French interior and along 35 miles of the coast and contains such familiar points as Calais; the World War I debarkation port of Boulogne; the resort Le Touquet; and Cap Gris Nez, terminal for channel ferries.

Crete Is Bombed

RAP heavy bombers concentrated on southwest French rail yards at Saumur, 150 miles from Paris, and the French coast last night. Mediterranean forces attacked Hungarian yards 30 miles east of Budapest at Szolnok. Mosquitos bombed a target in Denmark and the Germans reported an air attack which damaged a convoy off the west Norwegian coast. Middle East bombers attacked ports on the big Greek island of Crete. Enemy waters were mined.

The silvery daylight bombers left converging trails of vapor over the 20-mile channel and shortly afterwards a rumble of explosions echoed back to England. More formations went out around noon, including a big force of fighters which circled around Boulogne.

Montgomery Reports At New Cumberland

(By The Associated Press)

Philadelphia, June 2 (AP)—Bob Montgomery, lightweight boxing champion (New York-Pennsylvania-New Jersey version), reports for induction into the Army at the New Cumberland, Pa. Reception Center today.

Montgomery, who regained his title from Beau Jack last March, said he was entering the service to prepare for "the biggest fight of my career." He is 26, married and the father of one child.

Allies second big pre-invasion aerial offensive since the first of April into its fifteenth day. Glittering in the sunlight the attacking force headed toward the much-battered stretch of French coast between Dieppe and Boulogne.

The attack on the Salsburg rail yards was made by RAF heavy bombers. The Air Ministry said that night raiders also struck a military objective near the French coast but did not indicate its nature. Mosquitos simultaneously bombed an unspecified objective in Denmark. All the planes returned safely from the operations.

3 Nazi Planes Downed

In offensive sweeps into France and Germany yesterday evening, RAF and RCAF fighters shot down three German planes while three planes in the attacking force were lost.

The latest blows against the continent were a continuation of an Allied aerial offensive which already was declared to have severely restricted certain German military movements behind the invasion front.

The Vichy radio said 30 persons were killed in Wednesday night's attack on Saumur, an important junction on the rail lines from central France to Nantes. The Vichy radio also said that 42 persons were killed in an attack last night on the northwest coast of France—possibly the unspecified military objective referred to in the British Air Ministry communique.

New Nazi Song Is "Watch On Channel"

(By The Associated Press)

London, June 1 (AP)—German radios apparently have given up as an outworn jest their old hymn of hate, "We Sail Against England." More realistically they now sing "Die Wacht Am Kanal"—"The Watch On The Channel." It goes like this:

We stand in the west; we are fully prepared;
Let the enemy come today.
We are on guard, our fists are hard,
We shall stand in the west at bay.
For we know we defend here with strongest hand

Sniper Mortally Wounded Lt. Brown

With the Fifth Army South of Rome, June 2 (AP)—A sniper who threw a hand grenade from ambush fatally wounded Lt. Allen Tupper Brown, 27, stepson of Gen. George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff, it was disclosed today.

(The death was announced in Washington May 30, without details.)

Lieutenant Brown was commanding a light tank detachment attacking with the American infantry against the German line south of Rome on May 29. He was standing up in the turret of his tank—a necessary procedure for armored commanders in rolling, tree-covered terrain—when the grenade was hurled.

DRAFT BOARD VACANCIES ARE FILLED TODAY

Notice of confirmation by President Roosevelt of two recommendations by Governor Martin for appointments to fill vacancies in the Selective Service personnel in the New Oxford district has been received here.

Albert E. Weaver, former burgess of McSherrystown, has been appointed as a member of the New Oxford draft board to fill the position resigned recently by E. L. Golden. Bonneauville. Mr. Golden resigned because of ill health after serving as board secretary since the draft board was set up more than three years ago.

Richard A. Brown, Esq., has been appointed as government appeal agent for the district to succeed District Attorney J. Francis Yake, Jr., who resigned because under present Selective Service regulations the offices of government appeal agent and district attorney have been held to be "incompatible."

New Assignment For Yake

Mr. Weaver, who was McSherrystown burgess for 12 years, is a part owner of the Penn Box company at McSherrystown. The other members of Draft Board No. 1, are William J. Yingling and P. Lawrence Hoover. Mr. Yingling is the board chairman.

Mr. Yake's resignation as government appeal agent, a position he held since the draft board was set up, was accepted by the state Selective Service solely because it was held to be incompatible with his duties as district attorney. The state office then requested him to serve as associate adviser to registrants in the New Oxford district so that the board would continue to have the benefit of his knowledge of regulations. That new appointment has been made by Governor Martin.

NEARBY SCENIC AREA CLEARED OF ADVERTISING

One of the most beautiful scenic areas in Pennsylvania, one that will attract even the most casual visitor because it is devoid of any commercial displays, is the eight mile stretch of Lincoln highway, from a point just west of Cash-town and extending to a designated marker a mile or so west of Caledonia Park.

Along this stretch of rolling concrete highway the Scenic Area Improvement Committee of Pennsylvania, Inc. has demonstrated that "Pennsylvania Beautiful" is not a by-word or a product of the vivid imagination of the sales promotion group of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Remove 105 Signs

Four years ago 105 outdoor, commercial displays were strung along this eight-mile route. Today the route is barren of any and all billboards. And it all came about through the cooperative efforts of seven agencies working in harmonious cooperation with the Scenic Area Improvement Committee of Pennsylvania.

Kipling once wrote that "If you Off to Pennsylvania in the Morning" the glory and grandeur of nature at its peak awaits the traveler. Sensing the value and import of this expression and appreciating the scenic wonders of the Keystone state, the Scenic Area Improvement Committee of Pennsylvania was organized.

Soon there was embraced in this organization the General Outdoor Advertising company, the Outdoor Advertising Association of Pennsylvania, the National Advertising company, The Pennsylvania Hotel Association, The Pennsylvania Department of Commerce, The Associated Petroleum Industry comprising fourteen of the major oil companies of the nation, and the Highway Property Owners Association.

25 Scenic Areas

This group, under Field Secretary Howard C. Miltner, of Gettysburg, selected the eight mile scenic area, mentioned above, as an experimental area to demonstrate that outdoor advertisers are not prone to mar the scenic beauty of the more than 25 picturesque areas in Pennsylvania.

With their full cooperation and the cooperation of every type of business which normally uses the medium of roadside advertising the Committee set about clearing the area of outdoor advertising and other objectionable items. In less than four years the 8-mile scenic area has been entirely cleared of every form of outdoor signs, and leads the state in the clearing of designated scenic area.

Association posters, painted bulletins, non-association signs, painted barns (with one or two exceptions which will soon be eliminated), small signs, commercial type and snipe signs have been removed from this scenic area.

Picturesque Areas

The vista for all motorists today is picturesque and colorful. There are mountains and valleys, winding turns and straightaways. But throughout the ribbon of concrete not a commercial sign mars the vision of the visitor.

It is proof beyond contradiction that Pennsylvania's outdoor advertisers are intensely interested in preserving the scenic grandeur of "Pennsylvania Beautiful" for every visitor who comes to Pennsylvania in the morning.

"MISSING" BOY WAR PRISONER; IS IN HOSPITAL

Pvt. Charles Howard Gardner, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Gardner, York Springs R. 1, who had been "missing in action" in Italy since January 22, now is officially reported as a prisoner of the Germans. The youth's parents have a card from their son written from a German prison hospital.

Early in March the family was notified by telegram from the War Department that their son had been reported missing January 22 following heavy action "near Rome." It was assumed that young Gardner took part in heavy fighting at that time on the Anzio beachhead.

After receiving that word the family asked the county Red Cross chapter office and the local prison officer-of-war consultant, Dr. Earl J. Bowen for information that may be available about their son.

This week a letter was received from the War Department telling the parents their son is now known officially to be a prisoner of the Germans.

Mr. and Mrs. Gardner also have received a card from their son, dated May 3, stating that he is in a hospital in the hands of Germans and that he expects soon to be able to be removed from the hospital to a prisoner-of-war camp.

Gardner entered the service last year. He attended York Springs high school for a year.

Mrs. Dale C. Pottorff, Gettysburg R. 4, has received word her husband, Pfc. Pottorff, has arrived safely in England.

strolled through the long lines of military graves, strewing the flowers over the grass as they went.

"In the nearby city of Harrisburg, the Governors of several states . . . Northern and Southern alike . . . have convened to discuss common problems of the nation as a whole. This afternoon they have come here with respect and reverence to take part in special memorial exercises which you will hear in the minutes to follow. Thousands upon thousands of citizens have gathered around the speaker's platform . . . and to open these ceremonies, I present the Rev. Dr. Abdel Ross Wentz, President of the Lutheran Theological Seminary."

Dr. Wentz then delivered the invocation and the uniformed cadet band from the Valley Forge Military Academy, softly played "My Country 'Tis Of Thee."

Distinguished Speakers

Mr. Lewis followed with "Among the speakers you will hear at these ceremonies today, will be appropriately, the Governor of a great Commonwealth which was on the Union side in the War Between the States, and the Governor of an equally great state that was on the Confederate side. It is fitting that they be presented to you by the host-Governor, and to that end, it is my great pleasure and privilege to present to you, a man who himself is a veteran of three wars, His Excellency, Edward Martin, Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania."

Governor Martin then delivered his address.

During the course of his talk he presented William S. Livingston, Jr., Secretary of Internal Affairs, who gave a splendid rendition of Lincoln's Gettysburg Address. The Valley Forge Academy band softly played "The Battle Hymn of the Republic."

Governor Martin then introduced Governor J. Melville Broughton, of North Carolina, who spoke "For the Old South." As he rose to speak the band played "Dixie" and the throng applauded. There were a few Rebel yells.

Yankee Doodle

Governor Martin then introduced Governor Leverett Saltonstall, of Massachusetts, who spoke "For the Old North." As the crowd applauded his appearance before the microphones the band played "Yankee Doodle."

After Governor Saltonstall spoke the band played "Abide With Me." and Governor Martin presented the Rev. Ralph R. Gresh, pastor of St. James Lutheran church, who delivered the benediction. Just before concluding his benediction the band played "Taps," a soldier's requiem, a trumpet sounded the call and a second trumpet sounded the echo.

18 PAROCHIAL SCHOOL PUPILS ARE GRADUATED

Outstanding achievement awards were presented to Donald Weaver, Helen Eberhart and Mary Louise Cole, of the eighth grade of St. Francis Xavier Catholic school Sunday evening at the annual eighth grade graduation exercises held at St. Francis Xavier Catholic church.

Eighteen eighth-graders, ten girls and eight boys, made up the graduating class which was presented with diplomas by the Rev. Mark E. Stock, pastor of the church. The prizes awarded to the outstanding students were given by the Mothers' Club of St. Francis Xavier school.

The graduation exercises were conducted in connection with the annual May procession held from the school through the church with 200 students taking part. Nearly 1,000 persons jammed the church to witness the services.

Church Procession

Led by altar boys carrying a crucifix, the students marched through the aisles of the church with the members of the eighth grade and their attendants kneeling at the altar rail while the crowning of the statue of the Blessed Virgin took place. Barbara Welshaar, seven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Welshaar, was crown bearer with Sonia Neary and Barbara Kerrigan as attendants.

A prayer dedicating the men in the armed forces to the Blessed Virgin was read by Patricia Bushey, daughter of Petty Officer and Mrs. Joseph F. Bushey, Fairfield road.

The Rev. Fr. Thomas J. Kilcullen, of the faculty of Mount St. Mary's College, Emmitsburg, delivered the sermon for the service, on "Mary, the Exemplar of Womanhood," declaring that "if Catholic women do not uphold the ideal of Mary the world is on the road to destruction."

List Attendants

He urged fidelity to the sacraments upon the graduating class, urging the boys to join the Holy Name Society and the girls to join the Sodality of the Blessed Virgin Mary, both of which organizations monthly attend Holy Communion in a body. He urged the students "and their mothers and fathers here tonight to give battle against the world's mistakes."

The youngsters who were attendants for the eighth graders were dressed in white, with the girls wearing floral wreaths in their hair. All carried flowers. They included:

"The Star Spangled Banner."

Mr. Lewis concluded the broadcast and program with these words: "So end these Memorial Day ceremonies, in the peace of the Gettysburg National cemetery, where 80 years ago this great American Republic survived its most dangerous and challenging crisis. The fields are green, and the skies are blue, which will be true also in the years to come, of other battlefields all over the world, which today are shattered with explosions and bathed in heroic blood."

Dedications

"To those, then and now, who have given their lives that we may be free, and to those on whom the finger of fate will fall before peace comes again, these ceremonies and this broadcast has been dedicated."

"They have committed themselves gloriously then as now, in carrying out that simple but devout vow of the immortal Lincoln: 'The Federal Union. It must be preserved.'"

Most of the large crowd waited until the governors and their party had entered cars and drove off to various sites on the battlefield where they laid wreaths at the foot of their state's memorial.

In the absence of the governors of Texas, Georgia and Mississippi, Governor Martin laid wreaths at memorials erected by those states. He also laid a wreath at the Pennsylvania memorial.

The distinguished party then re-assembled at Bloody Angle where Dr. J. Walter Coleman, superintendent of the Gettysburg National park, gave a brief resume of Pickett's Charge.

70 Reporters Here

Then the guests entered state cars, each chauffeured by a uniformed state trooper, each flying an American flag and the state flag of the governor who was riding therein and each displaying a special license tag inscribed with the name of the state he represents.

The governors were dinner guests at the Carlisle barracks and the wives were dinner guests in Harrisburg.

Seventy reporters and a host of cameramen, including newsreel men and women reporters covered the program for the news services, daily newspapers and magazines.

War Prevents Attendance

Pressing business in this part of the world prevents me from attending the thirtieth anniversary reunion of the class of 1914," Brig. Gen. Charles A. Willoughby, member of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's staff, explained in a letter read at his class dinner Saturday evening at the Hotel Gettysburg.

General Willoughby expressed the hope that he will be able to be present for a post-war anniversary meeting of his classmates. Another distinguished member of the class of 1914, Surgeon M. Keeney, New York city, one of Gettysburg college's two Rhodes scholars, also sent greetings. At the last minute he had to abandon plans to come here for the reunion.

Allison Mentioned For Taute Position

Mrs. Anna Taute, widow of Captain Carl M. Taute, superintendent of the Gettysburg National cemetery from April, 1942, until his recent death, and her family today moved to their home at Sharpsburg, Maryland, where Captain Taute was superintendent of a National cemetery prior to his appointment here. The Tautes had previously planned to move prior to Memorial Day but their new home was not ready for occupancy until today.

No appointment has been made of a successor to Captain Taute so far as could be learned Wednesday.

William A. Allison, former historian at the local National Park office and now a member of the park staff at Fort McHenry, has been prominently mentioned as being considered for the post. Dr. J. Walter Coleman, superintendent of the park, today said that he had no information whatsoever about any appointment although he expected National Park officials would take some action in filling the post shortly.

CHURCH FILLED FOR HIGH SCHOOL BACCALAUREATE

Members of the graduating class of the Gettysburg high school, the faculty and board of education, parents of the seniors and their relations and friends filled St. James Lutheran church Sunday evening for the annual baccalaureate service. The sermon was delivered by the Rev. Charles K. Gibson, pastor of the Gettysburg Methodist church, on the theme, "The Compelling Light."

The Rev. Ralph R. Gresh, St. James pastor, conducted the service after the gowned seniors took their places in a reserved section at the front of the church.

A junior choir, including a number of members of the graduating class presented two anthems under the direction of Richard B. Shade, supervisor of music and organist at the church. In the first anthem, "Fear Not, I Am with Thee," a solo was presented by Miss Treva Munshour.

The second anthem, sung after the baccalaureate sermon, was "Send Forth Thy Light," by Balakirev.

Fear No Defeats

After the benediction by the Rev. Mr. Gibson, the congregation remained in their places as the class members marched from the church as the organist played "Marche Heroique" by Saint-Saens.

The Rev. Mr. Gibson pointed the graduates toward "a God of infinite love who stands beside every one of us." Urging the seniors to keep their lives "free from bigotry, hypocrisy and deceit," he assured them that defeats in their lives are not as important "as what you do with those defeats and how you react in the midst of them."

"Never give way to the spirit of defeat. Never lose faith in your fellowmen and above all don't lose faith in yourself," he continued. Pointing to Jesus Christ as "the light of the world that can control, compel and complete our lives," he urged the graduates to find "glimpses of that light throughout your life to inspire you and to enable you to live lives that are upright and worth while."

GENERAL WILLOUGHBY

LITTLESTOWN MARINE GETS SILVER STAR

U. S. Naval Hospital, Shoemaker, Calif., May 31—Marine Cpl. James Richard Stonesifer, 23, of 417 South Queen street, Littlestown, was awarded the Silver Star Medal for gallantry at Cape Torokina on Bougainville, in a recent decoration ceremony here.

The citation, extended in the name of the President of the United States and signed by Admiral William F. Halsey, USN, reads:

"For conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity in action against the enemy in the Cape Torokina area on Bougainville, British Solomon Islands, during the period from December 20 to 24, 1943. Corporal Stonesifer was a member of a six-man reconnaissance patrol which advanced several thousand yards into enemy held territory. The patrol made contact with the enemy and after a brief fire fight, proceeded around the opposing force and into a Japanese bivouac area, where they remained during the night obtaining valuable military information."

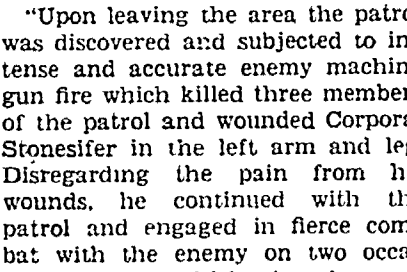

Three Killed

"Upon leaving the area the patrol was discovered and subjected to intense and accurate enemy machine gun fire which killed three members of the patrol and wounded Corporal Stonesifer in the left arm and leg. Disregarding the pain from his wounds, he continued with the patrol and engaged in fierce combat with the enemy on two occasions, during which time he personally destroyed a machine gun nest with hand grenades and killed two Japanese attempting to replace another gun."

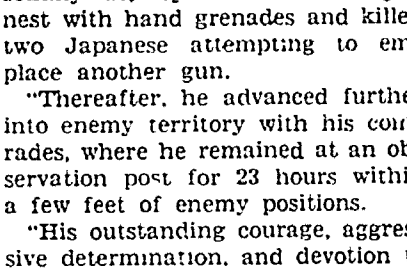

"Thereafter, he advanced further into enemy territory with his comrades, where he remained at an observation post for 23 hours within a few feet of enemy positions."

"His outstanding courage, aggressive determination, and devotion to duty inspired the members of the patrol and were in keeping with the highest traditions of the United States Naval Service."

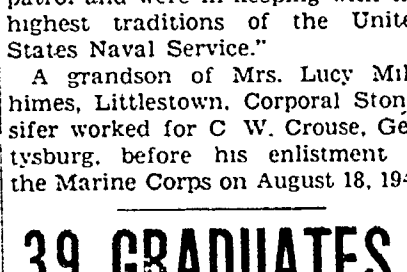

A grandson of Mrs. Lucy Millhimes, Littlestown, Corporal Stonesifer worked for C. W. Crouse, Gettysburg, before his enlistment in the Marine Corps on August 18, 1942.

39 GRADUATES AT BIGLERVILLE HEAR ADDRESS

The Rev. Nevil R. Frantz, who delivered the baccalaureate sermon to the 39 members of the graduating class of Biglerville high school Sunday evening at St. Pauls Lutheran church, had as his subject "Builders of a Better Tomorrow," from Corinthians, using the verse "For other foundation can no man lay than that which is laid, which is Jesus Christ," as a text.

The Rev. Mr. Frantz stressed the importance of "renewed" beliefs and practices which will be vital in the future instead of depending entirely upon the older ones which were sufficient to their day but inadequate for the tomorrow. He charged the class members to go forth into the world and become better men and women because of the task which they will have to face.

Following an organ prelude and processionary played by Miss Dorothy Sternat, the Rev. Henry W. Sternat gave the call to worship and the audience joined in pronouncing the invocation.

Several selections by the high school glee club, under the direction of Prof. Charles L. Yost, were included on the program and the benediction was pronounced by the Rev. Mr. Frantz.

Firemen Scrub Borough Streets

Working for nearly five hours Monday night and early Tuesday morning, Gettysburg fire company "spring housecleaned" the streets radiating from center square in preparation for visit here Tuesday of the governors of the various states for Memorial Day exercises.

Starting at 8:30 o'clock Monday evening the 25 firemen who answered the call by Fire Chief James A. Aumen for men to do the street washing job worked until nearly 1:30 o'clock this morning in order to do what was described by a number of residents today as "the finest job of street cleaning ever seen in Gettysburg."

The firemen, using full pressure, held the hose down nearly against the street pavement in order to force out accumulation of dirt that ordinary sweeping could not remove.

GAR MEMORIAL SERVICES HELD FRIDAY EVENING

Our men in the armed forces are "a wall unto us both by night and by day" and they fight, "not against the soldiers of the opposite side, as such, not against any nation as such, but against all who, uncaring the sacrifice, the blood, tears and treasure poured forth, heap up armaments and sow seeds of bitterness and strife," the Rev. Robert M. Hunt, pastor of the Gettysburg Presbyterian church, declared Friday evening at the annual GAR Memorial services held by the local Sons of Union Veterans in the post rooms on East Middle street.

He asserted that the "pages of history are here and there stained by the black deeds of tyrants. From Cain to Hitler there is a long procession of despotic characters who in order to feed their insatiable desire for power and prestige have trampled over the lives of all who were luckless enough to be in the way."

Opportunity for Us

Against this "procession of tyrants 60 centuries long" have stood the "men who rally at the call of duty to fight for the honor of the plighted word, for freedom from militaristic aggression and for right," as have the men in the armed forces at the present time, he said. "The hour called for resistance. It meant erecting a barrier of human bodies and a stalwart souls to form a wall against the forces of evil."

"The young men of our country went out to hold back the forces of evil until we who are at home should have opportunity to do something about building a better world, a world strong enough to hold its own, a world with a better plan of living wherein men would be ashamed to align themselves with the forces of darkness in a world of light. These honored dead have done just that. They have gone forth to hold back the tempests of evil, the sandstorms of oppression and subjection. Each has gone in answer to the call of his own times, each to face with stalwart devotion to his country, the cruel blasts of the winds of adversity."

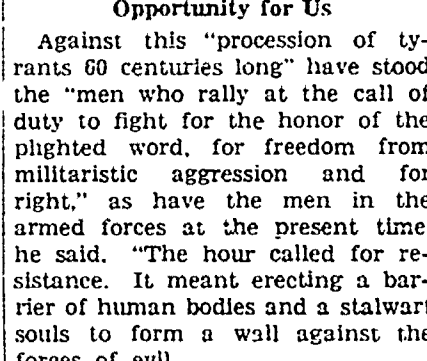

"Such service is effectual only when it awakens an adequate response in others. The pen of the poet, the brush of the painter, the tongue of the orator are inadequate to express the glory of our immortal dead."

Conduct GAR Ritual

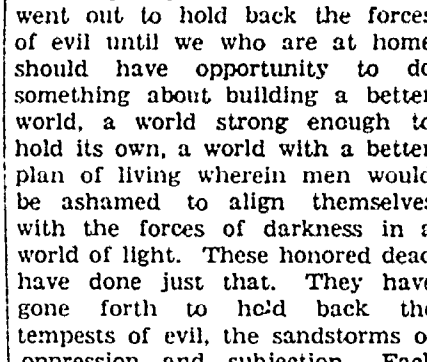

"We must see to it that a higher value is put upon the sacrifice of those who endured so much, who achieved so much, who served the cause of our race so nobly."

"How shall this be done? Let us carry on where they were forced to lay down their great obligation. After all what all of our brave dead fought against was war—that they and their loved ones might have opportunity to live in peace. War is a pestilence. It can be banished when mankind will it wholeheartedly. If the nations would join hands in this God-entrusted work, it could be done. But the obligation rests upon us as Christian men and women to hold high the torch of freedom, kindled by the resolute courage of our kinsmen and fed by the oil of their devotion. We must not, we dare not break faith with those who die in freedom's cause."

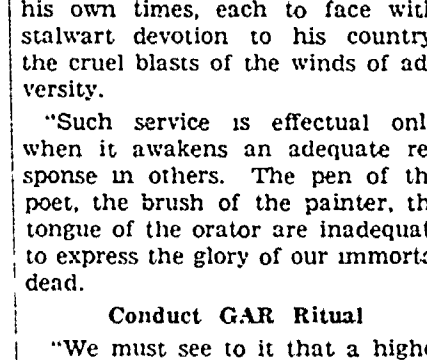

The memorial service opened with the singing of "My Country 'Tis of Thee," followed by invocation by the Rev. Mr. Hunt and the singing of "Faith of Our Fathers." George Black, post chaplain, led the singing and took part in the memorial ritual in the part of post commander. William Meals was adjutant for the GAR ritual and David Tawney chaplain. "Our Native Land" was sung following the Rev. Mr. Hunt's address and the Rev. Charles K. Gibson, pastor of the local Methodist church, pronounced the benediction.

"MISSING" MAN NOW REPORTED NAZI PRISONER

First Lieutenant John M. Hock, Jr., 22, husband of Mrs. Irene Hock, 229 North Stratton street, who was reported missing in action over enemy occupied Europe on April 18, Tuesday, was said by the War Department to have been taken prisoner by the Germans.

A telegram received by Mrs. Hock on Memorial Day stated: "Report just received through International Red Cross states that your husband, Lt. John M. Hock, Jr., is prisoner of war of the German government. Letter of information will follow from the Provost Marshall General." The telegram was signed, "Dunlop, acting Adjutant General."

A telegram received May 5 from the War Department announced that he was missing. On May 1, Mrs. Hock had received word from Lt. Perry Futrell, a bombardier on the Flying Fortress of which Lieutenant Hock was navigator, that the plane was missing. The bombardier had been ill and was hospitalized, hence was unable to make the last trip of the Fortress crew, he wrote Mrs. Hock.

In England Since October

Lieutenant Hock, a son of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Hock, Chambersburg, has been in England since last October and enlisted in the Army Air Forces in April 1942. He was appointed an aviation cadet on October 21, 1942, and was sent to Nashville, Tennessee. He graduated from Selman Field, Monroe, Louisiana, July 24, 1943, receiving his wings and commission as a second lieutenant at that time.

A graduate of Chambersburg high school in 1940, Lieutenant Hock received the Air Medal and was promoted to first lieutenant April 17, the day before his plane was shot down in Germany. He and Mrs. Hock were married in October 1942.

DR. J. G. WICKEY GIVES ADDRESS TO COLLEGIANS

Gettysburg college seniors were challenged in the baccalaureate sermon Sunday morning by Dr. J. Gould Wickey, of Washington, D. C., to carry "the message" and method of the Christian church and the person of Christ through the open door of opportunity to a world seeking a method, and a message adequate for its crucial needs."

Doctor Wickey, an alumnus of the class of 1912 who is now secretary of the Board of Education of the United Lutheran Church in America, spoke on the theme "A Seeking Generation."

He said "we are living in a changing world in which many educators, lawmakers, political leaders and statesmen have been disillusioned in their efforts to solve the world's ills with education, laws and statesmanship."

"Sovereign God" "The Christian church," he said, "answers this generation's search for a message with the presentation of the reality of a sovereign God who is a guide for individuals and a director of the destinies of nations. He is a compassionate God, a God who cares and enters into our difficulties. He is a capable God."

"The Christian church has a method of solving economic, industrial, social, racial and international problems by patient, enduring love. To use Nazi methods is to become a Nazi. If the Allied nations after this war use Axis methods of dealing with the conquered nations, the Allies shall lose their souls and shall be banished from the earth. The method of patient love is a hard way. It means loving the unlovely, doing good to the enemy."

"To a generation seeking a person that incarnates this message and this method, the Christian church presents Christ, the Son of God, the saviour of men and the King of Kings, superior to all others."

An Opportunity

"This generation seeking a message, a method and a Person constitute an open door of opportunity to you to take the message of the church to a world that knows it not. Your God needs you. Here is a seeking generation, a present God—and you."

The service in the Majestic theater followed an academic procession from the campus led by college officials and the faculty. The Rev. Dr. Dwight F. Putman, pastor of the College Lutheran church, read the scripture lesson from the third chapter of Revelations and offered prayer. Eric H. Sigmar, a member of the graduating class, sang "The Beattitudes," accompanied by Robert B. Rau, pianist for the exercises.

Doctor Wickey's sermon was followed by the singing of the college hymn and the benediction, pronounced by Dr. Henry W. A. Hanson, president of the college.

LICENSED TO WED

Carl L. McCann, Gettysburg, and Dolores L. Smith, Fairfield, have been issued a marriage license in Frederick.

121 GRADUATED AT HIGH SCHOOL ON WEDNESDAY

(The cast of characters in the "American On Wings of Song" will be found on page eight.)

The 121 members of the graduating class of the Gettysburg high school were challenged to dedicate themselves "to the service of your nation, humanity and your God" in an address Wednesday evening by Dr. William F. Quillian, Jr., head of the department of philosophy at Gettysburg college, after the presentation of a student pageant, "America on Wings of Song," at the high school.

After Doctor Quillian's address on "The Roots of Democracy" the members of the class were presented for their diplomas by G. W. Lefever, high school principal. The diplomas were awarded by Superintendent L. C. Keefeauver.

The pageant, written and arranged by three seniors—Mary Clare Myers, Barbara Cline and Anne Faber—traced the development of the history of United States from the landing of the Pilgrims to World War II.

Favorite Songs
Period songs were sung—sometimes by appropriately costumed characters appearing on the stage back of a transparent curtain and at others by an off-stage choir of 53 voices. The inspiration of typically American music and its reflection of the growth and development and ideals of the new nation were pointed out by student narrators in conversation with the Spirit of Music at the front of the stage as a procession of Pilgrims, Indians, veterans of four wars, negroes and other representative American groups appeared in the lightly curtained background.

Choruses and soloists presented such selections as "Indian Love Call," "Wagon Wheels," "Swanee River," "Deep River," "Dixie," "O' Black Joe," "Battle Hymn of the Republic," "Tenting Tonight," "World War I songs and the popular songs of this war including the "Air Corps Song," "Anchors Aweigh," "This Is the Army, Mr. Jones" and the "Marine Hymn."

The accompanist was Miss Mary Clare Myers. The choral work was under the direction of Richard B. Shade. Miss Ruth McIlhenny directed the pageant.

Eternal Ideals
After the pageant, the seniors put on their gray caps and gowns and entered the auditorium to a procession by the high school orchestra under the direction of Edwin S. Longenecker.

Early in his address, Doctor Quillian referred to the current tendency to question "the ideals of personal behavior and national policy which we have long held." He declared: "When the fear of critical public opinion is all that supports our moral standards, it is only a short step to that anarchism where there is no law and everyone is a law unto himself."

"Our ideals of democracy are eternal. Liberty, freedom and equality give expression to the idea of the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man. Those ideals are firmly rooted in the teaching of the prophets, and of Jesus Christ. To discover this insight into the spiritual background will be to acquire a deeper understanding of our belief in the brotherhood of man. We will recognize the idea that all men are of equal worth and to protection from abuses of power."

Faith in God Needed
"We will be reminded unmistakably that the ideal of the rights of men is not limited to any class or nationality and we will see that our ideals are not will-o-the-wisp, temporary things but are grounded on the structure of reality."

"Our personal and national ideals will not long survive if they are not grounded in a faith in God— if we lose the roots from which they spring," he concluded. "But your faith in God as the guarantor of the ideals of our democracy."

Names Honor Group
The exercises closed with the benediction by the Rev. Charles K. Gibson, Gettysburg Methodist pastor and the class's baccalaureate preacher.

Before the presentation of diplomas Mr. Lefever announced honors and prizes. He listed these seniors in the "Scholastic Honor Group":

Families and friends of the seniors filled the auditorium. The new high school service Honor Roll was on the stage.

One senior, Robert Lawrence Schroyer, returned to Gettysburg from Navy duty to receive his diploma in the white summer uniform of a Second Class Seaman. Three other members of the class, Wilbur Albert Rudisill, Jr., Richard Armor Sites and Samuel Brown Weaver also are in the armed forces but could not be here for the graduation exercises.

CITES PROGRESS BY PHYSICIANS IN HEALTH CARE

Physicians, despite their conservatism, are making much progress in solving the problems caused by the high cost of medical care and the unequal manner in which it falls on the individual, L. H. Perry, Harrisburg, managing editor of the Pennsylvania Medical Journal, told nearly 100 members of the service clubs of the town and the county medical association at a joint meeting in the Hotel Gettysburg Monday evening.

Speaking on the Murray-Wagner-Dingell bill for amending social security to cover medical and hospital expenses as well as other forms of care, Mr. Perry outlined four main objections to the bill and then reported on plans of doctors to solve the "main problem which is tackled by the bill—that for most people severe sickness is not only a human, but a financial catastrophe as well. The problem is to spread the cost of medicine so that the cost will not be a burden on the individual."

Objections To Bill
His objections to the bill, he said, are that "there is no assurance that it will improve health or raise the standards of medical care and there is every reason to fear that it will lower both; it is compulsory, for the people concerned must pay their share whether they participate in the program or not, while it is not compulsory on the doctors; the bill is totalitarian in that it places three billion dollars in the hands of the surgeon-general, gives him the right to say who shall be specialists, and what doctor the individual shall go to and places no power over him to check the surgeon-general if he should decide to misuse his powers; and it makes responsibility for the care of the individual patient the collective responsibility of all doctors in the area, rather than continuing the practice of individual responsibility of the doctor to his patient."

In addition to the Blue Cross and similar insurance plans for paying hospital bills, the medical associations in 15 states have started plans for taking care of medical expenses as well as the hospitalization plans, he asserted. Such a plan, in operation in western Pennsylvania at the present time, already has 15,000 subscribers, and is rapidly expanding, he said. Such plans, because they are not compulsory, totalitarian, are individual and will raise medical standards, are the proper solution for the problem, he asserted.

In a discussion on the subject following the talk Dr. Robert A. Bream, assistant county superintendent of schools; Dr. Henry Stewart, and Dr. C. Harold Johnson and the Rev. Dr. Dwight F. Putman were among those presenting views on the subject.

Dr. Frederick Tilberg, president of the Rotary club, presided at the session at which Mrs. Henrietta Blocher, president of the Soroptimist club; Hugh C. McIlhenny, president of the Lions club, and Dr. Raymond F. Sheely, president of the county Medical Society, were introduced.

County Youths, Topographers In Italy, Use Machine Made By Boche, Improved By Yanks

Two soldiers from Adams county are among the members of a United States Army Engineer Topographical unit in the Mediterranean theater of war (Italy) who are using tons of machinery, invented by the Germans, to turn out maps that will guide the Allies on their march to Berlin, Allied Force Headquarters in the Mediterranean theater revealed today.

Included in the unit, now working in a huge warehouse that once housed tons of supplies, are Sgt. Joseph H. Redding, Littlestown, and Pfc. Charles A. Menges, East Berlin.

Food Warehouse
When these engineers arrived in North Africa and took over the site they now occupy, the buildings were full of foodstuffs and other goods. The soldiers went to work, moved out the foodstuffs, and moved in their huge machines. But the birds that had been nesting in the rafters remain and add a very unwelcome note to the invasion blueprint that is being drawn below.

Part of this printing plant is not unlike a large lithograph reproduction plant in the United States. The majority of the maps are prepared by offset lithography and the largest camera and the largest press in North Africa speed the work.

The men who are doing this highly important duty are almost entirely veteran lithographers with many years of civilian experience behind them. The negative retouching, cutting, and wet plate work all require highly-skilled men and these soldiers meet the requirements to such a degree that supervision is kept at a minimum and a premium placed on individual responsibility.

Most difficult part of the lithography process at this plant is combating the weather. The absolute accuracy that this work demands is dependent to a degree upon an even temperature, because of the wide variations temperature can cause in chemical reactions, negative

Mrs. Helen Loewen, recorder of deeds of Dauphin county, was the principal speaker at the Memorial Day services held at Fairfield Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Loewen used as her theme the challenge given her recently by a wounded soldier returned from the battlefield when he said: "Tell the people that their spirit must back us up." Back of this spirit is the same challenge as was felt at Valley Forge and at Gettysburg and more recently at Bataan, she said. Mrs. Loewen paid special tribute to those of the rural areas who "seem to have a deeper feeling about the things that are close to God and nature" and a deep consciousness of the sacrifice necessary to win the war and the peace.

Special Music Given
To the women of our land she gave a particular challenge to serve more and more in whatever capacity that they are able to serve and to do it with courage and optimism for it is that that "keeps the spirit alive." To illustrate, Mrs. Loewen used the stories of Jennie Wade and of Molly Pitcher.

In concluding her remarks, Mrs. Loewen begged for a united spirit and effort on the part of all the people. She pointed out that a nation "falls not from losing battles so much as from a disrupted and disunited spirit within. Rome, a great military power, for example, fell when her people lost courage and unity."

The program included music by the Fairfield high school band, revellie by Rodney Harbaugh; invocation by the Rev. John H. Ehrhart, pastor of the Fairfield Reformed church; reading of Lincoln's Gettysburg address by the Rev. George S. Stoneback, pastor of the Fairfield Mennonite church; solos by Arthur Roth, accompanied by Miss Helen McCleaf; reading by Miss Ethel Grace Allison; taps by Miss Janet Musselman and benediction by the Rev. John C. McCune, pastor of the Zion Lutheran church, Fairfield.

MORE THAN 200 ALUMNI ENJOY ANNUAL MEET

Re-election of most of the former officers of the Alumni association of Gettysburg high school for another year was announced Monday evening at the annual commencement get-together and dance in the high school gymnasium. The crowd was estimated at more than 200 persons.

Alumni scholarship awards were presented to the two top honor students of the graduating class, Misses Darlene Trostle and Elizabeth Small. The presentation was made by Milton R. Rimmel of the class of 1944.

The recently dedicated high school service Honor Roll was on display during the evening. Melvin Little, an alumni member of the student-alumni committee that arranged for the erection of the board, presented Dr. Robert A. Bream, high school alumnus and assistant county superintendent of schools, who paid tribute to the men and women from the local high school now serving in the armed forces.

Officers Re-named
President J. Herbert Raymond was re-elected head of the association; LeRoy H. Winebrenner, re-elected first vice president; second vice president, Fred Griffin, president of the senior class; treasurer, J. Herbert Weikert, re-elected; secretary, Miss Esther Tipton, and assistant secretary, Miss Rosa Armor. The results of the election were announced by Carl S. Menchey, chairman of the nominating committee.

The program opened with piano selections by Richard B. Shade, supervisor of music in the public schools. Aviation Cadet Ross Sachs sang two solos accompanied by Mrs. Eva Sachs Orwig and Miss Shirley Ellis of Gettysburg college presented acrobatic dance numbers. Her accompanist was Mr. Shade.

President Raymond officially welcomed the more than 70 members of the graduating class to membership in the alumni organization and introduced Fred Griffin, class president. Presentation of the $15 and $10 alumni scholarship prizes followed by Mr. Rimmel.

Roy Dougherty
Patricia Power, editor-in-chief of the high school year book, the "Cannon-aid," and George Fair, business manager for the annual, presented two copies of the book to the association for permanent files. Roy Dougherty, Reading, member of the class of 1896 and one of the founders of the alumni association, reminisced on his high school days.

Members of reunion classes were presented. Superintendent L. C. Keefeauver spoke briefly and after violin selections by Henry M. Scharf, accompanied by Mr. Shade, the exercises closed with the singing of one stanza of the "Star Spangled Banner."

Dancing Enjoyed
The grand march was led by Patricia Power and Aviation Cadet Ross Sachs and dancing followed to the music of Zed Smith and his seven-piece orchestra from Waynesboro. Refreshments were served in the school cafeteria.

A number of members of the Valley Forge Military Academy band, here for college commencement and the Memorial Day exercises today, were special guests at the dance.

WHITE HOUSE SENDS LETTER TO MR. MYERS

Penrose Myers, Oak Ridge, Gettysburg's oldest merchant, was honored Sunday by a letter of congratulation from President Roosevelt on the occasion of the jeweler's 86th birthday.

Mr. Myers, for 68 years owner and manager of his jewelry store on Baltimore street, was working at the store Sunday afternoon about 3 o'clock when a special delivery letter from the White House was handed to him.

The letter, sent May 27, follows: "Dear Mr. Myers: The President has heard that on next Sunday you will celebrate your 86th birthday and he asks me to extend to you his very best wishes. He hopes the anniversary will bring you many happy memories of a long life and that all your days will be filled with peace and happiness."

The letter was signed by William D. Hassett, secretary to the President.

Another birthday greeting of which Mr. Myers is proud is a hand-painted card sent him from Toronto, Canada, by A. A. Stewart, who met the local jeweler here many years ago while visiting Gettysburg and the battlefield. A letter, accompanying the painting, says: "Many happy returns of May 28th to our dear friend, Penrose Myers. May his days be long in the land God has given us." The birthday card pictures Mr. Myers, senior, telling young Penrose Myers on the day after the battle of Gettysburg that all the ruin of that day would pass away and that some day the Gettysburg battlefield would look like the illustration. The picture has Mr. Myers Sr., garbed in Lincolnian hat and coat, pointing out to young Penrose a battle scene, and another view showing the battlefield laid out in park-like formation as it is today.

Local Cadets In Legion Photograph

The illustration appears in an article titled "Tention, Joe College!" written by Merle A. Quait.

SYNOD ORDAINS MINISTERS AT SESSIONS HERE

The Rev. Dr. Lloyd N. Keller, pastor of St. John's Lutheran church, Baltimore, was inducted as new president of the Evangelical Lutheran Synod of Maryland Thursday afternoon at the concluding sessions of the 125th annual convention of the synod held Wednesday and today at the Church of Abiding Presence of the Gettysburg Lutheran Theological seminary.

The new president, elected Wednesday morning, succeeds the Rev. Raymond C. Sorrick, Silver Springs, Maryland, to the presidency. Officers re-elected at Wednesday's sessions included the Rev. Frank Fife, Baltimore, secretary; Virgil Doub, Middletown, treasurer, and the Rev. William Minnick, Baltimore, statistician.

Three graduates of the Lutheran seminary here this spring and one of last year's graduates from the local seminary were ordained this afternoon at the synodical sessions.

They were joined by E. Ackerman, Washington, who will be pastor of a California church; Gordon E. Folkemer, Baltimore, to be pastor at St. Matthew's church, York; W. Leigh Bell, Baltimore, to become pastor of St. John's church, Hagerstown, all of whom graduated this year, and Arthur C. Dr. Knobel Speaks
Gettysburg college and similar Christian colleges throughout the United States will "come out of these times stronger than ever," Dr. Henry W. A. Hanson, president of the local college, told the synod in an address on "The Future of Christian Colleges" delivered Thursday morning. He told of "excellent spirit" shown by the air cadets during their stay at the college here and spoke of the 17-year-old Army men to be trained at the college.

Dr. Frederick R. Knobel, president of the United Lutheran Church in America, was the speaker Wednesday afternoon. He told of a new constitution being prepared to bring together the 18 Lutheran bodies in the United States and told the delegates that "great progress" is being made in the inter-Lutheran relationship program.

He also urged the pastors to plan for the return of military and industrial members who have moved out of the parishes to become members of the armed forces or to take jobs in war-industries.

Miss Francis Dinsinger, Washington, chairman of the Inner-Mission committee, reported that plans are underway to hold vacation Bible schools in the colored sections of Washington, a new program for the committee.

Elected as lay delegates to the bi-annual convention of the United Lutheran church to be held at Minneapolis next October were: Carl M. Distler, Baltimore; Harry B. Fogle, Taneytown; Paul Folkemer, Baltimore; M. P. Moller, Hagerstown; Carl L. Schaeffer, Westminster; George S. Yost, Baltimore; Virgil Doub, Middletown; A. M. LEAPS SAFELY FROM BURNING SHIP IN SOUTH

Sgt. Curtis L. Deatrick, 19-year-old son of Mrs. Amy Deatrick, Breidenbaugh apartments, Carlisle street, was one of six members of the crew of a medium bomber who parachuted to safety last Saturday when their ship caught fire at 5,000 feet in a flight from Barksdale Field, Shreveport, Louisiana, and crashed in flames.

Sergeant Deatrick, known to his friends here as "Laddie," was radio-gunner on the bomber and reported the ship's plight to the ground as the "ball out" bell rang with smoke pouring around him and as other members of the crew prepared to follow orders to parachute from the doomed bomber.

In a letter to his mother, received Thursday, Sergeant Deatrick said he escaped with the loss of a tooth and some minor cuts and bruises about the face, received when he was struck by a section of his opening chute.

Told To Bail Out

"I was practicing (with the guns) in the upper turret for a while and then went back to the tail guns and proceeded to power operate them until I was told there was engine trouble and . . . got orders to return to the front of the ship. I then started to the front of the ship to the radio compartment . . . smoke was pouring from it. The bombs were gone and the bomb-bay doors were open. . . . The engineer in the radio compartment had his 'chute on and was ready to go. He told me the trouble and said I should get my 'chute on and bail out."

"The navigator was in the aisle with his 'chute on also. The smoke was still very heavy so I got into my seat and opened my air vent so I could breathe. I turned on my transmitter and got ready to radio the situation. At this time the 'ball out' bell was ringing and the navigator was urging me to bail out but I motioned for him to go on."

Engine Exploded
"I sent the ground stations call signals and the ship numbers about five times and then sent 'ship on fire' twice. I then put on my 'chute."

"The engineer and the navigator had already bailed out of the bomb-bay and I thought the gunner had jumped out of the waist window. I took off my earphones and cap, yelled 'So long' to the co-pilot and started back. I could only see the sparks flying around me and had to feel my way back to the bomb-bay. I could not breathe so I just stuck my left arm through the leg straps of my 'chute, pulled up tight and jumped. My 'chute was very loose."

"As the 'chute opened part of it hit me in the mouth and the leg straps tore off my watch. What a jolt! I saw three 'chutes opened on one side of me and then 'sweat it out' until the pilot and co-pilot jumped. They did. The right engine exploded right after my pilot left the ship and crashed right away."

Brother "Missing"

Deatrick landed in a small tree "with my tooth and watch gone" and soon joined the other members of the crew and spread out 'chutes in a clearing for a signal of their location. One member of the crew—with an ankle injury—required first aid. They made splints and a stretcher.

Deatrick volunteered for Air Corps duty early last year from Milbourne, New Jersey. He trained at Fort Dix, Atlantic City, Greensboro, North Carolina; finished radio school at Omaha and Fort Myers, Florida, gunnery school.

He is the younger brother of Ralph M. Deatrick, "missing" at sea for two years and now officially listed by the Navy department as dead. He was the first man from this county lost in this war.

Large Barn Near Hampton Destroyed

A large bank barn on the farm of Harry Starnor, about one and one-half miles northeast of Hampton, was destroyed by fire of undetermined origin on Monday shortly before noon. A portion of the roof of the dwelling was burned. The loss was partly covered by insurance.

Mr. Starnor and his family were in Maryland to decorate the graves of relatives when a neighbor child discovered the fire. The Hampton fire company was summoned but the barn was beyond saving when the firemen arrived.

Water was pumped from a nearby dam and firemen succeeded in extinguishing the burning home and in saving a nearby garage.

All of the farm implements in the barn together with hay and straw burned. Four hogs in the barn suffered burns and one of these died Tuesday. Six rabbits, a cat and four kittens perished.
